'NO ARMS SALE': 42 SENATORS

Lyons Awaits Ruling by IERC.

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, yesterday predicted that Work Projects administration employés who strike because they do not want to work the 130 hours a month ordered by congress in recent WPA legislation, would be refused direct relief.

Leo M. Lyons.

All members of the Chicago Building Trades council have been ordered by Patrick Sullivan, head of the council, not to work at less than union wages. Union leaders charge that the new regulations have cut union wages by increasing hours of work without increasing the WPA pay. Union leaders throughout the nation have issued similar orders and it is estimated 150,000 skilled workers are striking.

To Meet Tuesday.

In Chicago Harold K. Seltzer, city WPA director, told Mayor Kelly 2,500 skilled workers are on strike on projects over the city. This is half of the skilled workers attached to the operations department of WPA, he said. Most of them are employed on city sponsored jobs. Office workers are not included.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission will formulate a state wide policy on relief to strikers at its meeting next Tuesday. Lyons said the Chicago administration would follow the IERC recommendation.

"So far there has been no problem," Lyons said, "because we have had no applications. There is no reason for any one to apply until his final WPA check is used up. But certainly the relief administration can do nothing but conform to the principles laid down by congress. These men have an opportunity for employment, and if they refuse it they should be refused relief."

East St. Louis Workers Warned.

Relief officials in East St. Louis, Ill., did not wait for a ruling by the IERC, but warned that men who do not take proffered WPA employment are ineligible for direct relief. Workers were still on the job in East St. Louis proper, but elsewhere in that district there were 8,000 out.

Milwaukee, Wis., relief officials also have announced that public relief will not be given to WPA workers quitting in protest over the new regulations increasing working hours.

It was learned that Mayor Kelly talked by telephone with Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York yesterday, and that the United States Conference of Mayors plans immediate action to bring the situation to the attention of congress.

Keller to Seek WPA Changes.

Congressman Kent Keller [D.] of the 25th Illinois district, wired WPA leaders at Duquoin, Perry county, that he would introduce a bill in the house Monday seeking to amend the new law. The unions earlier had wired Keller asking his assistance. The strike in Perry county was reported 100 per cent effective.

Representatives of the Workers' alliance, local No. 346 of the A. F. of L. Teachers' union, the Sewing Mechanics' union, and the C. I. O. coordinating committee met yesterday with Earl W. Clark, state director of employment for the WPA, to discuss the new provisions. The meeting was requested by the unions.

Explains WPA's Position.

Clark pointed out that it was his responsibility to carry out provisions of the 130 hour clause of the new law and stated that acts of congress are not subject to negotiation by WPA administrative officers.

After the meeting Miss Bertte Silverman, Cook county educational chairman of the Illinois Workers' alliance, announced that plans were under way for a mass picket line to include "hundreds of persons" around the Merchandise Mart July 15. WPA state and city offices are in the Mart. Miss Silverman said there were about 4,000 members of the alliance now employed in the Chicago area by the WPA.

Torso Slayer Describes His Crime

CONFESSES ONE KILLING; DENIES ELEVEN OTHERS

Linked to Two More Cleveland Victims.

Cleveland, O., July 7.—[Special.]—A former slaughter house employé, wearing heavy chain shackles and surrounded by guards, led police over the scene of one of Cleveland's twelve torso murders tonight after signing a confession to the killing.

The prisoner is Frank Dolazel, 52 years old, a squat, heavily muscled man who came here from Bohemia twenty-five years ago. A bricklayer by occupation, he also has worked as a WPA laborer and as a butcher. He is unmarried, and is described by police as a degenerate.

With stolid simplicity he detailed to officers how he killed Mrs. Florence Polillo, victim No. 3 in the baffling series of headless dead, and dismembered her body with a butcher knife.

Linked to Other Victims.

He denied connection with the eleven other slayings, but Coroner Samuel R. Gerber said: "Whoever killed Florence Polillo killed all the rest; all of the bodies were cut up the same way." Sheriff Martin L. O'Donnel asserted he had information linking Dolazel to at least two of the other victims.

"Here's the place where I killed her," the prisoner announced calmly when he and the police reached a rooming house where he was living at the time of the slaying in January, 1936. The recent finding of old blood-stains in the bathroom had been a factor in Dolazel's arrest Wednesday.

"She and I had been out the night of the killing," the butcher continued. "When we got home, about 2 a. m., she asked me for money, but I refused her. Then I caught her trying to put her hands in my pocket. We had an argument because she took $10 that way once before.

Tells of Wielding Knife.

"She picked up a butcher knife and tried to stab me. I hit her in the face with my fist and knocked her against the bathtub. Then I picked up the butcher knife and went wild. I don't know all that happened.

"Later I remembered carrying packages out. It took me three trips to dispose of the parts of her body."

Dolazel took officers to a vacant lot at the rear of the rooming house where he said he left the trunk of Mrs. Polillo's body.

Parts of the woman's body were found Jan. 26, 1936, on a rubbish heap in the district where she and Dolazel had been neighbors. It was estimated she had been dead two or three days.

Other Victims Listed.

After visiting the scene of her slaying Dolazel was placed in solitary confinement in the county jail. It is expected a murder charge will be placed against him tomorrow.

Another murder to which Sherif O'Donnell said Dolazel had been linked was that of Edward W. Andrassy, 28 years old. His decapitated body and the torso of an unidentified man were the first victims in the series. They were found in the desolate Kingsbury run section of the city on Sept. 23, 1935.

Dolazel admitted, the sherif said, he had been drinking with Andrassy shortly before he was slain. The sherif said witnesses told him the two men fought and that Dolazel received a face wound from which he still bears a scar.

Boast of Woman's Visit.

According to the sherif, the prisoner also boasted that he had associated with Mrs. Rose Wallace, 40 years old, a Negress, who frequently came to his room. Her skeleton was found in a culvert on June 6, 1937. Only three of the twelve Cleveland torso victims have been identified. The three are those to whom Dolazel has been linked.

Dolazel was questioned last fall about the slayings, one of more than 3,000 suspects, but was released after two hours interrogation when he insisted he had no connection with them.

DANZIG AND POLAND HAVE A NEW DISPUTE; IT'S OVER POTATOES

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, July 7.—(AP)—Potatoes today became the latest political issue in the Danzig-Polish quarrel.

Danzig officials said that Polish customs officials were refusing to permit trucks carrying potatoes to cross the frontier in the free city's territory. Danzig housewives complained of a potato shortage. The newspaper Neueste Nachrichten said that at one border point the Poles turned back potato trucks with the remark:

"Poland is not interested in providing food for German soldiers stationed in the free city."

German quarters in the free city were excited by a report that a German citizen named Johannes Lux was arrested yesterday at the Polish border community of Raty on a charge of having assisted fugitive Germans to cross into Germany at unguarded points.

BRITISH RULERS ASK ROOSEVELT'S MOTHER TO PARTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt, has been invited by King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain to attend the British royal court at Buckingham palace next Thursday night. Mrs. Roosevelt, who is 84 years old, is expected to arrive in England next week.

Mrs. Roosevelt is expected to be the guest of the king and queen at the royal lodge at Windsor next weekend. If she arrives in time to accept the court invitation, the President's mother, it is reported, will not be lined up with the debutantes awaiting presentation to the king and queen, but will form part of the royal circle, with the status of foreign visitor of royal rank. Thus, British sources said, the question of her presentation will not arise.

After Scores Pass Purse, He Picks It Up with $175

Freeport, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Scores of other motorists ignored a battered purse lying on a highway six miles northeast of here today, but Oscar Labudde of Dakota stopped and picked it up. Inside he found $175 in currency.

Judge Clears Dog Haven of Theft Charge

BY MARCIA WINN.

Judge Harry Porter of Evanston yesterday found Orphans of the Storm, Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin's animal refuge in Deerfield, not guilty of stealing Major, a collie to which it gave refuge.

The judge said he was sure Mrs. Agnes M. Larsen, 838 Judson avenue, Evanston, who raised Major from a puppy, acted in good faith when she brought the suit. It was simply a case, he said, of insufficient evidence.

Weeps at Decision.

Mrs. Larsen wept bitterly at the judge's decision. "If they knew he was my dog, and I told them so, why didn't they give him to me?" she cried. "I had to pay $7.50 for a writ of replevin to get him back."

At that she crumpled onto a nearby bench. Major, whom she had brought there on a leash, stuck a long, delicate nose comfortingly near her. Mrs. Florence McCarthy of 205 Kedzie street, Evanston, whose charges that her English setter was captured and sold for $15 will be heard Sept. 15, threw a consoling arm around her shoulders.

"I don't see how he could have ruled otherwise," declared Mrs. McLaughlin, who had come to court to defend her superintendent, Samuel Curran, against whom the charges were leveled. "Why, I've been so enraged at the whole thing."

Attacks Driver's Story.

Mrs. McLaughlin denounced her former truck driver, James Hagen of 1539 Fairfield avenue, the plaintiff's chief witness. Hagen, a small young man with a blond mustache, testified at an earlier hearing that he picked up Major on March 8 at Curran's direction. The entire case hinged on his testimony, and to thwart it Mrs. McLaughlin yesterday introduced evidence that he once served thirty-nine months at Pontiac for larceny.

The director of the Chicago receiving station for Orphans of the Storm took the stand yesterday to show that Hagen had "rescued" the dog on his own initiative. She is Miss Viola Larsen of 1806 Erie street.

JUDGE IS A REGULAR SOLOMON IN DIVIDING UP A FAMILY BIBLE

Norristown, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—A family Bible and a dozen heirs gave Judge J. Burnett Holland today a problem fit for King Solomon. The judge awarded the Bible to the 12 children of Mrs. Barbara S. Harris "in one-twelfth undivided interest each" leaving it to the heirs to decide whether each should have the Bible for one month a year or divide it into 12 parts.

HOUSE EMPLOYES TOLD THEY MUST BE MORE POLITE

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—Life became more serious today for a lot of employés on the house side of the capitol.

So-called patronage employés—elevator operators, policemen, doorkeepers and the like who get their jobs by knowing a congressman—were called on the carpet by Chairman Millard F. Caldwell [D., Fla.] of the house patronage committee and told to mend their working ways.

Specifically, they were told that playing the horses, drinking and putting their feet on their desks would not be tolerated during working hours.

"A lot of these youngsters get pert after working around here a while, and that results frequently in thoughtless discourtesy," the Floridian said.

The matter of discourtesies came to a head recently when a high government official asked an elevator operator the way to the senate and got this reply: "Hell, I ain't no guide. Go find one."

There's a Limit to Your Pushing a Lady Around

They decided yesterday at Brookfield zoo to give old Judy, senior inhabitant of the elephant house, a cleaning. Albert Langdon, chief keeper of pachyderms, got out his wheelbarrow and his brooms and hoses. He moved Judy over into a corner. Then he moved Judy into another corner better suited to his purpose. But when he prepared to move Judy to a third spot, she decided it was too hot and she had been pushed around enough for one day. She sat down in the wheelbarrow.

Plan Chicago Snow Cruiser for Byrd Trek

President Roosevelt yesterday commissioned Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, veteran polar explorer, to lead an expedition to Antarctica this fall and claim huge areas of land there for the United States.

At the same time it was disclosed that the expedition may depend, for its transportation over the glacial wastes at the bottom of the world, on a huge new snow cruiser planned in Chicago by scientists of the Research Foundation of the Armour Institute of Technology. It is estimated that the cruiser, a wheeled vehicle fifty-five feet long, will cost more than $100,000.

Congress has appropriated $340,000 for the expedition, but it was said that none of this will be available for construction of the cruiser.

Byrd Plans to Start Oct. 1.

Admiral Byrd, at a conference with the President and officials of the state, navy, interior, treasury, and agriculture departments, accepted the leadership and said he hoped to leave for his old base at Little America about Oct. 1.

The Antarctic regions are believed to have great resources in coal and oil. At least three other nations—Great Britain, Germany and Norway—have indicated a desire to take possession of at least part of the territory.

Dr. Thomas E. Poulter, who was with Byrd on his Antarctic expedition of 1934 and is one of the principal inventors of the cruiser, was at the conference in Washington. He returned to Chicago last night and reported that the United States was the only government that could reach the region this year.

Seek to Clinch Territory.

Byrd's task, he said, would be to clinch for America the thousands of square miles he visited on his two previous expeditions. Three ships, the coast guard's "Northland," Byrd's own "Bear of Oakland," and the "North Star," ice breaker used to carry supplies in Alaska, will be used.

Ample air equipment will be taken, and Dr. Poulter, who is connected with the Armour research foundation, said November and December are the most favorable months for flying in Antarctica.

Dr. Poulter declined to talk about the projected cruiser, which still is in the blue print stage. From other sources it was learned that it will have Diesel power and that each of its four wheels will be ten feet in diameter.

Space for Crew of Four.

Its extreme length, it was said, would be of use in crossing crevasses in the glacial ice. Upon its chassis will be a house [no other word seems appropriate] fifteen feet wide and fifteen feet high and nearly as long as the chassis. On the roof will be room to lash on a small plane.

Four men may live comfortably in the house and have supplies for one year. There also will be equipment for geological tests and space for weather recording instruments. The speed of the machine on ice and snow would vary, supposedly, between five to twenty miles an hour.

DEMAND A REAL NEUTRALITY LAW FOR AMERICA

Pledge They'll Fight Roosevelt Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Guy M. Gillette, who holds key vote. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

Opposition leaders held a meeting and issued a statement subscribed to by at least forty-two senators pledging unalterable opposition to "the repeal or modification of the present neutrality law prohibiting the sale or exportation of arms, ammunition, or implements of war to nations engaged in war."

Such an array of senators, only seven short of a majority of the senate, could prevent action for any period of time during which the senate might be held in session. The opposition leaders did not threaten a filibuster, insisting that legitimate debate would arouse the country and result in ultimate defeat for the administration.

Postpones Committee Hearing.

While the opposition meeting was in progress, Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the foreign relations committee, postponed until next Tuesday a meeting that had been called for tomorrow for the purpose of considering proposals to amend the neutrality act.

The reason for the postponement, it was learned, was that Pittman was not certain his forces could defeat a motion to drop the subject of neutrality act revision at this session. Moreover, he is one vote short of a majority of the committee on any question that calls for repeal of the existing arms embargo.

There are twenty-three members of the committee and the senators whose positions are known stand equally divided, 11 to 11. That leaves Senator Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], on whom the administration is said to be putting pressure for his decisive vote.

Put Pressure on George.

Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], who now is numbered with the opposition, also is said to be subjected to pressure by the administration, particularly by his friend, Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Opposition leaders concede a chance for the administration to get some kind of bill out of the committee, but no chance for any bill repealing the arms embargo to pass the senate. The house of representatives upset the administration's program by adopting a modified arms embargo provision, prohibiting the shipment to belligerents of arms and ammunition, or "lethal weapons," but not implements of war, which presumably would include airplanes.

List of Opposition Senators.

The list of forty-two senators who pledged opposition to the repeal of the embargo on arms follows:

Johnson [R., Cal.]	Walsh [D., Mass.]
Nye [R., N. D.]	Johnson [D., Colo.]
La Follette [Rad., Wis.]	Wheeler [D., Mont.]
Clark [D., Mo.]	McCarran [D., Nev.]
Borah [R., Idaho]	Reynolds [D., N. C.]
Reed [R., Kas.]	Adams [D., Colo.]
Capper [R., Kas.]	Van Nuys [D., Ind.]
Vandenberg [R., Mich.]	Tydings [D., Md.]
Danaher [R., Conn.]	Bridges [R., N. H.]
Lodge [R., Mass.]	Bulow [D., S. D.]
White [R., Me.]	Burke [D., Neb.]
Bone [D., Wash.]	McNary [R., Ore.]
Clark [D., Idaho]	Townsend [R., Del.]
Holt [D., W. Va.]	Balley [D., N. C.]
Holman [R., Ore.]	Davis [R., Pa.]
Downey [D., Cal.]	Bonsbey [D., O.]
Lundeen [F.-L., Minn.]	Gerry [D., R. I.]
Frazier [R., N. D.]	Gibson [R., Vt.]
	Gurney [R., S. D.]
	Hale [R., Me.]
	O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.]

The statement of principles issued by the opposition group follows:

"We are unalterably opposed to the repeal or modification of the present neutrality law prohibiting the sale or exportation of arms, ammunition, or implements of war to nations engaged in war.

"We are against any discretion being lodged in the hands of any chief executive to determine an aggressor

...r aggressors during any war abroad.

"We believe in the real neutrality of our nation in the case of any armed conflict.

"We are determined to maintain our position by every honorable and legitimate means at our command."

Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.] issued the statement but various others assisted in drafting it. Between 25 and 30 senators were present at the meeting in Senator Johnson's office, in response to invitations signed by Johnson, Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], and Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.]. A total of 42 senators who were apprised of the nature of the statement subscribed to it, according to the opposition leaders.

Trying to Keep Out of War.

"There is just one thing that we are trying to do and that is to keep out of war," said Senator Johnson. "We are determined to keep out of any European war. We are determined to fight this thing out if it takes all summer."

The administration program, as embodied in the bill introduced in the house, would repeal the arms embargo and permit belligerent nations to obtain war supplies in this country on a cash basis. Moreover, the President would have discretionary authority to proclaim "areas of combat operations" which American vessels could not enter.

Both proponents and opponents of the program agree it is intended for the benefit of England and France, on the assumption that England and France would control the seas and could get war supplies in this country, while making it impossible for Germany and Italy to do so.

TWO AIRPLANES FORCED DOWN; NONE INJURED

Telephone wires were torn down yesterday when an airplane made a forced landing near the Cody flying field, 95th street and Roberts road. Elmer Edelman, 5755 West 62d street, the pilot, was unhurt. The plane, a Curtiss Fledgling, was damaged slightly. The accident occurred when the motor stalled shortly after Edelman had taken off from the field.

A second plane crash occurred last evening at George street and Palmer avenue, River Grove, where the pilot tried to make a forced landing in a meadow. As the ship rolled along the uneven ground one wheel went into a ditch and the plane overturned. Neither the pilot nor his passenger, a young girl, was hurt.

A passing motorist took the couple to the Elmhurst airport, where it was said the pilot was known only by his surname of Goodman.

OUST POLICEMAN AFTER KILLING IN TAVERN QUARREL

Policeman John P. Welch of the Central station was ordered discharged from the police department yesterday by the civil service commission. On March 2, he shot and killed John McDonald, 9157 Loomis street, during a quarrel in a tavern at 1129 East 43d street. Welch was off duty at the time.

In a bench trial before Judge William J. Lindsay in the Criminal court, Welch was acquitted on a charge of manslaughter. The court ruled that there was nothing to show that the killing had not been accidental. Witnesses said both men had been drinking.

The civil service commission yesterday also ordered the discharge of Policeman Thomas H. McGurn who was found guilty of being intoxicated while on duty May 22.

A mass meeting sponsored by the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee, affiliated with the Congress of Industrial organizations, will be held July 16 in the Coliseum. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil will deliver the opening prayer. John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be Van A. Bittner, chairman of the Packing union, and Ald. William A. Rowan [10th]. Bishop Sheil said he accepted the invitation "in a spirit of democratic understanding."

William Skidmore, reputed Chicago gambling boss, is $652 poorer today. Some time Tuesday night, it was learned yesterday, a thief broke into the house on his Pine Tree Farm No. 1, at Pistakee Bay, McHenry county, one of Skidmore's eight farm properties in the lakes region. The thief pried open a desk drawer, and took the money from a cash box there. The theft was not reported to McHenry county authorities until Thursday.

L. S. U. BUILDING CHIEF ARRESTED ON WPA CHARGE

Accused of Private Use of Relief Labor.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., July 7.—The arrest today in New Orleans of George Caldwell, former construction superintendent at Louisiana State university, caused a stir in the Louisiana political machine built by the late Huey P. Long. Caldwell was arrested on a federal warrant charging diversion of WPA labor and materials to private persons.

George Caldwell.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

A WPA foreman, James Marshall, was arrested in Baton Rouge tonight on a similar charge. Marshall was employed during the building of a $1,000,000 coliseum at the university. He pleaded not guilty in a preliminary hearing, and was jailed when he could not post $7,500 bond.

Caldwell was seized as he stepped from the federal grand jury room in New Orleans and was released under bond of $10,000 after he had entered a plea of not guilty. The maximum sentence, upon conviction on the charge against Caldwell, would be a year in prison and a fine of $2,000.

Long Reveals 2% Cut.

Caldwell resigned his post at the university after Gov. Earl K. Long, brother of the late Kingfish and successor to Gov. Richard W. Leche, divulged that a 2 per cent commission on construction costs of new buildings had been voted to Caldwell by the university board. Dr. James M. Smith resigned as president of the university and fled just a day before Leche quit as governor and Earl Long, then lieutenant governor, succeeded him.

Gov. Long had charged that the resolution which authorized the 2 per cent commission was an illegal one put through by Dr. Smith.

Jury Probes Pay Reductions.

The federal inquiry at New Orleans which resulted in Caldwell's arrest also involves what is known here as the de-ducts or the 5 per cent deduction from the pay of state employés, and the question of whether any income tax has been paid on the war chest so obtained.

A. P. Tugwell, state treasurer and candidate for governor in the 1940 election, today issued a statement which said Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans and John M. Fush, assistant manager of the New Orleans dock board, were treasurers of the Louisiana association of state employés. A few days ago Tugwell said his understanding was that Maestri was custodian of the funds obtained from the pay deductions.

University Board Member Quits.

Maestri, rated the No. 1 man of the state machine, the maker of governors, said in reply he had nothing to do with the fund and knew nothing about it. Tugwell today cited a speech by former Gov. Leche in New Orleans in May, 1938, in which Leche was quoted as saying: "Mayor Maestri and Mr. Fush are treasurers of it" [the association formed by state employés].

L. P. Abernathy of Monroe resigned today from the board of supervisors at the university. The governor picked J. Doles of Plain Dealer, a banker, for the vacancy. Abernathy is chairman of the state highway commission.

Additional indictments, including one for forgery, may be filed against Dr. Smith, said District Attorney Dewey Sanchez of this parish. Smith is still in prison here on a charge of embezzling $100,000 in university funds. He was brought back to this state after he surrendered in Canada.

Abandoned by Flyer

Goldie Gehrken, 17, of Vernon, Ill., who was left in a field near Charleston, Mo., by Ernest Pelch. He flew away with her Monday.

LOVE FLIES AWAY, LEAVING GOLDIE ALONE IN FIELD

Aerial Lothario Escapes as Sherif Arrives.

Vernon, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Goldie Gehrken, a vivacious brunette, 17 years old, returned tonight to resume her prosaic life in this little town after a romantic four day interlude with a barnstorming young aviator who wooed her with a stolen airplane.

Her flying Lothario was being hunted in southeastern Missouri, where he abandoned the girl to avoid arrest. Late reports indicated that the young man, Ernest Pelch, who used the name of Larry Thompson, was eluding the authorities.

Although Goldie asserted she was willing to return home, there appeared to be disagreement between her and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gehrken, as to the punishment Pelch deserved.

"We're going to charge him with everything we can," Gehrken declared.

Away Flies Love.

Her parents and Sherif H. E. Vogt drove to Charleston, Mo., 165 miles from here, to bring her home. She had been left standing in a field at Wyatt, a village near Charleston, when Pelch sped away in the plane as authorities arrived there. He was in the air at the time.

"The pilot apparently sensed trouble when I arrived," said Sherif Walter Beck of Charleston. "He had been taking up passengers for 50 cents each. He landed his passengers in a field some distance away, circled over Wyatt, and then sped away."

Girl Tells of Romance.

Goldie said she had no intention of spending so much time away from home when she went for a ride with Pelch last Monday. Instead of taking her to nearby Ramsey, Ill., where he told her they were going, he flew to Eddyville, Ill., and made love to her, she said.

"He begged me to marry him and said he wouldn't take me home until I did," Goldie related. "We stayed in Eddyville until Thursday afternoon, then flew back to Vernon and circled my home. But he didn't want to land. We went to Wyatt yesterday afternoon.

"I thought everything would be all right, even if I stayed away, because he said he had telephoned my parents and told them not to worry."

Sherif Beck said the young couple stayed together in a private house at Wyatt last night. He said he understood from Goldie that she and the young aviator considered the trip a lark, and that both enjoyed it immensely.

In addition to the charges Gehrken has threatened to lodge against Pelch, a warant charging him with larceny of the plane was sworn out by Eddie Crooker, operator of a flying service at Frankfort, Ind. He said Pelch broke into a hangar and stole the plane at 4 a. m. on June 28.

SCHNACKENBERG WARNS AGAINST CENTRAL POWER

State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [R., Chicago] decried the trend toward centralization of power in state government last night before the Suburban Area and Country Towns Association of Cook County, meeting in the Oak Park municipal building.

"This movement toward centralization," he said, "involves the absorption of authority heretofore exercised by local officials selected by the people in the various communities of Illinois. This trend is unwholesome. The farther away the public official is from the people, who are the source of all governmental power, by just that ratio is the responsibility to the people lessened.

"Ordinarily local officials, who are under the direct scrutiny of the voters who elected them, are likely to give more efficient and economical governmental service. However, there is nothing in the phrase 'home rule' which in and of itself guarantees perfection. It therefore becomes the duty of all local officials who believe in home rule to maintain a high degree of performance, economy, and efficiency."

FARWELL AVENUE PIER OPEN TO ALL, PUBLIC ASSURED

George Donoghue, superintendent of the Chicago Park district, yesterday assured citizens they are free to go out upon the pier at the foot of Farwell avenue, whether or not they are fishermen.

Complaint had been made that police had prevented a man and his young son from going upon the pier because they did not have fishing equipment. The pier is largely used by fishermen.

Donoghue said that any police action of that sort was due to a misunderstanding, and would not be repeated. He said that because of deep water children are not allowed on the pier unless they are accompanied by adults.

Relief Cheater Sentenced to 30 Days in Bridewell

John Stepien, 1402 Superior street, was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridewell yesterday when he pleaded guilty of having defrauded the Chicago Relief administration of $165. He accepted relief while his wife was employed. Judge Joseph B. Hermes ordered Stepien, who was a relief client for eight years, to repay the amount given him during the three months his wife was working.

Yacht Is Sunk, but She Has to Pay Taxes on It

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Although she'll have to don a diving suit to use her yacht, Mrs. Daisy Monstad still has to pay taxes on it. She told the board of equalization today that the $1,734 assessed valuation on the Daisy M was too high. It sank to the bottom of the sea several months ago. The board huddled, cut her yacht assessment to $300. That'll be $16.78 a year, Mrs. Monstad.

TOO TIRED TO DANCE; HUSBAND HITS HER; THAT BRINGS DIVORCE

Mrs. Inez Bozee, 29 years old, told Judge Robert C. O'Connell yesterday that her husband, George, is a good dancer and she usually likes to waltz with him. But one night she was tired and when she refused to dance he struck her. The judge instructed her attorney, Harry X. Cole, to prepare a divorce decree. Mrs. Bozee lives at 418 South Evergreen avenue, Arlington Heights.

MAYOR OPPOSES CITY OWNERSHIP OF TRANSIT LINES

Says He'd Prefer Unified, Private Operation.

Mayor Kelly is opposed to municipal ownership of the city's transit lines if any plan for a unified transportation system supported by private capital can be worked out.

He conferred for more than an hour yesterday morning with members of the city council transportation committee, which voted unanimously Thursday to discuss with the mayor plans for city ownership and operation of the surface and elevated lines and bus routes. The aldermen, Mayor Kelly said, were impatient and disgusted with the attitude of the transit companies in the negotiations for a unified franchise for a modernized transit system.

See No Chance for Agreement.

"The committee members," the mayor asserted, "think the companies' suggestions for a new franchise are far out of line. They see no chance for an agreement with the city on the basis of what has been suggested so far. They think that the transit representatives are not putting all their cards on the table."

The companies' proposal for a unified franchise was made last week in answer to the city's request for such a draft.

The chief points in the proposal which the aldermen oppose, the mayor said, are the increase in fare from 7 to 8 cents, the plan to pay the city compensation for use of the streets only after interest and dividends to investors, the recommendation for buying a large number of street cars instead of buses, and the request for two years in which to work out a pension plan for employés.

Aldermen Want Buses.

On the question of street car purchases, the mayor explained that street cars, being more expensive than buses, would increase the valuation placed on the transit properties and give the companies a basis for requesting higher fares. The companies proposed the purchase of 2,100 street cars. The aldermen suggest buying 1,000 street cars and later deciding on whether to buy 1,100 more street cars or their equivalent in buses.

"The aldermen are not entirely sold on the idea of city ownership of the transit system," the mayor said. "They are, however, on the warpath for action from the companies. They want to get a traction ordinance that is acceptable to the people."

The committee will meet Monday to carry forward its plans for trying to reach a franchise agreement. On Monday, also, the transit lines will submit to the committee their arguments for the 8 cent fare, $220,000,000 valuation for the transit properties, and other provisions of the franchise proposal made last week.

Swarm of Bees Evicts Host from Own Back Yard

Cragin police were paging a bee catcher last night. So was Ray W. Johansen, 1915 North Sayre avenue, the unwilling host to a swarm that settled Thursday under the concrete walk in his back yard. Reason for the search for the bee fancier: The Johansen family has to stay out of the yard and police are being deluged with calls from passers by who are being stung.

Spectator Killed by Bat as He Watches Ball Game

Carmelo Uccione, 51 years old, a shoemaker, was killed last evening when he was struck on the head by a baseball bat while watching a softball game in the yard of Manierre school, 1435 Cleveland avenue. The batter was Jerome Rossa, 19, of 1406 Cleveland avenue. Uccione lived at 455 Evergreen avenue.

THE SHORT OF IT IS THAT SKIRTS AREN'T LONGER

There's a rumor that skirts, which exposed the feminine knee again this summer, after a 14 year shrouding, are to be longer, but TRIBUNE cameramen found no evidence of this on Chicago's boulevards yesterday.

Fifty per cent of the women's skirts in Chicago are short—very short. They either cut a straight line across the kneecap or they disclose a neat inch above it. With the exposed knees, in many instances, are bare legs.

A possible 49 per cent, the cameramen's survey showed, wear skirts that dip an inch or two below the knee. One per cent wear theirs in the Queen Elizabeth mood, eight inches from the ground. The remainder triumphantly reveal the knee, be it good, indifferent, or knobby.

Skirts may be longer for fall, advance reports indicate, but right now the correct length is just wherever the knee happens to be. And Chicago women are being very correct.

Blow at Mexican Divorces Is Approved by Senate

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—On its way to house action today was a bill concerning the soliciting of American citizens to obtain divorces in Mexico or other foreign countries. The senate passed the bill yesterday. The measure forbids use of the mails in selling such divorce services. A prison term of five years or a fine of $5,000 is provided as a penalty.

NEW N. U. CHIEF URGES TRAINING FOR DEMOCRACY

Education's Job Outlined by Dr. Snyder.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, who will become president of Northwestern university on Sept. 1, yesterday discussed the problems of the private university, such as his, in relation to the rapid growth of the tax-supported institutions.

Franklyn Bliss Snyder.

He regards the chief function of a university today as that of selecting and helping young people to take positions of responsibility in the American democracy and to make their task of preparation intellectually exciting. This is an outlook distinct from the ivory tower theory of education, educating people to "live in a vacuum," as he puts it.

Yet he would not, in any hurried, practical preparation for immediate tasks of life, overlook the fact that present and future are inextricably linked with events and thoughts far back in the history of the human race.

Chief Problems Outlined.

These are the questions put to him and his answers:

Q.—What is the chief long range problem of the privately endowed university? A.—To find the young men and women best qualified for positions of responsibility in the American democracy and to help them achieve the best possible sort of educational development—to make intellectual pioneering so exciting to students that they will prepare themselves for having a full share in the constructive developments of the next few decades.

Q.—Why should the private college and university continue to be supported? A.—The fact that they have contributed so much in the past creates a strong presumption that they will continue to do so in the future. The burden of proof is heavy on the person who suggests that they should not be continued. They can do some things which the average tax supported institution may find difficult:

1. Establish rigorous selective tests for students seeking admission.
2. Function for the country as a whole rather than for a certain geographical area.
3. Adapt themselves readily to changing conditions.

Plans to Meet Competition.

Q.—How is Northwestern planning to meet the increasing competition of tax supported institutions? A.—The number of persons seeking higher education is increasing so rapidly that I doubt whether there is any real competition between the private and the public institutions. We at Northwestern think of ourselves as cooperating with public and other private institutions in a task that is far too large for either group to undertake alone. There also is great stimulus in the fact that what we try to do for our students can always be checked against what the great public institutions are doing for theirs.

Q.—Has increased competition for students lowered educational standards? A.—Educational standards certainly are different from what they were thirty years ago, but I do not believe that they are lower in any unfortunate sense. The classicist might think they were. The natural scientist might think they were somewhat higher. As I look back over thirty years of life on this campus I am sure that there has been a steady raising of standards both for admission and for graduation. And when one looks at the standards prevailing in the professional schools, one can hardly believe that so short a time could have brought about so marked an improvement.

Certain Schools Will Endure.

Dr. Snyder does not fear the passing of Northwestern or similar strong private institutions under the advance of government controlled and supported colleges and universities.

"The tax-supported institutions are growing more rapidly," he said, "but that private institutions of the higher sort should pass out is unthinkable to me."

He pointed out that Northwestern is fourth in a list of twenty-seven institutions of 1,000 or more enrollment in contributions received. From 1920 to 1929 gifts amounted to $350,000,000. During the years 1929 to 1937 the total was $320,000,000. Northwestern during this first period received $20,000,000 and $17,000,000 during the last eight year period. The yearly average decline per institution was only $9,760.

The burden of the decline in philanthropy, it appears from other figures, is on the smaller colleges. There are 675 endowed colleges and universities, a peculiar American development in education. They have a billion and a half of endowment, but 50 per cent of it belongs to 3 per cent of the group, and 90 per cent of it to 25 per cent of the institutions.

Tech Staff Being Organized.

The task which Dr. Snyder regards as the most important during the first part of his administration, at least, is the building of the new Institute of Technology made possible by the grant of $6,735,000 from the Walter P. Murphy Foundation of Chicago. The moving of buildings and other preparations are under way and Ovid E. Eshbach, who has been appointed dean, is at work organizing his staff. This will be carried out under the coöperative plan of part teaching from books and part learning from actual work.

This is not entirely an experiment, Dr. Snyder said, as coöperative work has been under way in the education and commerce departments for some time, and with successful results. In the commerce school there are graduate fellowships for two years in which study and work with Chicago mercantile firms are combined. In the educational department there are student internes who teach and carry on graduate work at the same time.

Jefferson's Words Cited.

Dr. Snyder regards academic freedom as a cherished privilege and responsibility of the university teacher. The freedom is freedom from censorship. The responsibility is not to violate good taste by intruding personal beliefs, using it as a shield for crusading and propaganda.

"The finest definition of academic freedom I know," he said, "came from the pen of Thomas Jefferson, who wrote when he was founding the University of Virginia: 'The institution will be based on the illimitable freedom of the human mind. For here we are not afraid to follow the truth wherever it may lead, nor to tolerate any error, so long as reason is left free to combat it.'

"Those sentences, from the pen that had already drafted the Declaration of Independence, might well be the motto of every university. For censorship of any sort not only makes it impossible for a university to function as it should, but also defeats its own end by inviting an opposite type of censorship when the turn of fortune's wheel brings a different class or party into power.

"A university scholar should be as free from censorship in the discharge of his professional duties as a judge on the federal bench. He should know, and at Northwestern university he does know, that he has full liberty to publish the results of his scientific investigations without having to ask whether they agree with the dogmas of any church or with the platform of any political party."

ASKS IF AMERICA IS GETTING MONEY'S WORTH ON SCHOOLS

What is America getting for the tremendous sums of money spent on its schools? This question was raised before a conference of administrators at Northwestern university yesterday by Dr. Clarence Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin.

The nation's schools, he said, now receive about one-half of the local public revenues, and for years parents have scraped and pinched to give their children better opportunities.

"People are beginning to wonder whether we will get more out of $100,000 by having a good police department or by improving our schools," Dr. Dykstra continued. "The average age of criminals in America is 19, the age at which they are just blooming out of our educational system. Which is more important, protection or education?"

MIKE IS ON TOP OF THE WORLD, AND HE LIKES IT

Williamsport, Pa., July 7.—(AP)—Mike, a green Mexican parrot, perched in a tree top today and scorned the pleadings of his mate, his owner, firemen, and a crowd which has been trying for four days to coax him down.

Biddy, Mike's mate, was placed under the tree in a cage for a while, but Mike was more interested in freedom. Several men climbed the tree, but Mike stayed beyond their reach.

Mike's owner, Mrs. Alta C. Meskell, said he pulled the same stunt two years ago—but finally responded to the coaxing of his mate.

CLERGYMAN SHOOTS AT AILING CAT; KILLS WIFE ACCIDENTALLY

Flint, Mich., July 7.—[Special.]—A preacher who planned the mercy killing of an ailing cat yesterday accidentally killed his wife instead when the gun discharged with a jammed bullet in its barrel. The cat escaped.

The Rev. Wilson Lane, 61 years old, pastor of Everybody's Mission at Frankenmuth, Mich., fired three times at the cat at his home here, but missed. The fourth bullet jammed and Mrs. Nancy Virginia Lane, 61, his wife, handed him a screwdriver to pry it out. As she did so the gun discharged, the bullet striking her near the ear.

NOBILE ARRIVES TO TAKE UP JOB AT AIR SCHOOL

Gen. Umberto Nobile, Italian Arctic flyer, arrived in Chicago yesterday to become professor of aeronautics at the Lewis Holy Name School of Aeronautics near Lockport. He arrived by plane from New York.

He was met by representatives of Bishop Bernard Sheil, head of the school. Later he called on the bishop. Gen. Nobile refused to discuss European questions. He spoke highly of the development of American transport aviation.

Gen. Nobile has flown over the north pole two times. He commanded the ill fated dirigible Italia when it crashed in the Arctic wastes in 1928 with a loss of eight lives. Because of differences with the Italian government he has been living in voluntary retirement in Italy in recent years.

CITIZENS TO SEE POLICE HAZARDS AT THRILL SHOW

It Will Depict How They Help Fight Crime.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

The policeman sees at once that it is a holdup. Without hesitation he advances on the robbers, drawing his gun, though their pistols already are in their hands. Before he can pull the trigger, the gunmen wheel and fire point blank. The policeman falls, dying.

The average citizen is indignant when he reads about it the next day. He probably feels regret when he thinks of the slain policeman's family. He seldom considers that it is in his power to aid the police through closer coöperation. He almost never stops to think that by being less heedless—by being a better citizen—he may help save police lives.

Perils to Be Depicted.

Perhaps he would be more concerned if he could know what the death of a policeman in line of duty costs him and the other taxpayers of Chicago, of Cook county, and of Illinois. This ranges from $45,000 to nearly $75,000.

At Chicago's second annual Police and Fire Thrill show in Soldiers' field on Sunday, July 16, the average citizen will learn how his coöperation can help save police lives, make the city safer from crime, and—incidentally—make unnecessary these indemnity payments.

He will be able to see and understand as never before the hazards and perils his policemen face daily in their war against crime. But back to the costs. The major expense arises from caring for the slain man's family. The figures that follow do not include the cost of training the policeman for the service.

Taxes Support Pension Fund.

The police pension fund, supported by taxes, pays the widow $125 a month from the day of his death until the time when he would have attained the age of 57 years, equivalent to retirement. If these are three children, the amount is $150 monthly.

In addition, the city assumes the payments the policeman would have made toward his old age annuity and continues to make its own regular contribution to the fund in his behalf. These total nearly 15 per cent of his annual basic pay of $2,500 a year.

The cost to the city, through the pension fund alone, therefore, is about $30,000, figuring the average age of policemen killed at 39 years.

Other Costs Are Added.

There are other costs, however. There may be heavy hospitalization and surgery fees. And to be added to the $30,000 figure is the $5,000 appropriated for the widow by the city council.

If there are two or more children—and the average shows that there are—this amount is increased to $10,000.

If the murderer is captured, as usually is the case, a criminal trial follows. This will cost from $5,000 to $15,000.

Finally, there may be the cost of an execution or of keeping the murderer in prison over a long period of years. The most conservative figure, therefore, would be $45,000.

If, however, the slain man is only 25 years old, payments to the family would extend over a period of 32 years. In one case, $55,000 eventually will be paid the family by the pension board alone. The complete cost of this case will be nearly $75,000.

Science and the ingenuity of the men who direct the police of the nation have raised odds amazingly against the underworld in the last few years, but the vigilance of the individual citizen still is of vital importance to the department, according to Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan.

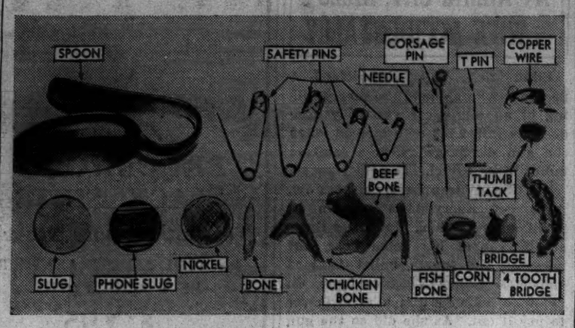
Swift identification by finger prints has become a formidable weapon. So has the radio equipped squad car, capable of closing in on outlaws while they still are at the scene of their crimes. The lie detector has solved many cases. Crime detection has become a science.

It will not be possible to demonstrate all these advances at the Police and Fire Thrill show, but enough of them will be shown to amaze the average citizen. The performances of the city's firemen will round out the two hour spectacle.

Tickets go on sale Monday at gate O at the south end of Soldiers' field, at the Fair store, and at the Tribune's public service offices at 1 South Dearborn street, and in Tribune tower.

A quarter will admit an adult and a dime will admit a child to the show, which is sponsored by the police and fire departments, the Chicago park district police and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The Things People Swallow



Collection of articles taken from lungs and esophagi of human beings during the last ten years by a staff surgeon at Passavant hospital. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mostly from Babies

Some folks will swallow anything.

A collection of objects at Passavant hospital includes coins, bones, false teeth, thumb tacks, pins needles, buttons, copper wire, corn, peanuts, and even a doubled up teaspoon, which a staff surgeon has retrieved during the last ten years from lungs and esophagi.

Most of the persons aided were babies, although one was a woman in her late seventies. About half of the adults were men. One patient, a policeman, was in twice, both times for removal of meat from his throat. Tall, thin necked persons are the easiest to work with, the surgeon says, and those who have the ability to relax their throats are always welcome. A sword swallower would be ideal, especially one without teeth.

Of 150 cases aided by the Passavant surgeon, who also teaches at the Northwestern university medical school, about 75 per cent had some foreign body in the lungs, the rest were in the esophagi. In a few cases where the object swallowed was in the stomach, its progress was watched with a fluoroscope in the hope that nature would see to its removal. Nature usually did.

RUSSIAN FINDS A NEANDERTHAL AGE SKELETON

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, July 7.—A young soviet archæologist, exploring caves on the face of a high cliff in Middle Asia, has unearthed the skeleton of a Neanderthal man—the first ever to be found between Europe and Peiping. This is regarded as one of the most important discoveries recorded in anthropology. The skeleton is that of a child, 8 or 9 years old.

The archæologist is named Okladnikoff. His discovery became known tonight through Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian institution of Washington, who has been in Russia for a month and has inspected the skeleton and the material that surrounded it. All of this has been brought to Moscow.

"The discovery shows the wide dispersal of the Neanderthal man, who existed from, say, 140,000 years ago to 40,000 or possibly 30,000 years ago," Dr. Hrdlicka said. Other Neanderthal finds have been made in France and Palestine.

ONLY A BOARDER FOR 14 YEARS, SO HE ASKS DIVORCE

Calvin Confer, 71 years old, testified yesterday before Judge Robert O'Connell that for fourteen years he was treated merely as a boarder by his wife, Laura, 42, in her home at 2451 North Drake avenue. And during this time, Confer said, another man—actually a boarder—was the recipient of her attentions. Mrs. Confer and the boarder, who insisted his name was John Doe, denied Confer's charges. Mrs. Confer has a divorce bill pending charging cruelty, and her husband has countered with a cross-bill accusing her of misconduct. The judge awarded her $12 a week temporary alimony.

State Pensioner, 71, Dies; Find He Has Other Means

August Wennerquist, 71 years old, died of a heart attack yesterday in his room at 3162 North Clark street. Police said he had been living on a state old age pension of $30 a month, although papers, including a will, found in his room indicated he had substantial funds. According to police, Wennerquist had $1,800 in postal savings certificates, two $500 real estate bonds, and five shares in a building on Briar place.

Film Producer's Daughter Jailed as Trafic Violator

Los Angeles, Cal., July 7.—(AP)—Calling her a "spoiled child," Municipal Judge Byron J. Walters today sentenced Arlynne Sherman, 22 years old, daughter of Harry Herman, film producer, to serve six months in jail. Miss Sherman had pleaded guilty to charges of driving without a license and other trafic violations. Miss Sherman's lawyer filed notice of appeal, but she went to jail.

Nazis Meddle with Love; Nicaragua's Blood Runs Hot

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 7.—(AP)—University students held angry anti-Nazi demonstrations here today in retaliation for a reported Berlin order to a German citizen not to marry his non-Aryan Nicaraguan sweetheart. National guardsmen dispersed crowds attracted by the demonstrators, who made fiery speeches and picketed German stores. Handbills were circulated throughout the city calling upon citizens to refrain from patronizing German owned establishments.

FINDS MERIDA IS GHOST TOWN OF SISAL INDUSTRY

Yucatan Planters Once Basked in Wealth.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MERIDA, Yucatan, Mexico.—[By Mail.]—Merida, situated near the northern tip of the peninsula of Yucatan, is a ghost town of the henequen [sisal hemp] industry.

Arrow shows location of Merida, Yucatan.

The town was founded in the sixteenth century and is one of the oldest communities in the western hemisphere. Today it is the capital of Yucatan and is the fifth largest city of Mexico with a population of about 100,000.

In 1839 the first shipment of the henequen fiber, which is used for binder twine, bags, cordage, ropes, and matting, was shipped from Sisal, a little port on the northern coast of Yucatan, and thus got its name. Later Sisal declined and Progreso, which is twenty-five miles north of Merida, became the chief port of Yucatan.

Grows on Barren Soil.

Henequen, which is a close relative of the century plant, is a native of Yucatan. It is productive after seven years' growth and reaches heights of fifteen to twenty feet fully grown. The swordlike, fiber bearing leaves grow in clusters resembling the leaves of a pineapple. The best quality of fiber is from four to five feet long.

Henequen will grow in warm climates on barren, rocky soil and with only a minimum of cultivation. It was not until 1850 that the natives of Yucatan realized that their flat, poor country, which then produced just enough corn, beans, sugar cane, and other meager products to satisfy their needs, was a potential gold mine when used to raise the cash crop of sisal.

In the early days the industry was without competition and Yucatan controled the world supply. Year after year more and more henequen was raised and, as farming methods abroad and other developments created a constantly widening market, the price continued to climb.

"Green Gold" of Yucatan.

Sisal became known as the "green gold of Yucatan" and created such huge fortunes that the land owners did not know how much money they had. They enjoyed all luxuries, traveled the world over, principally Europe—though a few visited Mexico City—and sent their children to the best universities of America and Europe.

At the peak of the sisal industry, reached around 1915, town officials assert Merida was the world's richest town, per capita. An official remarked that the henequen planters could have paved the streets of Merida with gold and never missed the money.

Then the bubble was pricked. Just at the time that stiff competition in quality and quantity arose from British, Portuguese, and German colonies in Africa, the Mexican government stepped in and began breaking up the big henequen plantations. The breaking up of large scale production also resulted in a loss of markets.

Today a Languid City.

In 1915 Yucatan was shipping 1,200,000 bales [500 pounds each] of fiber annually. Today fewer than 350,000 go out. Thus Merida today is called by its citizens a striking example of what happens in a productive community when the government steps into private business.

From the quietness of the city, the lack of activity, the decaying walls of ancient buildings, one gets a feeling of being in the midst of unseen spirits.

BOONE COUNTY NATIVE DIES.

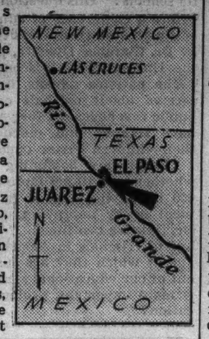
MEXICAN UNION CHIEF URGES CONFERENCE ON BRIDGE BLOCKADE

JUAREZ, Mexico, July 7.—(AP)—A Mexican blockade of two international bridges across the Rio Grande here continued unabated today. Proposals were made for a conference of Juarez and El Paso, Tex., businessmen over increased bridge tolls, which are the subject of the demonstration.



Arrow locates scene of bridge blockade.

All persons seeking to cross the river between Juarez and El Paso were affected by the blockade except doctors, government officials, newspaper men, and Juarez residents working in El Paso.

Eugenio Ortiz, secretary of the Juarez Chamber of Labor Unions, proposed the business men's conference as a possible means of influencing the El Paso Electric company to reinstate its former schedule of bridge tolls affecting street car fares. Union members worked in shifts at both bridges, refusing to allow El Pasoans who work here to enter the city.

BRITISH GUNBOAT DAMAGED BY JAP BOMBS IN AIR RAID

American Vessel Periled in Chungking Attack.

CHUNGKING, China, July 7.—(AP)—Repercussion from Japanese bombs blew in doors of the British gunboat Falcon and kicked up water over its lower deck today when the invaders ushered in the second anniversary of the Chinese-Japanese war with a moonlight air raid on the Chinese capital.

Four bombs exploded near the Yangtze river anchorage of the 400 ton Falcon. Others fell near the American gunboat Tutuila. The latter was undamaged.

Homes of Envoys Periled.

Other explosives narrowly missed the residences of Nelson T. Johnson, American ambassador, and Willys R. Peck, councilor of the American embassy, and the Canadian mission hostel, where more than twenty foreigners are quartered.

The raid, carried out by five successive flights of warplanes, caused fifty casualties among celebrating Chinese, who heard a message from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek that the war probably would be decided within the next twelve months.

Chiang told his people that the enemy "already has dug his own grave and it remains for us only to push him in; our enemy is making a last struggle and we may now inflict the most severe and final blow."

Tells Jap Hatred.

In Tokio, Col. Moriaki Shimizu, director of the Japanese army's information service, declared that "never in history have the Japanese people borne in their hearts such hatred for Britain as exists today."

In a long manifesto, containing the strongest language yet used concerning British-Japanese relations, Col. Shimizu voiced the contention that Britain primarily was responsible for China's continued resistance against Japan.

There was an anti-British demonstration in front of the British embassy in Tokio.

At Tientsin, where the Japanese are blockading the British and French concessions, another Chinese was found electrocuted by charged wires with which the Japanese have encircled the foreign areas.

Czechs Call on Students and Idle to Aid in Harvest

PRAGUE, July 7.—(AP)—The Czech government today ordered the marshaling of all available men needed to bring in the harvest throughout the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia. Students and unemployed workers are to be assigned voluntary farm work.

They were married in 1916. Mrs. Szymczak charged that her husband deserted her Aug. 10, 1935. She asks custody of their two daughters, Halane, 22 years old, and Mary, 17. Szymczak now lives in Washington, D. C.

PRESIDENT QUITS; SYRIA WITHOUT A GOVERNMENT

DAMASCUS, Syria, July 7.—(AP)—President Hashim El Atassi of Syria resigned today in protest against French failure to grant complete independence to the republic which forms part of France's Syrian mandate. The president's action left Syria without any central government since the cabinet already had resigned for the same reason.

Syrian nationalists expressed belief the French high commissioner would dissolve parliament and rule the country directly. The quarrel between successive nationalist governments, demanding that France ratify an independence treaty, and French administrative officials came to a head Sunday when High Commissioner Gabriel Puaux published a new decentralization program.

That program provided administrators for three important Syrian districts to be responsible to the French high commissioner rather than to the Syrian government.

NEW DIRECTION FINDER A BOON TO SHIPS AT SEA

OTTAWA, Ont., July 7.—[Canadian Press]—Ships at sea will be better able to get their bearings, with a minimum of interference from electrical storms and overlapping radio stations, when commercial use is made of a new direction finder developed and now being perfected at the national research council laboratories here.

The new direction finder depends on the eye rather than the ear. It utilizes a cathode ray tube similar to that for television reception. The device visually indicates the exact direction of the sending land station by a streak of light. Around the tube face is a dial calibrated in 360 degrees, which enables the operator to take the bearings of a couple of radio stations in a few seconds.

NAZIS TIGHTEN POLITICAL TIES WITH BULGARIA

Back Claim for Lost Land; Trade Pact Seen.

BERLIN, July 7.—(AP)—Nazi attention was centered on the Balkans again tonight as an official communique said Germany's political, economic and cultural ties with Bulgaria were to be strengthened.

Officials and the press expressed warm sympathy for Bulgaria's desires to regain territory she lost in the world war settlement to Rumania and Jugo-Slavia.

A communique was issued at the close of the three day state visit of Bulgaria's prime minister, George Kiosseivanoff, during which he had long talks with Hitler, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Italy Interested, Too.

It said the conversations dealt with "the general situation as well as specific German-Bulgarian questions" and were carried on in the "natural and traditional" spirit of friendship between the two countries. Italy was mentioned as sharing Germany's interest in Bulgaria.

An official said, "Germany intends to do everything it can in southeastern Europe to maintain stable conditions. With Jugo-Slavia and Bulgaria as friends we have reason to look with confidence toward the future."

An economic agreement between Germany and Bulgaria is understood to be under discussion. Nazi support of Bulgaria's territorial claims was seen as a form of pressure on Rumania, with whom the Nazis recently have been displeased because of her flirtation with the British and French.

See No Contradiction.

Jugo-Slavia, like Rumania, acquired Bulgarian territory after the world war, but as Nazis see it their backing of Bulgaria does not contradict their active courtship of Jugo-Slavia.

Nazis welcomed a statement by the Egyptian legation here, issued through D.N.B., official German news agency, which they interpreted as a slap at British policy and as strengthening their position in the Balkans. It said the Egyptian legation was authorized to declare that the Balkan trip of Egypt's foreign minister, Abbel Fatah Yehia Pasha, "in no way has an object of supporting or strengthening an encirclement policy against Germany." The statement also denied that Egypt had signed or intends to sign a military pact with Turkey, Britain's ally.

Alarm in Rumania.

BUDAPEST, July 7.—(AP)—Rumania, richest of the Balkan powers, was openly alarmed tonight over what diplomatic circles described as a German plan for a little axis in southeastern Europe.

Rumanians charged that the cordial reception given Bulgaria's premier, George Kiosseivanoff, in Berlin was indication of Germany's efforts to weld Bulgaria, Jugo-Slavia, and Hungary into a pro-axis bloc. Significantly, Rumanians said, Kiosseivanoff's visit coincided with attendance of Gen. Henry Werth, chief of staff of the Hungarian army, at German maneuvers. The regent of Jugo-Slavia, Prince Paul, made a similar trip to Berlin last month.

BRITAIN'S PRESS HINTS OF DEAL IN DANZIG DISPUTE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 7.—With Europe apparently entering a week-end of calm, reports published in London tonight suggested the stage was being set for some sort of deal between Germany and Poland for a peaceful settlement of the Danzig problem.

The idea was conveyed in seemingly inspired reports in the British press that if Reichsfuehrer Hitler allows the political atmosphere to cool the prospects for negotiations between Germany and Poland over the future of Danzig are rosy. It also was emphasized that British pledges to support Poland against aggression do not rule out a negotiated settlement of the Danzig dispute.

Count Edward Raczynski, Polish ambassador, will return to London tomorrow from Warsaw where he has been consulting Col. Josef Beck, Polish foreign minister, and other officials. Raczynski will see Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax over the week-end and he is expected to hand an important message to the British government, on the basis of which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will decide whether to make his projected statement on British policy toward Danzig to the house of commons on Monday.

Nazis Take Over Property of Catholic Charity Society

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, July 7.—All Ostmark [Austrian] branches of the Catholic Charitable society of St. Vincent de Paul have been taken over by the state with all their records, funds, and obligations, which have been transferred to the ministry of social welfare in Berlin. This tends to confirm the government's intention that all charities will be totalitarian and that Roman Catholic priests no longer will be allowed to administer them. In fact the word charity now is excluded from the Nazi vocabulary; the Nazi principle is that all relief emanates from the state.

GERMANY ORDERS PROTESTANTS TO CLOSE 3 SCHOOLS

Calls Theology Subject "Without Value."

BERLIN, July 7.—(AP)—Three of Germany's sixteen Protestant Theological schools today were ordered to close by Oct. 1 in a move which churchmen said was part of a Nazi campaign to push the church to the wall. Bernhard Rust, minister of education, issued the order.

Sees Coercion of Students.

No official explanation was issued, but the order coincided with an article in the Nazi magazine Nordland which declared that the study of theology was "without value and unnecessary."

The three schools are those of ancient Heidelberg university and the Universities of Leipzig and Rostock.

Nordland said 973 theology students matriculated at German universities this year and expressed the opinion that many chose theology "against their will and inclination," thus "choosing a vocation which for them and the community can be regarded as without value and unnecessary."

Has Powerful Backing.

The article continued: "We cannot believe that boys with a natural and healthy instinct see their life work as theologists instead of working for the resurrection and greatness of Germany in jobs fit for them."

Protestant church circles said efforts were being made to have the order rescinded. But their hopes were said to be slim because the decision was backed by three powerful Nazi district leaders—Robert Wagner of Baden, Friedrich Hildebrandt of Mecklenburg and Martin Mutschmann of Saxony, all of whom have resigned from the church.

COUPLE SOUGHT IN TAVERN THEFT.

Jack Hicks and his wife, Mary, each 30 years old, were sought yesterday on a complaint that they had stolen $5 and four cartons of cigarets from the restaurant and tavern of John Lobisher at 7802 Madison street, Forest Park, where they were employed.

JAPS PUSH BACK SOVIET FLANKS IN BORDER WAR

WITH JAPANESE TROOPS AT THE MONGOLIAN FRONTIER, July 7.—(AP)—Severe fighting apparently had halted Japanese-Manchukuan troops today in a drive against the center of the soviet-Mongol line, but the Japanese pushed both Mongol flanks back across the Khalka river.

A heavy battle was in its fourth day and the undeclared border warfare had potentialities of becoming worse. The Nomonhan region, southeast of Lake Bor, near the Khalka river, has become a no-man's land, where troops face each other 300 yards apart.

[Soviet Russian dispatches Thursday told of repulsing the Japanese in a smashing victory along the Khalka river. The soviet version was that the Japanese were routed after a four day battle from July 2 to 5. The soviet statement admitted the Japanese had forced back one Russian flank, but said a counterattack drove the Japanese back.]

Both Sides Well Equipped.

Both sides are well equipped with light artillery and tanks. Both have plenty of man power, but communication lines from the bases across the sticky plains are long.

Today there was a steady artillery duel near the confluence of the Khalka and Kholsten [Holstein] rivers. About a mile and a quarter away a continuous clatter of machine guns indicated the front lines around Nomonhan, with the Mongols apparently holding Noro Height. This meant that they had retreated some six miles.

The Japanese obtained a foothold on Balshogal Height, bordering the Kholsten river. They had a number of trucks at the base of the low, sweeping hill. The Mongols apparently were behind the crest.

Front Nine Miles Long.

The front stretches some nine miles along the Khalka, through an area to which both sides claim title.

I listened to shells screaming overhead while watching four Japanese planes bomb the far side of Balshogal without retaliatory anti-aircraft fire, or aerial action by the Mongols.

[A Japanese dispatch to Tokio yesterday said that in a new aerial encounter the Japanese had downed twenty-four planes over Lake Bor and lost one. Previously they had reported shooting down sixty-five in two days.]

Robs Loop Liquor Store of $200; Clerk's Shots Miss

The stranger who confronted Ben Zimmerman, clerk in a liquor store at 200 Randolph street had a pistol in his right hand and a paper sack in his left. He laid the sack on the counter. "Fill her up," he commanded. Zimmerman stuffed $200 into the bag and the stranger walked out. As he faded into the shadows the clerk ran out and fired five times. He missed.

LEAVE $10,000 IN STREET; TRUCK DRIVER FINDS IT

Police last night were on the trail of nearly $10,000 in securities accidentally left on the street by C. R. and Mrs. Gladys Killebrew when they left Chicago yesterday for their home in Detroit, Mich.

They had been vacationing in Chicago for a week, staying at 609 Drummond place. Yesterday they packed their car and drove away, but left a suitcase on the sidewalk. It was seen by the landlady, Miss Mildred Ellers, but before she could recover it a man driving a small truck picked it up. She made a note of the name on the side of the truck.

Last night the Killebrews telephoned her from Detroit. Learning what had happened to their suitcase, they immediately called Sheffield avenue police and told Detectives Harry Kalfee and Michael Richard that the suitcase contained $9,984 in government bonds, postal savings, and travelers' checks, none negotiable. The policemen traced the name taken from the truck, but the man was not at home last night.

DAFOE'S LAWYER ASKS DISMISSAL OF DIONNE'S SUIT

NORTH BAY, Ontario, July 7.—[Canadian Press.]—Arthur G. Slaght, counsel for Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, asked Judge J. A. S. Plouffe today to dismiss an action by Oliva Dionne seeking a court order to make the physician produce alleged contracts with four corporations.

The contracts, according to Dionne, involved the use of the names and pictures of the quintuplets, Dionne's famous daughters. Slaght said all contracts are either passed or rejected by the official guardian, Percy Wilson, including any that Dr. Dafoe, the quints' physician, might have.

Dionne's action opened before Judge Plouffe with the initial argument over whether the court had jurisdiction.

NAZI POLICE PICK SIX JEWS TO HEAD EMIGRATION BODY

New Union Will Speed Up Semitic Exodus.

BERLIN, July 7.—(AP)—Six Jews, selected by the Nazi secret police, tonight headed the machinery of the new reich's union of Jews in Germany, whose main task is to speed Jewish emigration.

All Jews, excepting foreigners, must belong to the organization. It was established by law yesterday and was worked out by secret police in cooperation with prominent Jews to promote an orderly and unified exodus.

Unifies Jewish Bodies.

Jews said at least five years would be required, even under the new arrangement, for Jews able to leave Germany to emigrate. They estimated the number still in old Germany [Germany without the additions of Austria and Czecho-Slovokia] at 380,000 and said the exodus was proceeding as fast as other countries could absorb them under immigration laws.

The new organization unified scattered efforts of the Jewish Aid society, the Palestine emigration office, and hundreds of Jewish communities throughout Germany.

731 Jews Still Held.

Heretofore these groups contacted official quarters through so-called reich's representatives. Under the new law, all groups will be combined into the union, which bears official character.

Informed Nazis disclosed that 731 Jews still were under arrest of the thousands rushed to concentration camps in the nation wide roundup after the murder last Nov. 9 or Ernst von Rath, official in the German embassy in Paris, by a Jewish refugee.

THE CITY SPEAKS!

By CALEB

FROM ten to eleven tomorrow night, radio waves, searchlight beams, Coast Guard cutters and other watercraft, wings of the Navy, and spoken commentary from representative officials of the governmental agencies planning, using, maintaining and protecting Chicago's huge waterfront — will be combined in an epic of identification focussed on that waterfront's civic highlights.

Set aside by mayoral proclamation as Navigation Day, the date marks our city's second annual adventure in telling aloud to its millions of citizens and guests the story, known to so few of us, that belongs peculiarly to its Lake front.

Who of us, for example, has learned, or really understands, the historic, scientific and human-interest facts behind our coast guard stations—our harbors—our naval reserve armory — our cribs and lighthouses — our beaches, locks and bridges? Navigation Day, with its night-illumined, radio-broadcast panoramic program of expertly described focal points such as these —will supply this special brand of knowledge of which most Chicagoans are ignorant.

Week-end crowds along the beaches, as well as in the motorcade procession north and south, will get their answers by eye and ear both. In the first instance, via a huge amphibian and trailer planes, decorated with lights, which will circle over the successively featured spots in a blaze of searchlight brilliance; and in the second, by WCFL radio talks from a cruising Coast Guard cutter, to be specially loud-speakered into lakeside parks and along beaches.

Two immense anti-aircraft searchlights — strategically positioned at Adler Planetarium and the Montrose-Wilson beach—will be trained throughout the hour on these circling planes, climaxed by a special illumination of each object of interest by the shimmering lavender shaft of the Palmolive beacon.

In its vast transportation medium on the east—Lake Michigan—Chicago possesses a natural ally of incalculable importance to its history and destiny. These Navigation Day ceremonies will offer a timely summary of what the city has done to take advantage of this resource for its own and its four million citizens' best interests.

ELEVATOR UNION BOSS UNDERGOES NEW SLAYING QUIZ

Kept Under Protective Custody by Guards.

Mathew Taylor, president of the Elevator Operators' and Starters' union, was questioned again yesterday by investigators for the state's attorney who still lean to the belief that Louis Schiavone was killed Wednesday because of troubles in the union.

Taylor reiterated his denial that Schiavone was connected with the union and insisted he did not know the man. Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's police, was skeptical.

He ordered that two guards, assigned to Taylor on Thursday, continue to hold him in protective custody until something more definite is learned about the motive of the killers. Taylor protested, to no avail, against the surveillance.

Killers Escape in Car.

Schiavone, who was an ally of Alphone Capone during prohibition times, was shot to death as he rode alone along 95th street in Oak Lawn. The killers fled in their automobile after the shooting.

The clew pointing to the elevator operators' union was a copy of a confidential audit of its finances, found in the slain man's car. There has been no plausible explanation of why or how he took possession of it. The matter was not touched on at an inquest called yesterday in the county morgue and continued to July 17.

A faction in the union recently sought by court action to oust Taylor and have the Building Service Employés' union, an international organization, take charge. The elevator operators, known as local 66, are affiliated with the international, headed by George Scalise of New York.

Seek to Learn of Deals.

Investigators would like to know whether Schiavone had any dealings with local officials or with Scalise and whether he had taken sides actively in a plot to muscle himself in on the rich pickings of the union.

In his younger days Taylor was an elevator operator.

In 1936 he sent questionnaires to all members of the union, requesting information on how they intended to vote. With the query he sent a letter in which he attacked Republicans and said they favored open shops and lower wages. Later he denied that he was on any Democratic pay roll. He said his organization was nonpartisan, but wanted Roosevelt reelected.

Last October he again urged union members to vote for New Deal candidates.

Funeral services for Schiavone will be held at 9:30 o'clock Monday in the chapel at 4050 Harrison street with burial in Mount Carmel cemetery.

WARDEN CLEARS GUARDS IN BREAK AT MICHIGAN CITY

After an investigation, Warden Alfred E. Dowd of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City said yesterday he does not contemplate disciplinary action against guards at the penitentiary in connection with an attempted escape by three convicts on June 27.

"It was one of those things that could happen in the best regulated prison," Dowd said. "It was a careful plot by the three convicts and none of the guards can be held responsible."

The convicts are Richard Sweet, a kidnaper; Alphonse Skusewich, a murderer, and Earl Niverson, a robber. In their attempted break they seized Mrs. Ruth Joiner, 25 years old, of Crawfordsville, a social worker, and kept her hostage in a prison office. Mrs. Joiner was wounded in the gunfire as state policemen closed in on the convicts. She is recovering in a Michigan City hospital. The convicts were wounded slightly. It was indicated yesterday that Leroy Hunt, another prisoner who has five months more to serve on a burglary sentence, may be released immediately because of his efforts to assist Mrs. Joiner.

GILBERT ORDERS QUIZ IN CICERO STREET KILLING

Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police yesterday assigned Capt. Frank Reynolds of his staff to make a special investigation into the death of Zygmund Zarzecki, who was found shot to death June 14 in a Cicero street.

Capt. Gilbert acted after Mrs. Gertrude Zarzecki, 27 years old, widow of the slain man, appeared before him with charges that the Cicero police were not coöperating in the investigation. Mrs. Zarzecki told Gilbert she has several letters in her possession which might throw light on the case and she was directed to bring them to the state's attorney's office today.

At the inquest Thursday Mrs. Zarzecki said she had received a letter saying that her husband was killed after he had lost $150 in a tavern and then got it back at the point of a gun.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In THE TRIBUNE of June 28 it was stated erroneously that Judge Benjamin P. Epstein dismissed a petition to reinstate a condemnation order and force the school board to pay $370,000 to the owners of 113 parcels of property in an area bounded by Mozart street, Albion avenue, Richmond street, and Pratt boulevard. Judge Epstein ordered expunged a court order entered by Judge Craig A. Hood on March 4, 1932, rescinding the condemnation order. Judge Epstein further ruled he had no jurisdiction to hear evidence that the city had used and occupied the land on a petition for writ of error coram nobis and he denied that part of a motion made on behalf of the property owners.

Super Organizer Seeks Reins of Chicago's Elevator Union

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The most spectacular achievement of George Scalise, who is reputedly aiming at a dictatorship over the Chicago Elevator Operators and Starters' union, was the tying up of service in 2,400 New York buildings with a strike in 1936.

George Scalise.

In that strike porters, janitors, boiler stokers, and chambermaids went out with the elevator operators. Scalise at the time was vice president of the Building Service Employés' union, an international organization. He was the moving spirit in the strike, which inconvenienced hundreds of thousands of New Yorkers for two weeks.

Heads International Body.

Now Scalise is president of the international, which stands in the relation of parent to local 66, the Chicago unit of the Elevator Operators and Starters' union. Observers have pointed out that if he gets complete control in Chicago as well as in New York he will become one of the most powerful figures in American labor.

Scalise is 41 years old. His home is in Brooklyn. He is known in labor circles as Poker Face.

From 1919 to 1929 Scalise was an undertaker in New York. He quit that occupation to become a union organizer. By early 1933 he was a notable figure in the Garage Washers' and Gasoline Station Attendants' union in Brooklyn. Garage owners complained that his methods against them were high handed and Scalise was questioned by the authorities in Brooklyn. Apparently no evidence was found against him, and the matter was dropped.

Organized Varied Groups.

For a time Scalise was a vice president of a New York local of the teamsters' union. He also found time to organize the insect exterminators, who do a large business here, and hospital workers.

His associates have referred to him as a superorganizer. It was reported that he went into the building employés' strike in 1936 with a $500,000 fund and was certain of getting more if he needed it. Jerry Horan of Chicago was then president of the building service international, with headquarters in Chicago. Horan died soon afterward, and in 1937 Scalise became president. There is still an office in Chicago, but headquarters is where the president stops.

His Ability Is Respected.

Scalise's abilities are much respected. There have been no charges of rule with the gun against him or his union in New York. Other labor groups here have had a more violent history. Like Chicago, New York City has its racketeers who will not stop at murder.

In February, 1937, Norman Redwood was slain at Teaneck, N. J. He was an official of a tunnel workers' union that had been in a quarrel with a rival organization of sandhogs. There was a great deal of fanfare in connection with the investigation, even Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York taking a hand, but nothing was accomplished, and the Redwood case, like nearly all labor slayings, is still an official mystery.

HARVESTER FREE UNIONS BATTLE NLRB

Moline, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Independent unions at the East Moline and Farmall Works of International Harvester company announced today that they have hired attorneys and will fight for their existence by opposing National Labor Relations board charges that they are company dominated.

Labor board charges based on C. I. O. complaints have been filed against the company and the case is being heard here before C. W. Whittemore, examiner. Robert Rissman, board attorney, questioned witnesses today in an attempt to link the independent unions to the company.

Daniel McGinn, former secretary of the Farmall independent union, was cautioned by the examiner for "failure to coöperate in answering questions."

"Don't you know you are under oath and that the labor board is an arm of the federal government?" he was asked by Whittemore. "Yes; but the federal government is my government as well as yours. I have rights," the witness replied.

Former officers of both independent unions testified organization expenses were paid by obtaining loans from credit unions. The loans were repaid from collected dues and not by the Harvester company, they said.

MOTHER FOUND; SEIZE FATHER OF ABANDONED BABY

Brighton Park police yesterday found the mother of the infant boy left last Sunday night in the rear of 3228 South Wood street. With only the figured house dress that the child had been wrapped in for a clew, they canvassed the neighborhood.

Mrs. Anna Cahill.

The investigation led to Anna Supula, 24 years old, 3258 South Wood street. She said the baby's father is Stanley Patchik, 29, with whom she has been living for almost five years. They have another child, Patricia, 3 years old, she said. The woman was taken to the County hospital.

Patchik, who was divorced last week from Lucille Johnson Patchik, 7008 South Ada street, and his sister, Mrs. Anna Cahill, were arrested. Mrs. Cahill was present at the birth of the child, police said. The baby is now at St. Vincent's orphanage.

JUDGES DRAW LOTS TO SETTLE VACATION TIME

Results of a drawing of lots conducted by the six federal judges of the Chicago district to determine the order in which they will sit as emergency judges during summer vacation, which starts July 15, was announced yesterday. Senior Judge James H. Wilkerson will sit from July 17 through July 31; Judge Michael L. Igoe, Aug. 1 to 12; Judge William H. Holly, Aug. 14-26; Judge Charles E. Woodward, Aug. 28-Sept. 9; and Judge John P. Barnes, Sept. 11-23. Judge Philip L. Sullivan drew the blank lot entitling him to an uninterrupted vacation. The court reconvenes for the fall term Sept. 25.

Confessed Safe Blower Arraigned on 4 Charges

Fred P. Fernsdorf, 39 years old, a former convict, was arraigned in Felony court yesterday on charges of burglary, larceny, automobile theft, and possession of explosives. The hearing was continued by Judge Eugene L. McGarry until July 18. Fernsdorf, who was arrested in a stolen car while carrying explosives, has confessed that he blew up two safes in the last three months.

THE CRIME CLOCK

Chicago's Record Since Jan. 1

LATER CURFEW STARTS MONDAY FOR NIGHT CLUBS

Beginning Monday restaurants and night clubs that have a special city license may serve liquor two hours later than the regular closing hours for taverns. Liquor may be served in restaurants and night clubs until 4 a. m. on week days and 5 a. m. on Sundays.

Louis F. Rixmann, city collecter, said that a number of applications have been made by night clubs and cafés, and that his office would be ready to issue licenses Monday. It is estimated that approximately 100 of the special licenses will be sought.

The fee will be $700 a year in addition to tavern and restaurant or amusement licenses. By council order tavern licenses expire on Oct. 31 and April 30. Capt. James Conlisk of Commissioner Allman's office said application for the licenses is not sufficient to permit owners to sell liquor for the additional two hour period. The license must be on the wall of the place of business, he said.

GRANT PAROLES TO 148 CONVICTS IN STATE PRISONS

The Illinois parole board yesterday ordered paroles for 148 prisoners in the state's penal institutions. Of that number 71 were convicted in Cook County Criminal court, according to W. C. Jones, chairman of the board.

One of the convicts who will be freed is Raymond Antonelli, alias Fred Colone, who was seized in November, 1934, with Jean Burke, former sweetheart of John Dillinger.

Antonelli and several companions were accused of robbery. He was sentenced to one year to life in prison. Records show that he served four years and three months. Miss Burke was not held.

Another to be paroled is George S. Gabriel, who with four confederates held up a New Year's eve party in 1932 and robbed a dozen guests.

2 C. I. O. Union Officers Held on Extortion Charge

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—Two officers of Local 329 of the Laundry Workers' Joint Board of Greater New York, a C. I. O. affiliate, were held in Queens Felony court today on a charge of extorting $50 from a laundry operator of Middle Village, Queens. The laundry operator accused them of demanding $1,000 on threat of precipitating labor troubles. David Greenberg of Brooklyn was held without bail. Bail of $5,000 was set for Louis Meninger, also of Brooklyn. Greenberg is business agent of local 329 and Meninger a collector.

2 Sentenced to Bridewell for Robbery of Homes

Two young men were convicted of burglary when they were arraigned before Judge Lambert K. Hayes in Boys' court. Richard Grautopf, 17 years old, 1322 East 61st street, was sentenced to fifteen months in the bridewell on two charges of stealing from homes. Harry Cummings, also 17, of 6545 Kimbark avenue, who accompanied Grautopf in one of the crimes, got a sentence of three months.

CITE GUN TOTING COURT RULE FOR HENNEMAN CASE

Seizure of Pistol Legal, Prosecutor Says.

Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, yesterday cited a recent decision of the Illinois Supreme court under which the state's attorney's office hopes to convict George Henneman, union official, on a charge of gun toting.

Henneman, head of the turbulent painters' union, has been arrested several times for carrying concealed weapons but has never been sent to jail. A conviction in 1937 for carrying a gun was reversed by the Illinois Supreme court on the ground that police had no right to search him.

Pistol Found in Pocket.

The union official's latest brush with the law results from his arrest June 27 as a suspect in a gasoline station holdup. Police found a pistol in his pocket. A revolver, a blackjack, a pair of rubber gloves, and a roll of adhesive tape were found in his car.

The victim of the robbery said Henneman was not one of the bandits. Police then charged him with carrying a concealed weapon. In a hearing Thursday before Judge Joseph Hermes attorneys for Henneman sought dismissal of the charge. They cited the Supreme court ruling freeing Henneman in 1937 and contended the finding of the revolver in his possession was illegal search by police. Judge Hermes continued the case until next Friday.

Prosecutor Crowley said the state's attorney's office will base its case under a ruling handed down last February by the Illinois Supreme court.

Seized as Murder Suspects.

In that case, Crowley said, two men seized as suspects in the murder of an Indiana policeman were found to be innocent of the crime. Police, however, found two revolvers in their car and the two were convicted on gun toting charges.

"The high court held," Crowley said, "that where a crime has been committed, police have a right to question suspected persons and may seize any weapons found even though the persons were innocent of the crime for which they were arrested.

"In our opinion the facts of Henneman's arrest are similar to the arrests in that case."

2D GRAND JURY TO BE CALLED IN ANNENBERG QUIZ

A second special federal grand jury will be called Wednesday to investigate possible charges of racketeering and monopoly against M. L. Annenberg, wealthy Philadelphia publisher and critic of the New Deal, United States District Attorney William J. Campbell said yesterday. A special federal grand jury has been studying Annenberg's income for the last five weeks. The regular July grand jury was impaneled Thursday.

When the three grand juries are sitting it will be the first time such a situation has obtained in the history of the United States District court here, according to veteran observers.

Campbell has indicated that if further unusual business comes up, he may send it to the federal grand jury at Freeport, Ill.

The two special grand juries will be concerned entirely with Annenberg matters, Campbell said, while the regular July jury which starts work Monday will handle routine business. The life of all three juries will continue through July and August.

INSANE GUNMAN FACES LIFE TERM ON NEW CHARGE

An indictment charging Frank Haines, an escaped convict, with being an habitual criminal was returned yesterday by the grand jury before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley in the Criminal court. The habitual criminal count was included with a charge of burglary. If Haines is found guilty he will be sent to prison for life.

Haines, 37 years old, was seized last May 27 when he shot two patrons of a tavern at 651 Madison street some time after he escaped from the institute for the criminal insane at Lima, O. He is known as a hater of policemen. A search of the state's attorney's files disclosed he was wanted for the burglary of the Parkside avenue station of the North Western railway on Feb. 9, 1938. Chief Justice McKinley set the bond at $25,000.

PLACED IN STATE HOSPITAL AFTER ATTEMPT TO KILL

Edward M. Dressden, 36 years old, who attempted to drown himself and his two children in the lake at Delaware place last Sunday, yesterday was committed to the Chicago state hospital at Dunning after a hearing in the county Psychopathic court. Dressden, a former WPA worker, was prevented from drowning himself and his son Eugene, 7 years old, and daughter, Patricia, 2, by Mrs. Yolanda Fabbri, 23 years old, of 2144 Congress street. Dressden's wife, Mary, who lives at 167 Hill street, was present at the hearing yesterday.

Murder Verdict Returned in Tavern Death Inquiry

A verdict of murder was returned yesterday at an inquest into the death of Mrs. Helen Rach, 28 years old, 7835 Bennett avenue, who was fatally wounded May 20, when she and her husband, John, were sitting in a tavern at 942 East 79th street. Three shots were fired into the window of the café from an automobile. One struck Mrs. Rach and another slightly wounded Theodore Coffey, 34, of 8242 Maryland avenue, a waiter.

STRIKE HOLDS UP GENERAL MOTORS SECURITY PLAN

More Walkouts Lift Idle Total to 6,000.

Detroit, Mich., July 7.—(AP)—General Motors corporation tonight announced immediate suspension of its employé income security plan. It stated that a strike of skilled workers threatens to delay production of 1940 models and bring idleness to thousands of production workers.

The income security plan provided for advances by the corporation to employés to avoid complete loss of income to eligible employés during periods of enforced idleness. It was designed to help workers during slack seasons in the automotive industry and did not apply in case of strikes or circumstances beyond control of the corporation.

6,000 Are Idle.

Announcement of suspension of the plan was made by William S. Knudson, General Motors president.

The strike, called by the C. I. O. branch of the United Automobile Workers' union, applies only to skilled workers preparing for production of the models. They are tool and die workers, engineers and maintenance men. Attempts to settle the dispute apparently made little progress today and walkouts increased the number of idle employés to approximately 6,000.

Knudson Tells of Issues.

Knudson asserted that General Motors had negotiated with C. I. O.'s U. A. W. but rejected its demands for the skilled workers. He added:

"This strike is not on account of low wages or bad working conditions. Such conditions do not exist in General Motors plants. The situation is another chapter of the jurisdictional fight between two factions of the U. A. W. [The other faction of the U. A. W. is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and led by Homer Martin.] Only three weeks ago we had a similar experience with the other faction.

"We have negotiated and are still willing to negotiate with the representatives of any group of our employés, but we cannot negotiate the provisions of an existing contract with either of the two factions of the U. A. W. as long as both claim rights thereunder, until the court, or the national labor relations board, to whom we have addressed a petition, has established, as a matter of law, which faction is the responsible party to that contract.

MAKE 1ST ARREST UNDER INDIANA'S HOMICIDE LAW

The first arrest in Lake county, Indiana, of a motorist under the new Indiana state reckless homicide act was made by Gary police last night with the seizure of Miss Mary Melrose, 50 years old, of Cleveland, O. Her automobile killed Mrs. Elizabeth Gough, 72 years old, of Lafayette, Ind.

Miss Melrose was booked under the act, which went into effect July 1. It is an addition to the involuntary manslaughter act, but unlike the latter does not require an element of unlawful negligence. The involuntary manslaughter act could be applied only where a motorist ran through a signal, was drunk, or was speeding or the like.

75 ARE MADE ILL AT BATHING POOL BY CHLORINE GAS

Utica, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—Seventy-five persons, fifty of them children, were overcome by chlorine gas fumes at the new Addison C. Miller municipal swimming pool late today.

Joseph Kitsmer, operator of the pool, said the victims, many of whom were in the water, became affected when a change in the wind swept the fumes from a nearby storage tank which an attendant had opened preparatory to connecting it with the pool chlorinating system.

Most of the victims were taken to Faxton hospital for treatment and overnight observation. Three were believed to be in serious condition.

WIFE AWARDED DIVORCE FROM STUART LOGAN

Mrs. Lolo Bilgere Logan, 45 years old, of 209 Lake Shore drive, was awarded an uncontested divorce on grounds of cruelty yesterday from Stuart Logan, investment broker. Mrs. Logan testified before Judge Rudolph Desort that her husband struck her on Sept. 15, 1936, at a house party in Marine, Minn., and again on Dec. 30, 1938, in their home. They separated on the latter date. They were married in 1928. Mrs. Logan's attorneys announced she will receive an out of court settlement in lieu of alimony. Logan, who is 50 years old, is the son of Mrs. Frank G. Logan, a wealthy art patron.

MRS. ANDREA LUCKENBACH DOBBS.

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Andrea Luckenbach Dobbs, who left a Long Island estate with twenty servants for love in a $55 a month cottage, had an extra $2,000 today to make the cottage more livable.

The 19 year old heiress to a shipping fortune said in a court petition yesterday that her young husband, Billy Dobbs, earned just enough as a commission salesman to pay living expenses, but that she needed a maid, an automobile, and some additional clothes.

The extra allowance was granted from trust funds. Her father, Edgar Luckenbach, cut off her allowance when she married Dobbs.

MERCURY BOBS UP AND DOWN IN A PECULIAR WAY

Shifting winds, generally from the south, yesterday sent the temperature in Chicago skittering about in erratic fashion. The mercury went downward from 80 at midnight to 73 at 5 a. m., then back to a high of 89 at 12:51 p. m., down to 84 at 1 p. m., back to 88 at 2 p. m., and down again to 80 at 4. At 5 p. m. it started back up again and at 6 it was 87. At 10 p. m. it was 86 and at 2 a. m. it was 85.

In the southwest it still was sweltering yesterday. Phillipsburg, Kas., topped the nation with 111 degrees. Bemidji, Minn., the "icebox of the nation," had a top of 83. Most of the temperature of 100 or more occurred in Kansas, northern Texas, Oklahoma, western Arkansas, and western Missouri. Most of New England likewise was wilting. Augusta, Me., reported 95.

RULING ON MILK CASE DEMURRERS DUE NEXT WEEK

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward said yesterday he will rule Thursday on demurrers entered by the fifty-seven corporations which have been indicted on charges of violating federal anti-trust laws in the milk and ice cream industry. Judge Woodward heard arguments on the demurrers June 7 and 8 and then took the matter under advisement. Letters announcing that the ruling would be made Thursday were sent yesterday to Leo F. Tierney, special assistant United States district attorney in charge of the case for the government, and to defense counsel.

C. M. T. C. RECORD IS SET BY 1,600 RECRUITS FOR '39

Sixteen hundred young men have enrolled for the Citizens' Military Training camp which opens at Fort Sheridan Tuesday. Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell, commanding the fort, said this is the largest number on record. The camp will last a month. The recruits come from Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. Sixty-seven officers of Chicago's 318th cavalry regiment reserves left the fort during the afternoon for an overnight trip to Diamond lake, 12 miles west of the fort, near Mundelein.

MONTREAL LINK TO TRANS-OCEAN AIRWAY DELAYED

Lack of Weather Data Is Blamed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—Although Canadian Colonial Airways were given permission last April 7 to fly across Maine in operating a line from Montreal to Moncton, N. B., it was learned today that the service has not yet begun.

According to information received the difficulty of getting weather reports has delayed operation of the proposed airline. The vast northern areas of Canada are virtually without weather observation stations.

Lack of weather observation facilities recently held up the first flight of officials over the northern Atlantic route. The Pan-American Airways clipper was held up at Shediac for three days because of uncertainty over weather.

Feeder from Montreal.

The proposed new Canadian line will virtually bridge the gap between Montreal and the trans-Atlantic air bases of Shediac and Botwood, Newfoundland. Moncton is but a few miles from Shediac and a short flight from Botwood. It has a well developed port and may become an alternative base for British trans-Atlantic planes.

Permission to fly over Maine was won by the Canadian line only after opposition of state authorities was overcome. The Canadian line agreed to observe all American flying regulations during the nonstop flight over the northern portion of the state.

Return Concessions Not Granted.

Although the Canadians won the permission they sought, they showed no disposition to grant as a return concession permission to American interests to fly from Boston to either Shediac or Montreal.

The Canadians have also shown no interest to suggestions for a service between Chicago and Shediac or Botwood.

At the Civil Aeronautics authority here it was said that relations with Canadian air officials are most friendly. However, no hope was held out for overcoming Canadian prejudice against extension of American airways to or through Canada.

GLIDER EXPERT LANDS IN 'CHUTE AS WING SNAPS

Elmira, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—Lieut. Robert M. Stanley, instructor in blind flying at the Pensacola, Fla., naval air station, escaped injury today when he leaped from his sailplane in his parachute after falling 1,500 feet. Stanley bailed out at 1,000 feet after the left wing of his glider crumpled in a spinning dive.

Stanley's parachute caught in a tree approximately seventy-five feet from the ground at the edge of the national soaring meet field. The ship, a single place model with a V-shaped tail, designed by himself and valued at $1,500, hurtled to the ground, a total loss. The accident removed Stanley from further competition. He recently set a new American glider altitude record of 17,624 feet.

Clifford Youmans, 17 years old, 5109 Kimbark avenue, was presented with a silver lifesaving medal yesterday for his rescue of one of two youths whose sailboat capsized in the lake off 59th street last March 24. The presentation was made by Commander G. W. MacLane of the Chicago coast guard in the new postoffice building. The rescued youth was Russell Benson, 17, of 4965½ Lake Park avenue. His companion, James Ammons, 15, of 6609 Drexel avenue, drowned.

LAW TO CONTROL MENACE OF RATS GOES TO COUNCIL

Hearings to Be Held Next Week.

Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel, yesterday turned over to Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th] a draft of a model "ratproofing" ordinance which is proposed for incorporation into the building code. Ald. Ross is chairman of the city council committee on health. He said the committee would begin public hearings on the proposed ordinance next week.

The measure would make unlawful the construction of any buildings in Chicago not secure against vermin, thereby curbing the growing menace of rats. Owners could be forced to ratproof existing buildings to destroy rodent breeding places. Board of health officials recently asserted that rats consume or destroy approximately 7 million dollars worth of property in Chicago each year.

Concrete Basement Floors.

Basement floors, 3 inches thick, of concrete or other ratproof material, would be required. Foundation walls, of a minimum thickness of 6 inches, would have to be of concrete or masonry and hermetically sealed to the floors. The proposed ordinance also requires that the foundations extend two feet below the level of the basement floor and one foot above.

Wall spaces in all buildings must be closed by cement or some other impervious material to prevent rats from going from one floor to another. Ventilators and other openings, except doors and windows, must be screened by heavy wire mesh.

Rules for Storing Foodstuffs.

A special section in the proposed ordinance is devoted to buildings where foodstuffs are stored. All floors in these structures must be ratproofed and tightly sealed to the walls. Lumber and boxes now stored on the ground must be placed on platforms.

The proposed ordinance will not increase the cost of buildings, Hodes said. Most of the provisions, he explained, are already included in the building code under fire prevention sections. It was necessary, however, to make a special section for ratproofing which will be enforced by the board of health.

BOY, 17, AND GIRL OF 12 RUN AWAY TO WED; SEIZED

Donna Hornberger, 12 years old, and Leo Lambka, 17, ran away from their homes in Battle Creek, Mich., last Sunday to get married. They hitched rides through Michigan, Wisconsin, and Illinois. Yesterday morning they were arrested in Highland Park. Lambka told Policeman Michael Bonamarte that they hadn't got married yet, but are still planning on it. He said he had not known Donna's real age until Thursday. They were held for Battle Creek authorities. Donna is a seventh grade student. Lambka admitted that he served 125 days in jail at Centerville, Mich., last year for stealing an automobile.

DIES OF INJURIES AFTER FALLING OFF MOTORCYCLE

Todd Moreon, 29 years old, 4160 Ellis avenue, died in Michael Reese hospital yesterday three hours after he was thrown from the rear seat of a motorcycle driven by Fred Durkin of the same address. The accident happened at State and 31st streets.

Raymond Bock, 25, of 13 South 2d street, Highland Park, died in the Highland Park hospital of injuries suffered June 25 when his motorcycle turned over in Deerfield road, near Skokie highway.

Russell King, 45, a farmer living near Albion, Ind., died in Evangelical hospital yesterday of injuries incurred earlier in the day when he was struck by a car driven by Leo F. Radzienda, 31 years old, 4731 Ada street, at 4311 South Halsted street. Radzienda was not held.

Quille Mitchell, 3 years old, colored, 3026 Prairie avenue, was killed yesterday when he was struck by a truck at 31st and State streets. His sister, Murtice, 5, also was knocked down but was only slightly injured. The driver was Murell Hammons, 40, colored, of 4543 Indiana avenue.

Russell Mackey, 22, 3749 Magnolia avenue, and Miss Caroline Rogers, 19, of the same address, were injured last night when they crashed the motorcycle on which they were riding into an automobile in a parking area near East 14th street and the Outer drive in Grant park. They were taken to St. Luke's hospital. The driver of the automobile was Stanley Pluta, 20, of 712 Grenshaw street.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 419 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 325 were killed in Chicago, where 10,657 were injured in the same period.

FINE DRIVER $254 FOR 5TH OFFENSE IN FOUR YEARS

Ben Dryfhout, 33 years old, 3416 Oconto avenue, was fined $254 on his fifth appearance in four years in the Oak Park police court yesterday. If he is unable to pay the fine—and Dryfhout fears he can't—he'll have to serve one year, one month, and one week in jail, as he will be credited with only 50 cents a day if he works out the fine in the County jail. Dryfhout was sentenced by Thomas W. Barrett, justice of the peace, on charges of reckless driving and driving without a license. He was arrested July 5 in Madison street, Oak Park. The record showed that Dryfhout had been fined $2 for speeding on May 21, 1935; $2 for running a light July 30, 1935; $8 for speeding on Nov. 19, 1937, and $10 last May 26 for speeding.

Municipal Judge Lambert K. Hayes yesterday placed Casimir Janusik, 17 years old, 1709 Kimball avenue, under court supervision for one year for leaving the scene of an accident. Janusik was arrested June 26 after his car struck and injured Richard Hartl, 9, of 1723 Crystal street.

CAMBRIDGE WOMAN DIES AT 91.

Cambridge, Ill., July 7.—[Special.]—Mrs. Anna Talbot, 91 years old, died here yesterday. She was born in Sweden but lived eighty-seven years in Cambridge. She is survived by three daughters, a son, and twenty-five other descendants.

SEWER CHIEF STUDIES BLASTS WHICH KILLED ONE AND INJURED FIVE

Thomas D. Garry, city superintendent of sewers, began an inquiry yesterday into two explosions earlier in the day at the Wieringa Brothers Cartage company, 2203 Harrison street. Ben Wieringa, president of the company, was burned fatally and five other men suffered burns in the blasts.

Garry was investigating the possibility the explosions were caused by the accidental ignition of sewer gas. Lieut. Thomas Sheridan of the Marquette police reported finding a slight leak in a pipe line from a gasoline tank in the basement.

The inquest yesterday into Wieringa's death was continued to Aug. 24. He was 57 years old and lived at 1448 South 59th avenue, Cicero. The others burned in the explosions were John Wieringa, 1034 South Mason avenue, a nephew of Ben Wieringa; John Lanenga, 2034 13th street; William Sabbia, 2118 Flournoy street; Nick Wierema, 2211 Harrison street, and Angelo Canonico, 725 South Leavitt street. Lanenga and Wierema were taken to the Garfield Park hospital.

POLITICAL DOLLARS.

Work relief funds have created a new form of vote getting machinery. Politics has always been organized by patronage. Even small public jobs have been regarded as highly desirable and the job distributor is usually the most important man in the political subdivision. Frequently he is the shrewdest fellow. He need be if he is to be successful, because he must try to confer favors without creating ill will when they are not given.

In the ordinary run of politics an organization may keep itself in office many years if it can make a skilful distribution of lucrative positions and avoid arousing the active opposition of the mass of citizens. New Deal spending transformed patronage from petty to big business. Every dollar that left the treasury had a vote getting potential.

The dollars went out in many directions and they reached every section of the country. Some of them went to farmers for reducing their crop acreage and complying with other department of agriculture requirements. Some went to contractors and their workmen on monumental jobs, the edifices which Mr. Roosevelt is erecting in steel and concrete as mementos of his reign.

Some of the dollars went to home owners. Federal dollars go to the old people for pensions, matching state dollars. They flow out in other directions, going to young people in college and to boys in the CCC. They have flooded into the Tennessee valley. Every city and village, every metropolitan and rural community in the country has been put in direct connection with the federal treasury within the last six years. The WPA alone averages a pay roll of about 2 billion dollars a year. American politics never before knew anything like this.

Wherever the public dollar goes it carries a vote getting influence. Even if the funds were handled with the utmost scrupulousness and unimpeachable integrity, the spending on such a scale would to some degree corrupt the political judgment of the beneficiaries. Their good judgment would be weakened and although they might at times reflect that they were voting themselves into a final payoff which would be most unpleasant they might still desire to defer the day when the extravagances should be stopped and take a chance that they could enjoy the subsidies and grants a while longer.

Accumulated evidence proves only too convincing that the distributors of the public funds have not been men of unquestioned political integrity. They have used the money for vote getting purposes without regard for the decencies. The Sheppard investigating committee was only one source of information revealing this scandal. It has been aired in debates in the houses of congress and it has been presented to grand juries. The New Deal has used destitution and distress as a political leverage. It has made many of the voters feel that their livelihood depends upon the way they vote.

The highest officials of government have not hesitated to tell the people that they had already been remunerated for what they were expected to do at the polls. Mr. Roosevelt himself has made a point of his many contributions to states which he expected to gratefully vote as he asked them to do. Senator Barkley of Kentucky was only one of the candidates favored by Mr. Roosevelt who rode back to Washington in a golden chariot.

Such practices test the principles of a democracy with a strain of temptation which only the stoutest moral characters can resist. It is a test which threatens not only the country's economy and its financial structure but also the political standards and the idealism of the whole people.

INCENTIVE TO MURDER.

When Louis Schiavone was murdered in his automobile the other day he had in his possession a copy of a recent audit of the books of the Elevator Operators' union. The police have been trying to find out how he came to have the report in his pocket and what he was going to do with it. The murdered man is known to have been associated with Capone in the alcohol racket.

The elevator men's union is said to have 3,700 members and its annual revenues have been estimated at $100,000.

The incident underlines the need in this state for laws requiring a periodic accounting of union funds. Corporations are required to present their stockholders with certified audits and, of course, banks, insurance companies, and all such institutions must do likewise. The management of trust funds is subjected to state supervision at all times. Union funds are not similarly regulated although they are of much the same sort. They are held in trust for the benefit of the members.

Because no accounting is now required gangsters are encouraged to attempt to shoot their way into control of the unions. Once in, the hoodlums are at liberty to take their cut from the dues and assessments without any one being the wiser. The union treasurer, to be sure, generally presents his annual or semi-annual financial report, but there is no requirement in law that this report be published or audited.

If there were such a requirement the control of many of the unions would not be as rich a prize as it now is. Honest union officials would have nothing to fear from a law requiring a periodic accounting of union funds. Dishonest, grafting officials might have much to fear and that is as it should be.

PIGS AND PROSPERITY.

The Chicago Association of Commerce is trying to find out what ails Chicago business. Its leaders should read with care a story that appeared in the business section of THE TRIBUNE concerning the nation's pig production this year.

The cotton states are growing more pigs this year than in any year on record. Their farmers turned to corn and hogs when they limited cotton acreage in return for AAA bonuses. There are no restrictions on corn-hog production in their states. The farmers of the corn belt, in return for similar AAA bonuses, are limiting corn-hog production. They, however, cannot turn their idle land to cotton in this climate.

The department of agriculture reported that the corn belt produced 9 per cent fewer spring pigs this year than it did in 1933, when the era of scarcity economics started. The sixteen south Atlantic and south central states produced 23.9 per cent more spring pigs than they did in 1933. In the corn belt 17.7 per cent fewer sows have been bred for fall farrowing than were bred in 1933. In the cotton belt 39 per cent more sows have been bred than were bred in 1933.

Assuming fall litters of average size, Chicago live stock men estimate that this year the corn belt will produce 7,760,000 fewer pigs than it did in 1933. The cotton states will produce 5,080,000 more pigs. Instead of being paid by the government to reduce production in order to raise prices, corn belt farmers have really been paid to turn a substantial part of the pork market over to cotton belt farmers. The cotton belt farmers have been paid, in turn, to relinquish their export market to Brazilian, Egyptian, and other foreign cotton raisers. The field hands they no longer need are coming to Chicago to live on relief.

Chicago would not pack all of the 7,760,000 pigs that the corn belt has lost this year, but it would pack a substantial proportion of them. Its factories would supply most of the agricultural machinery to cultivate the corn for those pigs. The railroads that have their headquarters and shops in Chicago and buy their supplies here would haul them. La Salle street would finance much of this business.

Corn belt pigs are the life blood of Chicago business and industry. One thing that ails Chicago business and industry today is Secretary Wallace and his scarcity economics. His program is robbing corn belt farmers of a substantial part of the market that their farms were best fitted by nature to supply. It is forcing thousands of Chicago workmen, in the stockyards and packing houses, on the railroads, and in their shops, and in hundreds of related lines of business, onto the relief rolls.

PARKS AND SPEEDWAYS.

Mr. Dunham and the WPA have had a good part of Lincoln park upside down for better than six months, and residents of the north side are becoming apprehensive that they may never get it right side up again.

The inconvenience they are suffering may not be entirely unprofitable, however, if it will impress on Chicago a lesson that the city has been too long in learning. That is that parks and speedways are largely incompatible. Speedways and superhighways are instruments for going places. Parks are places to which you go.

In the horse and buggy days the park drives were an essential part of the parks. They were something to go to. People went driving as they went bathing or picnicking. The curves that remain to plague motorists enhanced their charm. They were not important thoroughfares so much as they were part of a recreation area.

It is easy, of course, to trace the error that mixed the speedways with the parks and which has so depreciated their value as parks. The rights of way, being public, were inexpensive. The high cost of condemning private property was avoided.

But when the speedways moved in the parks in many instances ceased to be parks. We went to great expense to put a park outside of the Illinois Central tracks on the south side to let people get down to the lake. Then, at greater expense, we built a second, motorized, Illinois Central barrier right at the edge of the lake, so that the trafic to the lake interferes with motor trafic on the outer drive, while the outer drive makes it hazardous to try to reach the lake.

Parks and speedways each defeat the other. If Chicago does not learn this lesson soon it will have no parks worth the name, and its superhighways will be overexpensive, second rate, and inefficient, as they are now where they run through parks.

Editorial of the Day

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The ghost writer is no modern gadget. He has been with us a long time. On the word of Senator Ashurst of Arizona a fellow named Corax conducted a school somewhere in Greece, back in the fifth century B. C., which provided inarticulate industrialists with versatile and creative secretaries who could make words dance across blank pages, with or without dictation.

Corax is a total stranger to some of us. Even so, we are prepared to accept him on the credentials of Arizona's man of quaint and curious and elegant letters. After all, Corax antedated only by a comparatively brief span the accomplished Plato, whom many have suspected of doing much of Socrates' stuff. And while stepping briskly through the golden age, it occurs to us that Pericles never really "wowed" the men of Athens with his speeches until he had married Aspasia.

It seems, too, that our admirable founding fathers occasionally called in a ghost writer. Michigan's learned Senator Vandenberg, so Mr. Ashurst reveals, is persuaded that Alexander Hamilton was the author of Washington's farewell address. If so, it is only another evidence of the soldier-statesman's unerring acumen. In choosing Hamilton for the task, if he did, Washigton selected the premier polemist of the hour; in other words, the best man for the job. If the engagement, however, were a matter of fighting, not writing, Washington attended to it himself.

So, thanks to Ashurstian research, we now know that Charley Michelson is no late flowering phenomenon. The ghost writer has, through all the ages, haunted the house of man.

Aquatic Chicagoana Mystery.

The Chicago yachting fraternity is interested in the boat shored on South park property near 51st street, but no one seems to have information about it. Tommy Thompson finally supplies a description. The boat is a twenty-four foot sloop painted gray, and is located about 200 feet north of the wading pond at 51st street and the outer drive. On the stern, in metal letters, is the inscription:

DAL

* * *

Our own hunch is that it may be the boat a young Pole and two companions sailed across the ocean in 1933, going from Poland through the Kiel canal to the North sea, thence across the English channel, and across the Atlantic. We met him shortly after his arrival, a tall, handsome lad with a harrowing tale of the storm encountered near Bermuda, and the shattered nerves of one of the three after they had been tied into their bunks for three days. He had sailed the boat up the Great Lakes into Chicago waters to A Century of Progress Exposition. But perhaps it wasn't that boat. Who knows about the sloop near 51st street?

Solution of Word Puzzle.

As I see it (while I sit in my den, perusing Doc Byrne's contribution in the Provines province) Wrigley field is the proper site for the fluttering championship flag. No matter how hard each of the other teams tries (and, of course, all will strive earnestly), the Bruins must win. I assert only the truth, or veritas, as Mr. Mussolini might style it, when I aver that the Cubs are truly far more versatil in all departments of the great game than their present standing indicates. Most of my friends and relatives agree with me in the belief that even now Gabby Hartnett's efforts to revitalise the temporarily dormant team are being crowned with success. When fully revitalised the Cubs, with their remarkable record for coming from behind, may march on steadily to another championship.

* * *

Note by author of the word puzzle:

The Standard Dictionary spells versatile without that final e, and so does the new International Dictionary in the relatively new second edition. As to the other word the spelling of which might be questioned, Oxford Dictionary shows that revitalise is one spelling of the word. Even the old new International gives the terminal ise as a variant of ize.

ARGENTINE TAXPAYERS GROAN

BY HAROLD TATAM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina.—The costliness of mismanaged economy, which appears to be difficult to distinguish from the managed variety, has been brought home here to its "beneficiary"—the taxpayer who has to foot the bill.

Few persons realized, when told that exchange control would prevent a drainage of national wealth, that it would entail a rise in the prices of imported articles without a corresponding reduction in the cost of anything else. Later, when they learned their sacrifices in this respect were providing the government with an income of millions of pesos a month, their feelings were mollified somewhat by the thought that the money would insure a minimum price to the wheat growers.

Later they learned that, as world prices had kept well above the minimum price guaranteed to the growers, a huge sum was accumulating with which to construct sorely needed grain elevators. Then they reflected they were providing for a rainy day and were suffering for a good cause.

With the lapse of time and the advent of a lean year in which much of the government's hoard has been expended in paying a minimum price fixed at so high a figure that no justification can be found for it, the taxpayers learned there is little likelihood of the grain elevator dream becoming a reality.

They were also told by President Ortiz that, although the abolition of exchange control is a most desirable thing, circumstances were such that "it would be insanity" to attempt it.

The result appears to be that Argentina managed economy, which has admittedly been an expensive luxury, has benefited no one with the possible exception of an army of burocrats and builders of costly edifices.

Most of the population has come to the conclusion that managed economy is not what it was cracked up to be.

DIARRHEA WITHOUT DISTRESS.

A FAIR number of our friends—normal in every other respect—will complain of chronic diarrhea. The great majority are not ill and present no signs of indisposition. They carry on their work perfectly, are alert mentally, and look well. Nevertheless, they have from two to six or eight watery stools daily. The habit may have persisted for several years, and other than drinking a little more fluid than usual or craving salt there may be no disturbance whatsoever of the even routine of life.

The condition cannot be ascribed to nervousness, apprehension, or worry, although we know that a single episode may fall to the lot of any one who is faced with a particularly nerve wracking task. Neither is it colitis, albeit many of these individuals will come to the physician with the statement: "Doctor, I have colitis and something must be done about it." An examination will disclose that there is no excessive quantity of mucus, no infection, and no blood. If, in addition, X-ray studies are made neither a spastic [contracted] nor dilated intestinal tube will be found.

Fortunately, a generous proportion of these persons can be helped and every case should be investigated with a view to locating the "starter." We know that there are two outstanding causes. One is related to the absence of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice, the other to overactivity on the part of the thyroid gland. The tests for these conditions are so simple, so readily interpreted, that there should be no hesitancy on the part of medical men to employ them. If the acid is missing it is an easy matter to supply it and after two or three weeks of restored digestive functions all symptoms may vanish. If the metabolic rate shows plus 30 or higher, attention to the thyroid may solve the problem.

But we must not forget that many of us are sensitive to some particular food. While we all realize that this or that edible may not "agree" with us, only a few are able to identify or eliminate the offender. We must admit, then, that there is allergic diarrhea. In such a situation, loose movements may occur at any time during the day or night and four or five evacuations may succeed each other rapidly. Chocolate is the worst culprit, while veal, pork, certain fruits and vegetables, and oils follow in the order of importance.

There are two methods of procedure. One is to eliminate the causative article of diet, and the well known recourse of keeping a diary may be the means of securing the answer. In this the patient records faithfully everything that he consumes and notes the exact time of bowel response. The other is to render the colon less sensitive through the administration of large doses of calcium or moderate portions of sodium ricineolate.

Many will relate that the trouble began shortly after some fairly sharp bout with a malady, such as influenza. Here—because of lowered resistance—more organisms may set up their establishments within the intestinal tract and produce a substantial amount of irritation. Of particular significance is loss of weight. In these instances the use of vaccines made from bacilli found growing in the bowel or the elimination of nests of germs may prove helpful.

Finally we must not overlook the possibility of a true food deficiency. Many of the victims who fall within this classification are disciples of some unsound dietary fad and the resulting departure from the normal balanced régime has persisted so long that the entire scheme of digestive regularity has been upset. Surprising enough, anemia more frequently characterizes this group. It is often necessary to give prompt attention to the blood before attacking the question of proper eating. High vitamin menus then are called for. Acid as well as cod liver oil with plenty of well cooked, fresh vegetables [including calcium in some quickly assimilable form] are essential.

It goes without saying that no long continued bout with diarrhea should go unchallenged. While in some the explanation may be concealed beyond discovery, in others the solution may be so obvious that we would be derelict indeed not to find it.

ILLEGAL RESIDENCE.

Chicago, July 6.—[Friend of the People.]—A friend of mine emigrated to this county from Buenos Aires, Argentina, after being there two and one-half years, under a different name. He left Buenos Aires the 4th of June and arrived at New York on the 23d of June, 1924. He has been a very good resident under his name, has his own business and owns property. Can he take out citizenship papers under his own name? J. F.

Under the facts stated, it appears that the subject is residing illegally in this country, although not deportable. Under existing legislation, only those aliens who entered the United States prior to June 3, 1921, and have not been absent from the United States since that time, and of whom there is no record of legal admission for permanent residence, may apply for legalization of their residence here. There is a bill pending in congress to extend this privilege to those aliens who entered in this manner prior to July 1, 1924. At the present time the subject is not in a position to proceed toward citizenship unless and until he departs from the United States and makes a legal reentry for permanent residence.

COURTESY THE RULE.

Chicago, July 4.—Answering the letter entitled "Impudence on the 'L,'" I wish to voice my view.

I am a ticket agent for the elevated and since the day I was hired I have been taught that the utmost in courtesy should be exercised at all times. I have worked for the company for two years and during this time have always tried to the best of my ability to guide and help all passengers, including strangers such as the one mentioned in the letter I refer to.

I think the writer was unfair in condemning all ticket agents just because she was mistreated by a woman who must answer from 500 to 700 people out of 1,400 to 1,500 daily, who ask questions which are sometimes foolish.

Ill-mannered and impudent women are quickly disposed of in public places and are absolutely ineligible for jobs on the elevated.

We are, and I speak for all "L" agents, always happy to help strangers and certainly do not intentionally mistreat or misguide any one. PEGGY.

THE SWASTIKA.

Chicago, July 4.—Dispatches tell us of the sudden discovery by explorers in faraway Tibet that the swastika was in ancient use among the Tibetan tribes. Reminded that years ago I read a research brochure on the use of the swastika among ancient and modern peoples, including our own Indian tribes centuries ago, I reached for my dictionary and read that "swastika" connotes welfare, from the Sanskrit—that is su well + asti being. Otherwise written svastika.

An ancient symbol of well being, but now look at it! Filched from the temple, pawed over greedily with rough and sanguinary hands, ruined, debased—it will never be the same again.

PAUL MAY.

ARROGANT SOCIAL WORKERS.

Oregon, Ill., July 6.—I desire to protest against the publication of screeds similar to that from Dorothy G. Williamson in today's TRIBUNE. Typical barnacles have sufficient instinct to prompt them to operate in comparable obscurity, below the water line, but these compensated devotees at the altar of human misery, battening luxuriously on elemental poverty, relegate to their sponging sphere a haughty arrogance, insulting to the sense of proportion of persons of competence, taxed to keep these sheer hosed, "professional social worker" parasites as an inhering adjunct to the New Deal régime. "Obviously, you know nothing about social work or those in its service." Isn't that deplorable? FRANK R. ROBINSON.

BARRED FROM LAKE FRONT.

Chicago, July 5.—Fishermen are required to purchase a license to fish in the waters of Illinois. I see no reason why they should be barred from fishing the waters of Lake Michigan. My son and I went to the lake to fish and to my surprise I was ordered away from the lake by a policeman who told me we could not fish anywhere between Randolph and Roosevelt road. Now can you tell me where we west side people can go? O, well, they got our 75 cents for licenses and let the big shot yacht owners and speed boat operators have the lake to themselves. A FISHERMAN.

HISTORY REPEATING ITSELF.

Chicago, July 5.—With England's supremacy challenged once again, and the usual sequel "war" in the offing I quote the World's Chronicle under date of Nov. 13, 1909:

"Germany is growing rapidly in industry, in power and in wealth.

"Not long ago Germany had but few manufactures, and her exports were insignificant. But today things are different. Germany has grown so fast that she is now the first commercial and industrial rival of England in many parallel lines of production. She has already outstripped Great Britain in her production of iron and steel, and her progress and wealth are hurting the commerce of Great Britain.

"Of course England does not like this. She has held first place in the commercial world for a long time, and, naturally she does not want to be surpassed by another nation. This rivalry between the two nations is causing a great deal of talk about war.

"It was by war that British sea dominion was built up. She warred with Spain, with Holland, and with France. And in all probability she now thinks she can hold first place by making war on Germany, hoping in this war to destroy German trade and crowd German wares out of the markets of the world."

Once again England's supremacy is challenged, but this time by more than one nation. We shall see by the turn of events that she will war upon or cause some other nation to war upon the most potent of her commercial rivals.

HOWARD E. PETERSEN.

OUSTS HOT DOG WAGON.

Chicago, July 3.—My husband's employer is going out of business, so he got himself a hot dog wagon. Being a good American citizen he wanted to be independent and not go on relief. What happens? Just as he is getting acquainted and building up a little business, last night a police car pulled up and ordered him off the corner. My husband pleaded, having over $7 worth of material which will spoil. "Sorry," said the officer, "these are orders from downtown and must be carried out." Maybe you can tell us who is to blame. M. L.

INDORSES A STRIKE.

Chicago, July 6.—I see that "workers" on WPA are going on strike. Won't you please use your influence in trying to get them all to strike? This is one strike that would be a blessing to the taxpayer.

R. M. LAMBETH.

KNICKKNACKS FROM JAPAN.

Chicago, July 5.—Recently Mr. Bear growled about souvenirs of national parks and monuments being made in Japan. But while it was sacrilege to his mind, Mr. Bear overlooked several minor details.

The articles to which he refers would not be on sale if there was not a demand for them. They are made of antimony, which is plentiful and cheap in Japan and can be sold at a cost which cannot be duplicated by American manufacturers. Mr. Bear could probably buy the souvenirs made in this country but he would have to pay four or five times as much for the same article. After all, the Japanese made items do fill a need.

What difference does it make if a few knickknacks do come into this country from Japan? Every nation makes what it is best equipped to do. If Japan can manufacture souvenirs and crockery more cheaply than other countries, why not let her do it? Let the United States expend her efforts and capital on manufacturing articles which it is best able to do, automobiles for example. If we don't buy Japanese trinkets how can they buy our automobiles?

LES B. FAYRE.

AN EXCLUSIVE WPA CLUB.

Chicago, July 5.—Your article today listing WPA personnel in Indiana at a monthly salary of over $100 a month is illuminating. But this preponderance of supervisory personnel is old stuff to the rank and file of WPA workers.

Here on a Lincoln park WPA project [30077] some 50 to 60 laborers at $60 a month have been laid off; the reason, "insufficient funds." Almost immediately several so-called supervisors were added at $125 a month and up. Of course funds are short for the lowly.

Let's hear from others where this situation exists and smoke the whole matter out in the open and break up this exclusive club.

ONE OF THE SUCKERS.

GETTING BIRTH RECORDS.

Chicago, July 7.—Regarding a recent letter in your columns on birth record requirements: I have learned through a county clerk that it is possible to establish a birth record acceptable as official by writing to the United States bureau of census in Washington and telling where one was located during the census years, beginning 1900, 1910, etc. If one's census record verifies one's present age it may meet requirements.

Miss Shumway Will Bow at Dance Tonight

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE weather will play an important rôle in the debut dinner-dance the Edward DeWitt Shumways are giving tonight for their daughter, Grace. The party is planned as an outdoor one at the Onwentsia. There is no prettier setting near Chicago for a dance than the club's outdoor dance platform with the swimming pool at one side and a vista of sweeping golf course on the other.

Mr. and Mrs. Shumway and their bud, who through her maternal great great grandfather, Matthew Laflin, is a fifth generation Chicagoan, will receive in the clubhouse. Among the guests will be the Shumways' house guest, Miss Mary Jo Baxter of Newport, R. I., a classmate of Miss Shumway's at Vassar. The bud will return to college in the fall.

Miss Shumway and her younger brother, Edward Jr., who attends St. Paul's, and their parents will go to Charlevoix, Mich., for August. The Shumways will entertain again for their daughter during the Christmas holidays.

Miss Shumway and Miss Baxter will be among the guests tomorrow night at a dinner Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling are giving at their home in Winnetka for their debutante daughter, Peggy, and her guest, Miss Louise Stillwell of Washington, D. C.

Garden Party Benefit for Lake Bluff Orphanage.

If it should rain today the garden party planned for the benefit of the Lake Bluff orphanage will be postponed until tomorrow. Mrs. Alden B. Swift and Mrs. Lithgow Mitchell are co-chairmen of the committee that has arranged the annual party. As usual, it will be given at Belorme, Mrs. Harry M. McIntosh's Lake Forest estate.

Lucia Winston is in charge of a pet show to be held at 10:30 this morning.

At 2:30 there will be a fashion show with Miss Anne Jay Bryant, Miss Edith Cowles, Miss Betty Keith, Miss Joan Reid, Mrs. Peter Moon, young Mrs. Philip D. Armour, and Mrs. John J. Borland as models. Mrs. Michael Cudahy is in charge of the models and Mrs. Harrison Manierre is directing the show.

Daughter Is Born to Mrs. Cassinerio.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering became grandparents for a third time yesterday when a daughter was born to Mrs. Ambrogio Cassinerio [Edna Doering] at the Alice Home hospital in Lake Forest. The baby's father, Capt. Cassinerio, learned of the birth by cable to Italy. The infant, who will go to Italy with her mother this fall, has been named Edna Jeffery after Mrs. Doering.

Mrs. Harold Hartog [Nancy Doering] who came from her home in Paris for a short visit with the Doerings, will return to France this month. The former Virginia Doering and her husband, R. Martin Stevenson, became the parents of a daughter, their second child, last month. The Stevensons live in Lake Forest where Mr. and Mrs. Doering have taken a house for the summer.

The Joseph T. Ryersons and their younger children are leaving today for California to spend the rest of the summer in their Santa Barbara home. Miss Mary Ryerson will join her parents later.

Mrs. William Turpin and her little son, Leonard, left Thursday to join her father, John R. Leonard of Winnetka at his camp in the Adirondacks. Mr. Leonard, who has been there since June 1, will come back with them after Labor day.

Junior Charles S. Deweys Move Into New Home.

So anxious were the Junior Charles S. Deweys to live in their new home on the Shore Acres grounds that they moved in about two weeks ago, although the place is still swarming with decorators and plasterers. They will, however, have plenty of opportunity to enjoy their new surroundings for they do not plan to come back into town for about six months.

The John P. Kelloggs and their children are in Vancouver for the summer. They purchased a ranch on Salt Spring Island last year as a summer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Taylor and their daughter, Miss Helen Taylor, will sail today from Vancouver for Honolulu.

Among the many guests the Alexis Thompsons will entertain this summer on their inland island at Morrisburg, Ont., will be Miss Suzanne Morris, who is going east on Aug. 4. Miss Morris' parents, Dr. and Mrs. Chester F. Morris, and their elder daughter, Miss Jane, are spending two weeks at Grand Rapids, Minn., a hundred miles northwest of Duluth. They are occupying a hunting lodge that belonged to the late David Joyce.

About 600 are expected at the Knollwood club's world's fair party tonight. Among those who have made reservations for dinner are the junior William Bartholomays, the Donald F. Boweys, the David Molloys, the John W. Coffins, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Collins, the James D. Cooneys, and the George R. Bensons.

The Intrepid Artists who annually exhibit their works at Lydia Lee's in Lake Forest have set tomorrow as the day upon which they will let their families and friends see their "masterpieces." Four to seven are the hours. Among the artists are Mary Aldis [Mrs. Arthur T.], Christabel Wheeler [Mrs. Ward], John L. King, Barbara Mechem, Peggy Burrows, Paul Harper, Helen Hasler [Mrs. Edward L.], and Edward H. Bennett.

Miss Gloria Gartz Becomes Bride

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Jack Vilas Jr. was Miss Gloria Gartz until yesterday, when she was married at Jerseyhurst, the summer home at Lake Geneva of her parents, Mr. and Mrs Adolph Frederick Gartz Jr. of Chicago.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

From the note book:

The latest word on hair styles, gleaned from Paris and New York, is that they will be high in front but low in back. We saw some sketches that showed it very low indeed. Vertical curls down the back of the neck, topped by clips or bows, are beloved by the Parisians who are already wearing the 1880 gowns distinguished by peplums or bustles.

The hair ornaments are too fantastic for words. We saw two, right off the boat, in a Chicago shop that are breath-taking. One was a butterfly contrived of black lace and thin gold; the other a spectacular, rather large shell-like ornament of tinted mother of pearl.

For your tanned hands, try nail lacquer in a dead white. It's the kind of innovation you have to dress up to. You must be truly chic or the effect will be just funny looking. It's being used on both toes and hands by the women with extremely deep tan coats.

We've always wondered why the nonsticky type of sun preparation wasn't packaged with an atomizer. Some one has finally thought of it. One of the beauty houses has a new lotion that tans and protects and that's applied in a brand new way. You simply spray it on, thereby achieving perfect "coverage" and a curiously cooling effect. This lotion, incidentally, has a nice fragrance, just a little spicy and quite pleasant in hot weather. But it's the spraying idea that we like best of all.

Heat Brings Increase in Gifts to Ice Fund, but Need Is Still Great

Earlier in the summer Chicagoans with comfortable incomes may not have realized the need for the free ice fund supported by readers of THE TRIBUNE. The oppressive heat of the last two days, however, has started contributions for the fund pouring in to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Twelve contributions, totaling $73.20, were received yesterday. They bring the fund's total to $256.30, and are:

Mrs. W. W. Forrester	$25.00
Mrs. Carrie Guthmann	10.00
In Memory of Marion Wittman	10.00
John Dre	5.00
Mrs. Albert Colworth Jr.	5.00
Anonymous	5.00
Anonymous	3.00
Mrs. Jeneva A. Lyon	3.00
Dad's Girl	2.30
Anna Kablitz	2.00
Susan King White	2.00
Barbara Burlin	1.00

Requests for free ice far exceed the contributions, however. The requests from every congested area of the city are hopeful, heart-rending. A gift of $1 will answer one of these pleas for a week; that is, it will provide a week's supply of ice for one family. Donations should be sent to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., Tribune Square.

A jungle dance, the first formal dance of the summer season, will be held this evening at International house, 1414 East 59th street.

4th Generation of Family Wed at Lake Geneva

A shower after the wedding rehearsal yesterday morning made Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Frederick Gartz Jr. decide that they had better make provisions to transfer everything—elaborate decorations, dance pavilion, and food—across the lake from Jerseyhurst to the Lake Geneva Country club. Fortunately, however, the sun shone in the afternoon and the wedding of their daughter, Gloria, and Jack Vilas Jr. was held as planned, on the veranda of the Gartz home. About 400 assembled to hear the Rev. E. A. Batchelder of Lake Geneva's Episcopal church read the service. White flowers decorated the porch and indoors there were white ones and also blue lillies of the Nile.

Miss Gartz was the fourth generation of the family of the first Richard T. Crane to be married at Lake Geneva and the third to have had her wedding at Jerseyhurst, the summer home of various members of the Crane family since 1879. Mr. Gartz Jr. and Miss Jeannette Jennings, parents of yesterday's bride, were married across the lake from Jerseyhurst, at the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Jennings of Chicago.

Yesterday's bride, tall and statuesque, wore a simple gown of white satin and a tulle veil held to her dark hair by a coronet of valley lilies. The same delicate flowers and white orchids were used for the bridal bouquet. For "something borrowed" she wore Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell's pearls, a gift on the latter's 16th birthday from her Grandfather Crane. Mrs. Maxwell and Mr. Gartz are cousins. For "something old" the radiant young bride carried a lovely old lace handkerchief carried by brides of several generations in the family of Mrs. Henry H. Porter III.

Barbara and Jeannette Jennings, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jennings and cousins of the bride, carried the train. The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Louise Corley, Miss Janet Goss, and the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. Ward Vilas and Miss Sue Vilas, wore white net, the skirts trimmed with appliqués of apple green, short green piqué jackets, and large white hats with green streamers. They carried yellow gloria roses. The maid of honor, Miss Gail Gartz, and the matron, Mrs. Harry G. Nye Jr., were dressed the same as the maids except that their appliqués, jackets, and streamers were yellow.

Hundreds of Japanese lanterns, strung in the trees across the great stretch of lawn between the Gartz and Maxwell houses, provided light in the evening, when there was dancing on an outdoor platform. Refreshments were served at small tables on the lawn.

WEDDING

The marriage of Miss Adele Alexander, daughter of Mrs. David Alexander of 1653 East 55th street, to Marvin Hirsch of Chicago will take place on July 29 at the Drake hotel. Mr. Hirsch is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving M. Hirsch of New York City.

If you would keep the home wheels running smoothly and stay on top of your mechanical servants, keep the booklets which come with them. Your dozen and one electrical appliances and equipment, from washing machine and ironer to dish washer and vacuum, all need attention from time to time.

Keep on hand a supply of the greases and oils which the manufacturers specify for their special products. Keep a notebook in the same drawer with these tubes and cans and directions, and jot down date of "next lubrication."

This thing we call lubrication is half the battle of successful and low cost maintenance of so many of our mechanical aids.

By Mae Tinèe.

Good Morning!

Suave, aware, and unperturbed as though no storms of worry had been sweeping over his life for the last few months, Jack Benny sees to it that everybody has a good time at his new screen party, "Man About Town."

Rather, I should say that he and Rochester see to it—for Rochester is much and merrily present and is, according to some folks' opinion, pretty much the whole show. [Whether Mr. Benny meant him to be is problematical.]

The picture is an airy concoction, bubbling with gags and foaming over with a song now and then. Laurels go to Betty Grable for her singing and general all around pep. Dorothy Lamour is sticky by contrast—and she really should do something about her finger nails, which look like bloody talons and give one the creeps. She could also, to advantage, trim her eyelashes and wipe some of the goo off her mouth.

The first reels are devoted to the sort of skit business that you hear Mr. Benny and Rochester [Eddie Anderson] indulging in over the radio. Pretty funny. Later on Benny, who, in the story pursues his feminine star [Miss Lamour] without in any way intriguing the lady's interest, lands with his troupe at the country home of one Lady Arlington, with whom he would have his heart's desire believe he is carrying on an affair. . . . He wots not that Lady Arlington has a husband, great, BIG husband! [Edward Arnold] and that same, though indeed immersed in business, is also pretty crazy about his wife. . . .

Well, lots of comical happenstances occur at the Arlington tepee. One Monty Woolley as a French business man contributes generously to the merriment of the observer. Plenty clever people in the cast.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

The Play Is the Thing.

Hollywood, Cal., July 7. — When "On Borrowed Time" was previewed at Westwood village theater last week, the significant point was that 1939 will go down in movie history as the first in which the movies learned how to transpose a stage play to celluloid.

Heretofore, the movies have paid a king's ransom for stage plays, without ever getting back the inherent value. . . . "Stage Door," for instance, was bought by the movies for some $200,000. . . . The movies rewrote the play at considerable expense, used only the title and the locale.

"Sailors Beware" was brought from the stage by Paramount for heavy dough, and though close to 1 million dollars was invested in the property to make it usable, it never was released. . . . "Room Service," a smash Broadway hit, was purchased for $225,000 by the movies, but when it got to the screen it was just a fair-to-middlin' comedy. . . . "Having a Wonderful Time," an emphatic stage hit, was a screen flop.

It reached such a point that Hollywood, which had been bankrolling Broadway stage productions, hastily withdrew from the field, half convinced of the futility of transferring stage hits to the screen. . . . "On Borrowed Time," then, is important in creating a new thought, because the strange fable of Death up a tree comes to the screen with all of its major points intact. . . . Lionel Barrymore, as Gramps; Sir Cedric Hardwicke as Mr. Brink, and Bobs Watson, as the grandson, project the charming absurdity with the same skill that characterized the stage version.

It should be one of the fine movie successes of the season, because the spiritual implications of the play, and the consolation which its theme offers, arrive at a time when this poor old earth, torn by hatreds, is searching for a palliative.

Hollywood's first reaction was that the theme would be over audience's heads. . . . It is this reporter's conviction that the picture is right down the alley of every audience in the world.

"On Borrowed Time," however, is not an isolated instance of Hollywoods' newly discovered success with stage play adaptation. . . . One of the smash hits of the cinema year, both from performance and box office return, is "Dark Victory." . . . The fact which cheers Hollywood is that the successful picture was a stage flop because as a play on Broadway, in 1934, even the box office potency of Tallulah Bankhead couldn't keep it going beyond fifty-one performances. . . . The same thing happened with "Jezebel," which collapsed after thirty-two performances on the Broadway stage, and yet became a movie gold mine.

The Warner studios, in truth, deserve an accolade, not only for "Dark Victory" and "Jezebel" but also for "Juarez," a film document based on the stage play, "Juarez and Maximilian." . . . The same studio, pursuing this new conception of treatment of stage plays, turned the stage play "Fly Away Home" into the hugely successful "Daughters Courageous."

The tremendously successful "Judge Hardy's Family" series at M.-G.-M. must be considered an important part of the record in behalf of Hollywood's ingenuity. . . . A letter from Hyman Adler, who produced the original on Broadway, should be considered exhibit A: "The original for the Hardy series was the play, 'Skidding,' a comedy I produced on Broadway in 1928, which ran for eighteen months, finally being sold to M.-G.-M. for $7,500. As a matter of record, Carlton Macy originated the Judge Hardy rôle on the stage, and Charles Eaton played Andy.

"Through the run of the play appeared at intervals a cavalcade of performers well known now in Hollywood: Marguerite Churchill, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Glenda Farrell, Walter Abel. Marion Gering, who directed the play, has had success in Hollywood; and so, too, the author of Skidding,' Aurania Rouverol."

In the Hardy series the movies not only transferred a stage play to the screen, but then elaborated it into a series of pictures that measure up to the original.

The answer to all of this, I guess, is that the movies have reached a maturity of effort. . . . Continuous influx of stage directors and writers to the movie colony has aided in a deeper sympathy between the legit stage and the screen.

In line with this newly won facility you might consider, too, the 1939 movie success in the treatment of novels and books. . . . "The Citadel," one of the fine pictures of the year, was Director King Vidor's adult treatment of a book that had aroused intense discussion. . . . "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" was Director Sam Wood's elaboration on a tiny volume of nostalgia. . . . "Gone with the Wind" will be one of the sock pictures of the year, although it presented every known problem because its tremendous popularity exposed Producer David O. Selznick to the back seat heckling of every one who had read it.

Warner's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" was the screening of Leon Turrou's book, and it is important because the stage has yet to produce a fairly good picture built around the Nazi theme.

Williams' 'Job' Is a High Point of Music Year

BY CECIL SMITH.

At Ravinia last night the focus of attention was divided between the first appearance at the north shore pavilion of Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, duo-harpsichordists, and Sir Adrian Boult's direction of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the first local performances of Vaughan Williams' "Job" and Arthur Bliss' "Introduction and Allegro."

"Job" proved to be one of the high experiences not merely of the summer but of the entire year. Characterized as "a masque for dancing," the score was written in 1931 for a ballet based upon the biblical story of Job's trials, and built upon movements suggested by William Blake's famous illustrations for the Book of Job. The score, of symphonic length, consists of nine picturesquely titled episodes, in which Job and Satan are the chief characters.

Vaughan Williams' music reveals his profound sympathy for and understanding of the musical expression of earlier times. The Gregorian scales of medieval church music are used freely, as are such pre-classic dance forms as the sarabande, the galliard, and the pavane. Whenever the action introduces either Satan or his cohorts the score makes prominent use of the interval of the augmented fourth, or tritone—an interval called "the devil in music" by medieval theorists, because of its harsh sound, and forbidden in all sacred music.

All in all, "Job" is a remarkable synthesis of archaic and modern styles, illuminating the ecclesiastical nature of the story and yet placing it clearly in a modern context. Sir Adrian conducted with that quality of mastery reserved for the few who are able wholly to identify themselves with the music they are setting forth, and the orchestra played gloriously.

It would be news indeed if the Manuel and Williamson performance of Bach's Third Concerto for two harpsichords, in C minor, had not been a thorough delight to the audience. The pavilion was more than kind to the fragile tone of the instruments. Sir Adrian reduced the orchestra to a mere dozen strings, and achieved an unusually perfect balance.

The harpsichordists played with gusto and assurance. In the slow movement, however, an unwonted excess of rhythmic license lessened the grace of Bach's spontaneous and simple Sicilian rhythm.

The majestic Vaughan Williams work rather overshadowed Mr. Bliss' "Introduction and Allegro." I could not heartily like the score, which seemed to have more energy and orchestral fury than substantial musical ideas.

New Record for Whistler Painting Set in London

LONDON, July 7.—A new English auction record for a Whistler painting was set at Christie's today during the sale of the late Sir Edmund Davis' collection. Knoedler's gave 6,405 pounds [about $30,000] for the picture "At the Piano," showing the artist's sister playing, with a girl in white leaning on the piano. It is understood the famous picture will now go to America. The previous English auction maximum for a Whistler picture was 5,040 pounds [about $23,587], given for "Sir Henry Irving as Philip II. of Spain." This is now in America.

THE FAIR

Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Gruenwald, in a café in Vienna hear a radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian Taylor, has been staying in Franz's home, studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. Josef von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leave his wife Gisela, and son Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a pro-Nazi woman surgeon in love with Franz, warns him to send the American girl home. Her brother, Karl, is a Storm Trooper. Von Plasy is taken off to jail to die from shock. In order to take Gisela's money out of the country to deliver to her friend, Emil Wiedermann in Riga, Marian invests it in rare stamps. Herr Speyer, the stamp merchant, guesses her purpose, but is sympathetic and asks her to deliver a picture to a friend of his in Riga, a Mme. Lonska. Marian leaves without telling Franz her purpose. Franz loses his job. When Leopoldine secures one for him he accepts it for the sake of his dependents. Marian learns Herr Wiedermann is in love with Gisela and wants to arrange for her and Johann to come to Riga. He takes her to call on Mme. Lonska, who insists that Marian stay with her. Marian realizes that Mme. Lonska is a spy and that she thinks Marian also is one and that the picture from Herr Speyer was a message in code. Marian returns to Vienna. Leopoldine threatens to have Franz fired from his job.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

AN OFFER OF HELP.

"I have been hoping to hear from you," Herr Speyer said, after ceremoniously kissing Marian's hand. "Naturally I was interested in your mission."

"It was entirely successful. Also the friend into whose keeping I was instructed to give the stamps, handed them over to a Riga dealer. He was able to tell me before I left how generous you had been to me."

Herr Speyer was pleased. "I wouldn't have done that for every one, you know—particularly some one who doesn't appreciate fine stamps. But —O well—you have a way with you."

"I can't thank you enough. That's what I came to say. If I can't appreciate the stamps I can appreciate such wonderful help and generosity. It means a dear friend can live her life with—with the dignity she has been accustomed to. Also, I safely delivered your beautiful little picture to Mme. Lonska. She, too, was very kind to a stranger. In fact, I stayed with her."

"Because she was kind—just like you. She knew I wanted to stay at the beach for a few days and she would not recommend the hotel accommodation. I enjoyed it enormously."

"You found her well?"

"She seemed to be. I've never met any one so full of vitality. She sent you a message. I was to tell you not to write letters to her. She loves the little stamp pictures, but she does not want letters."

Marian regretted she had given him the message, such a look of distress showed in his face. So briefly, however, that she wondered after if it were anger.

"That was a very peculiar thing that she told you to tell me. Was that all she said about it?"

"Yes, quite all," said Marian trying to sound casual. "But, of course, her great charm is that she is so peculiar, I mean it gives her a very interesting and unusual personality."

He nodded and pursed his lips as if he were thinking. Marian pointed to a tawny orchid with tigerish markings in it. "This reminds me of her."

"I will give you one," he said turning away to find his flower scissors. "Not that one, but this white one which is more in keeping with your bright youth." He snipped it before she could protest. "There. Now you must go and wear it at the opera."

She took the crisp beautiful bloom into her hands, but he did not wait for her to thank him.

"The opera! The only thing we have left, and for how long? No chance any more to hear the great artists, the great conductors. Grosser Gott, that I should live to see the curtain fall on Vienna."

"I've often thought," said Marian admiring the snowy texture of the strong white petals, "that Vienna must have been the loveliest city in the world before the war. I wish I had known it then."

"It was. It was the only place a man of culture would desire to live in. And music was the breath of it. Ah well, you do not want to be saddened by the long memories of an old man on whom another curtain will soon be falling." His movement towards the door was a gesture of dismissal. "If you need more help at any time be sure to come to me."

"Thank you. Thank you very much. But the thing is done. I have no more problems about taking out money."

She could only thank him again and leave him watching her go down the garden path from his sunny doorstep. He looked very frail in his old silk smoking jacket and his embroidered tasseled cap with a thin blue-veined hand shading his eyes from the dazzle of the sun.

Franz did not appear for the brief lunch interval he usually snatched from his work at the hospital. He was sitting looking into the eyes of Leopoldine in a café in the Alserstrasse. Searching them to try and determine if what she was saying was what she meant. He was too forthright in his own character to remotely conceive the complexities of Fräulein Doktor's egotistical, desirous Napoleonic soul. She had desired Franz originally in a state of infatuation, her profession and her Hitlerian ideology attaching paramount importance to strength and virility of body. On winter skiing expeditions in what she called pre-Taylor times, he had stood out among a splendid young company as the most magnificent of them all. A young Viking.

Her mood had changed. His experiences due to the anschluss had added something to him, while taking nothing away. His face now indicated the premature crystalizing of his personal force. His mind was also worth conquering. He had come overnight into his maturity. And one did not conquer a man's mind with the tactics with which one laid siege to his body. She was now behaving as if Franz were at fault for taking her seriously.

A man of lesser caliber, more experience in sex affairs, would have noticed that she was merely acting her unusual rôle of cheerful serenity. Seen by her physical restlessness, her nervous crushing of cigarets less than half smoked immediately to light another, that she was actually in a highly emotional condition.

Franz was more to her now than a superb physical specimen offering tremendous sex experience—more even than the ownership of a worthwhile man—he was a symbol of everything she held dear. Possession of him was important to her ego. Loss would represent failure. Deeper down than she cared to look was also another factor. Although her distinctive appearance, and the vitality her egotism gave to her personality, produced an impression of beauty, she did not consider herself beautiful. This because she worshipped the Nordic ideal of extreme fairness. She hated Marian Taylor for her phenomenally pure white skin and natural golden hair. Milk and water, she called her to Franz. But Marian was not the insipid type of blonde. She was the type whose eyes startled the passer-by with their violet-blue so dark they looked black.

She had thought this all out in a sleepless night like a general planning his campaign. There had been wars won by siege, hadn't there? By endurance—by concealment of weapons—by subtle patience in waiting for the right moment for attack. So now the self-controled tireless strategy.

"I'm surprised at you, Franz, for taking me seriously. I should be offended, too. What kind of woman do you take me for?"

Franz was completely taken off his guard.

"But if you don't mean these things, why say them? You spoiled my day. For I may as well admit you scared the life out of me."

She smiled at him with indolent good nature. "Stupid Franz. Does that foolish little job make so much difference?"

"Why not be honest with you? It means the difference between eating and starvation. Otherwise, would I have come down to making pills and mixing drugs in a hospital dispensary?"

Doctor Gives Reasons for Thumb Sucking

GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Because thumb and finger sucking are so important to you when your baby or child has the habit, today's article should be of interest to many mothers, nurses, and nursery school teachers, too. It is composed of quotations, though not word for word, from a talk on the subject given by Dr. William S. Langford.

The habit of thumb and finger sucking is found not only among babies but at higher age levels.

Babies sometimes suck their fingers when they are hungry. In this way they can be said to indulge in the habit for simple pleasurable emotions. It certainly comforts them. The unnecessary concern of parents in regard to this habit surely is the result of scares about the harm done by it, such as were mentioned in this column yesterday.

The alarmists attribute damage to teeth and palate, to the fingers, dental cavities, loss of teeth and digestive disturbances in adult life. However, there is no actual evidence of these results.

In regard to deformity in permanent teeth and facial expression which affects future characteristics, there is no cause for alarm. There is, though, some evidence that the habit may push a child into an unsolitary type of behavior. [This would be when a child was older and the habit kept him from active social play.]

[It should help parents to keep in mind the fact that sucking is an absorbing and first activity of a baby.] The new baby will suck on any object placed in front of his hands and his lips. It is really a reflex act, like sucking in breast feeding or in taking his formula from a bottle.

Babies will often suck their fingers when hungry or when their feeding has not satisfied them.

The Housewife

Shower curtains and matching window curtains give a bathroom a trim, unified appearance. An unusually good looking set we came across the other day followed the vogue for stripes. Against a pure white background there were slender vertical stripes of deep rose and silver. The material was real silk which has been processed so that it is water resistant and will not fade easily. If it is treated with any sort of reasonable care it will never stick together, cake or crack, and will wear indefinitely. And it will certainly dress up any bathroom.

PAPER PANS FOR PIE BAKING: If you're baking pies for a bazaar, church supper, party or just for the family, you'll be interested in these metal-edged, sturdy pie plates. Bake your pie, eat it, and discard the plate. They aren't expensive, they do a good, speedy job of baking, and they eliminate washing pans. I've been baking pies in them lately, and favor them very much.

WALNUT CATSUP RECIPES: By the dozen they've come in since I printed a request the other Saturday. I greatly appreciate the fact that so many readers were interested enough to search through their old cookbooks for the recipe. Some who sent recipes said they had copied them from old cookbooks belonging to mother or grandmother. Many of the recipes were similar.

Only one person had made a walnut catsup. He 's J. Nieder, chef for United Air Lines, and his recipe is simplest of all:

"Use a good brand of pickled English walnuts. Chop to extra fine consistency with chopper, grinder or liquefying cocktail mixer, and strain. Mix with a sufficient amount of the pickling broth to obtain a proper catsup consistency."

Most usuable of the other longer, complicated recipes was this one sent in by Jeannette Mead of Bluffton, Ind. It comes from an old English cookbook, of the year 1853.

Escalots [Shallots]. ½ lb.
Salt, ½ lb. barrel salt.
Vinegar, 2 quts.
Anchovies, 2 ozs.
Black pepper, 2 ozs.
Mace, ¼ oz.
Cloves, ½ oz.

Pound walnuts until thoroughly bruised and broken. Put in stone jar with escalots cut in slices, garlic, salt and vinegar. Let stand for ten days. Stir night and morning. Strain off the liquor. Boil one-half hour with all spices and anchovies added; skim well, strain off and, when quite cold, pour from sediment [which may be reserved for sauces] into small dry bottles. Make air tight with cap or cork, and store in dry place."

The quaintly worded recipe sent in by Mrs. L. E. Culp of Elkhart, Ind., comes from the cookbook given her grandmother as a bride, and begins: "Bruise to a mass 120 green walnuts, gathered when a pin could pierce one; put to it three-quarters of a pound of salt and a quart of good vinegar; stir them every day for a fortnight" . . . and ends "secure the bottles with new corks, dip them in melted rosin."

All of these recipes are going into our files, and I wish to thank every contributor.

NEW DOUBLE DUTY THERMOMETER: You can use this for candies, bread, and jellies, and for deep fat frying, too, instead of having to buy two theremometers, one for lower and one for higher temperatures. It's enclosed in a glass tube, and has a handy wooden bobber with which to lift it. Not widely marketed as yet.

Styled for Youthful Figures

FROCK FOR MISSES.

The designer has put youth in every line of this summer dress. It is dressily tailored, and lends itself well to a wide variety of color and fabric combinations. Sketched at the right is a version with typical shirtwaist top, wide belt, and flared skirt. Polka-dotted material was used for the original of this design, with the top of the frock employing the fabric with the lighter background.

Illustrated at the left is a version of the design that employs a V neckline and edges it and the puffed sleeves with lace or ruffling. Floral sprigged silks and cottons are ideal for this frock.

Style No. 2845 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse and 2½ yards of 39 inch fabric for the skirt.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

"The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 no trump	Pass	4 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 spades	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	6 spades	Pass
6 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

"South went down one trick, losing a spade and a club. The result, however, is not in question. The controversy which arose immediately after the last card was played, centered around the bidding. North blamed South for not having listened to his insistence on spades, bitterly repeating this reproach when the rubber was eventually won by East-West. Now, was North right to go as far as six spades with his empty hand, or because South went to six no trump with his exceptionally strong cards, to blame South for the loss of the game? South goes so far as to maintain that he was entitled to bid a grand slam after North's repeated spade bidding led him to expect a long suit, on to which he would be able to discard his losers. What is your decision?—C. H., Buenos Aires."

My decision is that the contract was a splendid one and would be fulfilled nine times in ten. Even with the 4-1 spade break, declarer had a good chance to bring home twelve tricks, and it was only because the club finesse also was wrong that any possibility of argument developed. Moreover, since a slam contract was decidedly justified on the respective North-South holdings, it was wise to play the hand in no trump rather than in spades. There were no ruffing values in the South hand and North's hand also was comparatively balanced. In addition, the opening lead would come up to South, and the only danger spot, clubs, would thus be taken care of. For example, from South's point of view, North might easily have held six spades to the jack, instead of five to the Q-10, and in that case it might be necessary to give up the spade queen. So long as the opponents could not establish a club trick on the opening lead, however, it would be a simple matter to concede that spade trick and take in all five spades, two hearts, four diamonds and one club.

Although I do not thoroughly approve the method by which the partnership reached the slam, the fact remains that the final contract was unimpeachable, and that the only reproaches that should have arisen should have been directed against the Goddess of Luck.

High Heels Are for Dress Occasions, Not for Walking

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

If it is true, as commonly contended by experts on the subject, "that you can tell a woman's age by her walk," heaven help the calendar record being made against young women around world's fair quarters.

It might be said at avenue stores where you shop, any time, any place women are on their feet for a time. But we quote the world's fair—New York's or San Francisco's—as the recording spot, since that's where we've seen more feet uptilted on heels, more standing on one leg while the other got a moment's rest, and more faces, with expressions crying, "My feet. My poor, poor feet."

You're not so surprised to see older women bowed down with grief over their pained extremities. In their youth, feet were not trained so well and comfortably in shoes as has been the lot of younger generations. Then, too, the body weight of the older woman often makes foot travel an extra burden.

But the young ones. What is the matter with their pedal extremities that the spirit leaves them so early in the sightseeing tour? Too much high heel wearing at the wrong time. Too much foot pampering, giving them rides every time when they were better put to the use for which they were originally intended. Think back, you younger women, to when you were 6, 8, 10, or 12. You could run all day with never a whimper over your feet. Not until you got to be 16, 17, and 18 were you foot-conscious. Not until after you went through that silly-shoe-stage, when high heels were your idea of being really grown up, did you begin to know what tired, swollen feet meant.

You younger ones certainly ought to be able to do a fair without a whimper out of you. Of course, there's no secret about why you can't. We look at the shoe you've half kicked off as you rest on the bench. Isn't it ridiculous to wear things like that when out for a long hike? Your feet do not look better in that kind of shoe. They look infinitely better, yes, and smarter, when they look as if they were capable of carrying you from here to Timbuctoo. You just do not see the really smart young women in spike heeled shoes on the street today. Don't be old-fashioned, girls, going around in those silly high heels that are meant for party wear, not sightseeing.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Two Opposing Viewpoints on the New Deal

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Foundations of Democracy," by T. V. Smith and Robert A. Taft. [Knopf, $2.50.] Published Wednesday.

A series of debates between Congressman T. V. Smith of Illinois, New Deal Democrat, and Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Republican, presenting the two opposing points of view on the New Deal, recently was broadcast. The debates proved so illuminating that they are preserved here for the edification of all. The publishers of the book compare them to the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates, and that is not a wholly unfair comparison, for both sides strike out with honesty and sincerity, sometimes with brilliance, sometimes with an impressive judicial tone. Moreover, they state not only the contemporary but the traditional viewpoint of the two major political parties of the country.

T. V. Smith [top] and Robert A. Taft.

Any recapitulation of their individual viewpoints on specific questions would be, in a brief review of the book, merely a statement of the two party angles already well known to newspaper readers and all good Republicans and good Democrats. For any reader who is not certain about the stands of the two parties on those specific questions this book is an excellent reminder. But underneath all the pros and cons, as Mr. Smith declares in his last broadcast, "we thus celebrate at the end of controversy our common devotion to a beloved fatherland." Together they express the circumference of the American point of view.

Revolutionary War Story

"Conceived in Liberty," by Howard Fast. [Simon & Schuster, $2.50.] Published a week ago last Monday.

With the nine bitter months of Valley Forge to give his senses their sight, sound, smell, touch, and taste stimuli, and with sad and discouraged companions and a bedraggled camp-follower named Bess to stir his emotions, the fictional narrator of this tale, who ran away from the Mohawk Valley to fight for fun, tells a vivid story of war.

It is written in the modern school of blood and dirt reality, rather than in the usual romantic vein of revolutionary war tales, and its vividness is emphasized by the author's technique of bringing nothing into the narrative except what the narrator experienced, and by the repetitious bombardment of words which he uses.

There is none of the romantic, rosy glow of adventure about this book. The fun that the narrator sought turned to bitter reality, and Howard Fast adds no sweetening to the historical aloes which he tasted. "Conceived in Liberty" is not, however, for all its virtues, a masterpiece, and it labels its author rather as "promising" than as Q. E. D.

Modernized Alger Book

"The Redlander," by Sigman Byrd. [Dutton, $2.50.] Published last Saturday.

Here is a modernized Alger book, the story of an orphan boy who becomes a brilliant success, although John David Huntman's political career is disposed of in the first paragraph in which the author says: "It would be like shooting fish in a barrel to tell of his recent election to the United States senate, of the fact that, in spite of his youth, his name is being uttered in certain party circles as eventual presidential timber."

This is the story of the youth and his young manhood; "the child is father to the man." It begins with the death of his mother in a flood [his father had already been a flood victim] and his start in life with one cow and a portrait "heired" from his mother and father. A ward of the Daughters of the Fraternian Republic, he lives for one year at a time in three households before old Judge Damron Phipps does what he wanted to do in the beginning—take him for an unofficial son. Dave is hand-made into a fine and noble young man, not so much by the judge and Miss Josie Belleflower as by himself.

The plot is a shade on the sentimental side, and deals with the social importance of having been descended from the Fraternian Republicans if one lives in Cherokee, Tex. It might have been a satire, but it isn't and its motive is its weakness. Its strength is the excellent picture of the local life and customs and scene.

A Sharply Vivid Tale

In the pattern of "Of Mice and Men" and also with two itinerant farm laborers as the principal characters, a young Chicago Negro has written a novel which is an interesting companion to that sharply vivid tale "Let Me Breathe Thunder" is the story of Step and Ed "out lookin' for a job," but it is also a story of the little Mexican whom they call Hi-Boy because that exuberant greeting is almost his only English.

Where Step and Ed and Hi-Boy came from or where they are going is lost in the immediacy of day by day existence. This clear cut tale is an incident in lives which oddly lack pattern, in that they exist seemingly without past or future. It is told with the same lack of sentimentality which made their lives possible.

"Let Me Breathe Thunder" is hard-boiled. It is tragic. But it is never cruel, for cruelty is of necessity the result of intent. As in the characters in "Of Mice and Men," in Step and Ed there is no intent to do anything but live, and live they do according to their own impellings.

Modern Marriage Tale

"Skylark," by Samson Raphaelson. [Knopf, $2.] Published Wednesday.

This is a modern tale of modern marriage, for it is certainly "modern" all around the clock, in technique, in point of view, in background, in conversation. But its end is as old fashioned as the romance that brought on the marriage.

It is ten years after "boy meets girl" and marries her when the book opens. "Boy" is a snappy young advertising executive who pulls out $150,000 a year from the firm in commissions, and "girl" has all the virtues, including a wisecracking smile when her heart is breaking. She realizes in the midst of her tin wedding happiness that "boy" has another love—his job. She is, or thinks she is, all ready for tramp steamers and a loaf of bread in the wilderness with her love.

Their expensive life all depends upon the Baby Malt account, and when Mrs. Baby Malt gets jealous of "girl" because "girl" has dared to speak to HER boy friend there are firewords from both sides which result in a crisis. Before the reader knows it divorce has reared its ugly head. What happens then is no surprise to readers of tales of this pattern. There is a lot of snappy conversation [especially about the advertising business], which is what one would expect in the first novel of one of America's most successful playwrights [author of "The Jazz Singer" and "Accent on Youth"].

This Hair Raising Narrative Should Delight Armchair Jungle Enthusiasts

"Cannibal Caravan," by Charles [Cannibal] Miller. [Lee Furman, $2.75.] Published Thursday.

This hair raising narrative is set forth as true adventure and, since the author insists the natives in Dutch New Guinea, of whom he writes, have not moved out of stone age culture, true it may be. However, at least one chronicle is so fantastic that the reader may protest, "O, come, come, Mr. Cannibal Miller!"

For somewhere in the depths of this savage island Miller saw and photographed, he says, "a colossal remnant of the age of dinosaurs," a monster light brown yellow in color with a snaky head "like something out of 'King Kong,'" an immense body, and tiny forelegs. "Once its tail lashed out of the grass so far behind its head I thought it must be another monster," he adds.

Mr. Miller says he took 100 feet of movie film of this creature, but search is vain for a report on how the film turned out. Whatever the result, no further reference is made nor was any of the film cut up for reproduction here. Perhaps Cannibal Miller is withholding his proof to flabbergast the skeptics. One hopes he is.

This is just the book for armchair jungle enthusiasts. The author is a professional adventurer who writes in a breezy style which does all it can to counteract the horrific pictures the words themselves reveal. P. W.

The World Since 1918

"A Short History of the World Since 1918," by J. Hampden Jackson. [Little-Brown, $3.]

In this swiftly changing world, there are many people who would stop to scratch their heads if you ask them: "What was the march on Rome?" "What New Dealer murdered the little pigs?" "How did Hitler outwit President von Hindenburg to become chancellor of Germany?" Too much has happened; too much has been done and undone in the last twenty years for the memories of most people.

This excellent historical and reference work is an illuminating background to the troubled scene in Europe—in the world, for that matter. It begins with the end of the world war and closes with the pact of Munich. It should be particularly valuable for young people who are just beginning to take cognizance of international affairs. C. 274 Days on an Ice Floe

Four Russians, three of them scientists, with a general handyman as leader of their expedition, boarded an ice floe at the north pole on May 21, 1937. A remnant of the floe was still carrying them southward 274 days later when they were picked up off the coast of Greenland. The leader, Ivan Papanin, presents the day-to-day diary of their trip in this book.

Although this trip and the work of the four men have been acclaimed for the scientific results obtained, Papanin tells a matter of fact story of their hardships. Diaries often are rather dubious reading. This one isn't. The reader is carried from day to day with a tense feeling of "what is going to happen next?" Papanin's account of the trip should be enough to stop any one from attempting to emulate it—until some more scientists come along. W. D. O.

Dawes Writes His Own Story of Reparations

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"A Journal of Reparations," by Charles G. Dawes. [Macmillan, $5.]

Charles G. Dawes has had many titles, many responsibilities, many contacts with the great of the world in the years before and since he became chairman of the German reparations commission in 1924. He has never lost, however, his plain, forthright American thought and manner and his faith in the idealisms of the democratic way of life. He might be described as the apostle of common sense. It is this which shines through the pages of "A Journal of Reparations," his rare and salty observations on men and affairs.

How Mr. Dawes regarded the reparations plan which bore his name just before it was formulated and adopted he states as follows:

"If our plan is well conceived, public sentiment will overthrow any government opposing it."

He writes in February, 1924, when Berlin children were being fed at Quaker relief stations:

"It is clear that every program is attended by dangerous contingencies, but the only course we can take is the plain one—to assume that peace, well guarded, and not war, is the normal state of modern man."

Again he says:

"The world is tired of being deceived by the special pleaders and nationalistic demagogues who lead it nowhere except into trouble. In time of great and long continued trouble men demand truth."

He writes of the "impenetrable and colossal fog bank of expert opinion" that surrounded the work of the commission, and says: "The woods are full of pewits trying to sing like nightingales."

"When the work is over," Mr. Dawes told Stamp, "we shall either get garbage or garlands. I'll run the risk of the garlands."

Lyons Awaits IERC Ruling on Direct Aid.

Although fifty carloads of strikers from Belleville and nearby Scott field toured St. Clair and Madison counties urging workers to join the walkout yesterday, no violence was reported.

Workers in Bloomington, McLean county, formed a committee of about 250 yesterday and persuaded 50 workers to walk out at Normal. Bloomington workers also halted 250 to 300 men bound for a project southwest of the city, and for the second day stopped a busload of workers bound for the Lake Bloomington WPA project.

STANDS BY LAW

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Col. Francis C. Harrington, head of the Works Project administration, today told labor leaders that he is without power to alter the wage and hour scale reductions which provoked the strike of thousands of skilled workers.

At a conference with American Federation of Labor officials, Col. Harrington said that congress had terminated the prevailing wage policy and substituted the security wage and that he was without power to deviate from the exact provisions of the law.

Under the new law WPA employés work 130 hours a month for the basic security wage rather than earn the sum in shorter time at prevailing wages. The security wage ranges from $26 to $94 a month. Previously, skilled men worked only so many hours as was necessary to earn the monthly allotment at the wage scale of their trade.

Col. Harrington later repeated his statement to officers of the Workers Alliance, WPA union. The same story was carried to the Workers' Security League, a rival of the alliance and to C. I. O. officials, who joined in the protest against the new policy.

Harrington has requested state administrators to inform him how many are on strike. He said he would not hazard a guess until he had received the figures. Union officials estimated more than 150,000 are on strike.

THREATEN COURT ACTION IN N. Y. WPA STRIKES

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—A threat to prosecute on felony charges all persons who interfere with work on WPA was made today by Lieutenant Colonel Brehon B. Somervell, local WPA administrator, as project workers went on strike in protest against longer working hours and reduced hourly wages imposed by the new relief act.

Colonel Somervell would not indicate specific persons against whom he might proceed in the federal courts. He said he had asked John T. Cahill, United States attorney, to interpret this part of the new federal relief bill:

"Any person who knowingly, by means of any fraud, force, threat, intimidation or boycott . . . deprives any person of any of the benefits to which he may be entitled [under the act], or attempts so to do, or assists in so doing, shall be deemed guilty of a felony and fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than two years, or both."

SEIZED IN WEST AS EMBEZZLER FROM CHICAGO

Chicago police were notified last night by the sherif of Los Angeles county, Cal., that Joseph H. Cammick, former chief clerk of the Continental Can company in Chicago, had been arrested there on an embezzlement charge. The coast authorities said Cammick had been indicted in 1935 on a charge of making away with $50,000.

Cammick had been living in Glendale as Joseph J. Hartigan, the message said. He is married and has a step daughter 5 years old. Cammick is said to have admitted the theft, declaring he lost all but $1,500 of the money playing the stock market.

S. J. Steele, vice president of Continental Can, who lives at 1139 Lathrop avenue, River Forest, said last night he recalled the case, but not the date or the details.

3 YEAR COURT FIGHT PROVES PASSENGER HAS RIGHT TO A SEAT

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The New York Central Railroad today laid $232.89 on the desk of Philip Davis, ending a legal battle that began on July 12, 1936. On that day Davis rode a New York Central train from Albany to New York and stood up on the way because there was no seat for him.

Davis, a lawyer, sued to determine his rights. As his own counsel he argued that by paying fare for an extensive trip he bought the right to a seat. He asked $45 damages. The case was dismissed in Municipal court. Davis appealed and in a new trial a jury gave him the $45. The railroad appealed to the Appellate term and lost. The road then took the case to the Appellate division. Here it lost again.

20 MILLION PLAY HOURS PROVIDED BY WPA FUNDS

$3,000,000 Is Cost in Chicago Area.

A survey yesterday showed that Chicagoans spent more than twenty million hours during the last six months under the personal supervision of WPA recreational leaders.

Activities ranged from badminton and nature hikes to pasting in postage stamps. Children from 3 to 6 found themselves in play schools at forty-three of the city's parks. Future recreational supervisors found it possible, at a WPA training center in Taylorville, Christian county, to pick up the rudiments of golf.

What These Projects Cost.

The WPA projects are sponsored by the Chicago Recreation commission. In less than four years federal funds of $2,365,270 and $696,034 supplied by local sponsors have been spent on recreational activities. There are about 400 leaders, who go into the city parks and work with recreation groups. There are about 500 in the production unit, making and repairing recreational equipment.

Another seventy-five act as advisers to community groups wishing to set up recreation programs. Still other WPA play leaders bring to about 1,500 the men and women employed in 320 public and semi-public recreation centers.

From Baby to Grandpa.

There are activities for every one from baby to grandpa, with softball leagues, archery, amateur music and drama, an adult choral group, short wave radio work, jewelry making, and enough other time killing pastimes to bring the total to 150. Twice as many persons take part in so-called social recreation as in athletics, WPA officials say.

CRA TO REQUIRE 1,626 RELIEFERS TO EARN A LIVING

Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator, said yesterday that 1,626 able bodied reliefers are going to be required to earn part of their monthly checks beginning July 17. These men have been assigned to the city bureau of parks and recreation to do general maintenance work at 166 recreation centers and beaches.

Each will be required to work thirty hours a month at 50 cents an hour. They will be paid by the CRA. They will continue to receive the difference between the $15 maximum which they can earn and the amount of their monthly relief budget.

State law provides that reliefers can be forced to work in the public interest. Putting the Chicago relief clients to work was proposed a few days ago by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works.

INDIANS BEAT SOX, 7 TO 3; CUBS WIN IN 11TH, 5 TO 4

FELLER'S 14TH ENDS CHICAGO'S 5 GAME STREAK

Marcum Routed in 4 Run Seventh.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Bob Feller, a mere youth of 20 years, took hold of the White Sox winning streak yesterday and broke it off at five in a row. The Iowa child had his troubles in spots but his Cleveland Indian pals assisted with base hits of various dimensions and the Chicagoans had no choice other than to move over so that the Tribe could climb in with them for a half share of fourth place. The 7 to 3 score marked Feller's fourteenth triumph of the season, three of them being contributed by Jim Dykes' battlers.

Kid Feller and his associates also put an end to a three game streak which Johnny Marcum had carefully constructed since his recent escape from the tail end Browns. The refugee was quite a pitcher for four innings and 8,000 paying customers as well as 10,000 women guests, were treated to the rare spectacle of Feller being on the light end of a 1 to 0 score. But Marcum faded by degrees, being blasted off the scene in a stormy seventh after his mates had accomplished enough sixth inning heroics to lift him back into a tie.

Marcum Loses His Skill.

One of two hits produced by Gerald Walker enabled the Sox to get their early one run lead, an edge which an error by Joe Kuhel helped to carry away in the fifth. In the next inning Marcum showed a further decline, a homer by Hal Trosky giving the Indians a two run margin.

The Sox bounced right back in their half, Marcum, Kuhel and Kreevich tormenting the 29 year old marvel with hits which created a 3 to 3 deadlock. But Marcum's base sprinting during this pleasing episode must have been too much for him. He and his winning streak were gone before the next inning was completed.

What happened to Marcum in the seventh was a total of three hits in succession with one out and the Indians didn't quit after he had been removed. Doctor Clint Brown, the specialist in rescue jobs, was called in for consultation. The doctor was hardly himself. The Tribe blasted his reputation with a single, double, and sacrifice fly which, with the three blows off Marcum, raised the inning's run total to four.

Marcum Dodges Trouble.

Marcum's first inning wasn't a pleasing thriller for those with Sox inclinations. Bu he squirmed through without a blemish in the run column. The first out was Hemsley's fly handled by Walker and the second resulted from Heath's strikeout. Trouble popped when Chapman walked and raced to third on Trosky's single to right. The threat vanished on Campbell's grounder to Bejma.

In the process of completing their second inning in which they scored a run, the Sox got three men to first base but two of them didn't travel any farther. Radcliff led off with a pass and stole second. Walker nudged him across the plate by singling to left but the inimitable Gerald wandered off base and was trapped. Then Appling walked and after McNair had fanned, Luke decided on an attempt at burglary. He didn't succeed.

Chapman opened the fourth with a single, the Indians' second hit, but the next three men failed.

The first item in the two run episode that put the Indians ahead by 2 to 1 in the fifth was Grimes' single

Bill Lee Whips Pirates; Cubs Return to 5th

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7.—Big Bill Lee, thanks to Capt. William Herman, Dick Bartell, and several others, this afternoon registered his ninth victory of the year when the Cubs beat the Pirates, 5 to 4, in eleven innings, to salvage the third and last game of the series and restore the champions to fifth place.

Herman and Bartell are spotted for laurel wreaths because of distinguished accomplishments in different phases of the ball game. Herman played a hard game throughout, but reached the heights in the tenth when he knocked down a pinch single by Paul Waner and threw out Elbie Fletcher at the plate with what seemed a certain winning run.

Herman Was a Busy Gent.

Then, in the eleventh, with Stan Hack on third as a result of a single and a two base throwing error by Ray Berres, Herman sent Hack home with the payoff with a long sacrifice fly to Chuck Klein. Just to round out a busy day, Capt. Bill threw out the first and last batters in the home eleventh.

Bartell's entry on the hero list was due to a double with two out in the sixth which drove in two runs and switched a 3 to 2 deficit to a 4 to 3 advantage.

The Cubs made fourteen hits, the first time they could write their hit total in double figures in ten games. In the nine previous games their average was six and one-ninth hits per game. So, fourteen hits in one game made the boys feel pretty happy, lack of hitting being the main thing that has ailed them.

The Pirates made fourteen hits off Lee. Five of them came in a row to give the Pirates three runs and a 3 to 1 edge in the third inning. The other Pittsburgh counter was the result of Arky Vaughan's fourth hit and two sacrifices in the seventh inning.

The success enabled Lee to become a .500 pitcher with nine victories and nine defeats. So the handsome Bayou boy still has a chance to duplicate his record of last year when he won twenty-two and lost nine.

Cubs Score in a Hurry.

It didn't take the Cubs long to score the first run of the game. Hack opened with a double to right and scored when Herman lined a single to left. Galan bounced into a double play, then Hartnett singled to center. Gleeson struck out.

In the first two innings the Pirates had to be content with a single and a stolen base by Vaughan in the first inning and a double and the theft of third by Handley in the second. But they really got going after one was out in the third. L. Waner doubled, Vaughan singled, Rizzo singled, Klein doubled, and Fletcher singled. The net result was three runs.

Lee stopped the Pirates after they had got fresh in both the fourth and fifth innings. In the fourth there were singles by Young and Tobin but G. Russell's unassisted double play on L. Waner's line drive snuffed out the side. Vaughan opened the

RIGGS DEFEATS COOKE TO TAKE WIMBLEDON TITLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, July 7.—Bobby Riggs of Chicago today placed his name at the top of the world's amateur tennis players by winning the men's singles championship in the All-England tournament. Riggs defeated his roommate and doubles partner, Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore. The scores were 2-6, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Seized by a cramp in his right arm and trailing two sets to one, Riggs began to rally in the fourth set and rushed the weary but willing Cooke off the center court. Both players, however, were so badly seized by cramps at the finish that they had to summon a physician. After drinking a concoction of grapefruit juice and salt the two Americans continued to compete in the mixed doubles.

The treasurer of the United States Lawn Tennis association, Russell E. Kingman of East Orange, N. J., sat in the royal box with Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and kept a chart which pretty well summed up the match.

Cooke and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Cambridge, Mass., entered the final round by eliminating A. D. Russell, Argentina, and Mrs. S. H. Hammersley, England, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, and Riggs teamed with Alice Marble, American women's singles champion, to defeat Camille E. Malfroy, New Zealand, and Betty Nuthall, England, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

When you come back to me, dear—

The lonely days will pass,

My heart to yours a-thrall,

BURTON TAKES BRITISH TITLE; BULLA SECOND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 7.—Johnny Bulla, the brilliant Chicago shotmaker who is known as the drug store professional, was edged out of the British open golf championship by Dick Burton, long hitting English professional, today. Burton had a 72 hole score of 290 and Bulla finished with a 292.

A two under par 71 on the last round, featured by a birdie 3 on the 18th green, gave the Briton victory. Bulla had a 73 on the final 18 holes. This morning, however, Bulla, the only American in the last day's field of 34, shot a 71 to Burton's 77 and gained a tie with Burton at 219, four shots ahead of Jock Fallon.

Watches Burton Come In.

Bulla completed his last round two hours before Burton reached home. The young American sat on the clubhouse porch and watched Burton come to the 18th fairway needing a 4 to win the championship. Burton's drive was short of the green on the 364 yard hole and his second shot stopped within twelve feet of the pin. Burton then sank the putt for the birdie 3.

Bulla, who was awarded $351 for capturing runner up honors, faced rain and a soggy course all week, but finally began to move today.

Gallery Cheers Him.

Bulla displayed great putting after the first three holes of the last round. On the fourth hole, his second shot went 12 yards from the cup and as a gallery of 5,000 cheered Bulla sank the putt. With a terrific drive, the American took a par 5 on the 550 yard fifth hole.

Because of the high winds, Bulla encountered difficulty with his drives on the back nine. On the short 11th hole, he scored par by lifting the ball out of the rough with his mashie and placing it six feet from the cup.

Bulla Centers Golfing Rise in TerrificHitting

Johnny Bulla, 25 year old Chicagoan who finished second in the British open championship yesterday, has been knocking at the door of golfing fame ever since he left his Sophia, N. C., home five years ago.

Son of a Presbyterian minister, Bulla, who will make his next tournament appearance in the Western Open at the Medinah Country club July 21, 22, 23, served notice that he is ready to challenge the country's topnotch golfers when he finished sixth in the national open in Philadelphia last month with a 72 hole score of 287, only three strokes back of the winner.

Take Away His Putter.

Accounts of the British open state that Bulla was not permitted to use his unorthodox "Schenectady" putter, a center shafted affair. This undoubtedly affected his play on the greens, since, before the tournament was finished, he used four different putters.

Bulla's rise to fame, however, has not been all smooth sailing. When he left the Carolinas, where he gained local fame along with Sam Snead, a fellow southerner, he decided to cast his lot in the Chicago area.

His first job upon arrival was manager of a driving range. He was graduated from this venture to become professional at Big Run, a public fee course. Later he became pro at Woodridge, where he remained for two years.

One of Game's Long Hitters.

Johnny is not a member of the Professional Golfers' association, the élite society of the country's journeyman golfers. It is said that he gained the disfavor of this body by sponsoring an economical golf ball of a national drug store chain. He uses this ball in all of his tournaments.

NATIONAL POLL TO DECIDE HOW TEAM LINES UP

BY ARCH WARD.

This is the day the United States begins its annual voting spree. For widespread interest, enterprise and enthusiasm the coast to coast football poll which opens this morning takes its place with national, state and civic elections.

There are no racial, religious or geographical restrictions in this contest. It is open to every one who wants to have a voice in naming the team of All-America collegians who will face the New York Giants, champions of the National Professional league, in Chicago's sixth annual charity game on Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 30.

All you have to do is survey the field, jot down your selections on a postcard or letter and mail them to the nearest newspaper serving as a qualifying center. There are 329 polling places in the United States. They are located in forty-seven states and the District of Columbia. Delaware is the only state not included in the poll.

You Pick 'Em, Fans.

This is your opportunity to show you know as much about the comparative worth of the national gridiron headliners as sports writers, coaches, or other pickers of All-America teams. It is the only event in sport which recognizes the competency of the fans in shaping the personnel of a squad. Until the teams line up for the opening kickoff at 8:30 p. m. Aug. 30, the fans are in complete command. They will name the starting lineup and also the staff of coaches who will lead the collegians.

The player poll opening today will continue for two weeks. The two ends, two tackles, two guards, center, quarter back, two half backs, and full back who receive the greatest number of votes will start the game, provided they accept the invitation to join the squad and survive the training workout in good physical condition. In the event one or more athletes are unable for any reason whatsoever to take their place in the opening battle front, the man or men next in line in the national poll must be moved up to fill the vacancies.

Votes are Checked.

It has happened before and probably will again that some of the players chosen by the fans are not the best the nation produced. The coaches find this out in the three weeks of scrimmage which precedes the game. They are obliged, however, to respect the voice of the fans. If the voters—the people who pay the freight—want Joe Bloke of Onion seminary at right tackle instead of Spike McAdams of Yale, Joe Bloke will be at tackle. The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., sponsor of the All-Star game, never has broken faith with the fans and that policy will be continued as long as the enterprise endures.

Once the coaches have fulfilled their obligations to the millions who cast votes in the poll they are free to make substitutions as they see fit.

Every voter must sign his address as well as his name in submitting his ballot. All votes are cleared through newspapers or radio stations and these agents make every effort to guarantee the honesty of the count. It frequently happens that organizations supporting a particular candidate turn in as many as 5,000 votes to THE TRIBUNE at one time. The contest department checks a certain number, probably 5 per cent, at random. If they are found honest, the entire block is recorded in the players' total. If 5 per cent is found fraudulent, all 5,000 are discarded.

Choose Your Own Team.

Only players who completed their collegiate competition last season are eligible for the game. A list of leading candidates will be printed from time to time to help guide voters whose only desire is to recruit the strongest possible team to oppose the New York Giants. It is understood

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Joseph E. Widener's Roman, the big fast colt which dominated Kentucky's juvenile events last spring, will make his first appearance before Chicago racing fans in the $2,500 Hyde Park stakes this afternoon at Arlington Park.

Roman, a son of Sir Gallahad III., made a runaway of the Lafayette stakes, Keeneland's most important event for 2 year olds, and followed up with an equally impressive victory in the Bashford Manor at Churchill Downs. Now that his vacation is over he showed that he is ready to return to the races by working five furlongs in :59 3-5 on Tuesday.

Among Roman's most formidable rivals today will be Russell Firestone's Marogay, which took the leading 2 year old honors of the Florida season, winning the Hialeah juvenile championship stakes. Trainer Sherrill Ward has been putting the colt through impressive trials and believes he will be ready to run a creditable race today.

May Be Worth $3,825.

Other speedy youngsters in the field are T. D. Buhl's Domkin, the Milky Way farm's Chatted, and Friedberg and Axton's Predicate.

Overnight entries include eleven horses. If all should start, the gross value of the stake would be $4,510, with the net value to the winner $3,525. The Hyde Park is considered the most important preliminary to the Arlington Futurity, which will be run on the last day of the meeting.

Bucking, a 4 year old gelding owned by Joseph E. Widener, went to the post as the odds-on favorite in the Maywood purse, which headed yesterday's program. Under Warren Yarberry's confident handling, he took the lead soon after the start of the seven furlong dash, opened up a lead of two lengths on the turn and increased it to four in the stretch. After easing up near the finish, he beat Midkiff and Wells' Cross Keys by more than a length, Morris Vehon's Smart Trick being a nose further back in third place.

Forced to Destroy Banjorine.

During the fourth race, Banjorine, a 5 year old mare owned by J. D. Weil, was cut down after going three-sixteenths and was injured so badly in her right hind leg that she had to be destroyed. When the accident occurred, Jockey Ira Hanford slipped out of the saddle and was unhurt.

Jockey T. E. Ward yesterday was set down for the meeting and the stewards forwarded a recommendation to the racing commission that he be suspended for an additional twenty-one days to bring the total to forty. The penalty was levied against him for insubordination during an altercation with track officials.

PASTOR SIGNS FOR LOUIS BOUT; JOE WANTS FARR, TOO

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Determined to clear up what he considers the only two blots on his record, Joe Louis has persuaded Promoter Mike Jacobs to let him fight Bob Pastor in September, probably in Detroit, and then to give Tommy Farr, the Welshman, his lumps one night next winter.

The Pastor fight was assured when the young New Yorker, who stayed 10 rounds with Louis in 1937, signed today. He and the champion may be scheduled for 20 rounds. The tentative date is Sept. 21 and the site Briggs stadium in Detroit. Details are to be ironed out here Monday in a conference between Promoter Jacobs and officials of the Detroit Baseball club.

So certain is Louis that he will stop Pastor that he already is looking forward to another tussle with Farr, who confounded him for 15 rounds here in the fall of 1937. Jacobs has started negotiating with the Welshman's American manager, Joe Gould.

CROSS KEYS, always clear as she raced a trifle wide throughout, was widely outpaced by the winner entering the stretch, but hung on well and withstood SMART TRICK'S bid. DODGERS BEAT GIANTS, 3 TO 2, BEFORE 36,444

Whitlow Wyatt Wins 8th Straight Game.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—A crowd of 36,444, the largest of the season in Brooklyn, watched the Dodgers beat the New York Giants, 3 to 2, today in the opener of their four game series. The park was crowded with police in anticipation of a busy afternoon, but nothing happened to mar the occasion. The victory, strengthening the Dodgers' hold on third place in the National league, was the eighth straight pitched by Whitlow Wyatt, 30 year old rookie from Milwaukee. He has yet to be defeated. The Dodgers scored all their runs off Cliff Melton in the first two innings.

PROS ASK P. G. A. TO REINSTATE SHUTE—OR ELSE

New York, July 7.—(AP)—The peeve a number of leading golf professionals have had against their own ruling body, the Professional Golfers' association, led to a strike threat today as most of the 120 entries in the annual P. G. A. tournament played practice rounds over the Pomonok Country club.

Hinting that they would refuse to play Sunday unless Denny Shute is permitted to play, the pros drew up a formal petition to the executive committee asking it to reconsider its action in barring Shute because he failed to pay his annual dues until two days after the deadline.

to left. Webb tried to sacrifice, but wound up striking out. Feller assumed responsibility for getting the tying run over, doubling to the scoreboard in right center. Hemsley grounded to short and Appling's throw nestled in Kuhel's hands but the ball leaped out for an error. Then Heath bounced to Bejma, forcing Hemsley at second, but Feller scored when the attempt for a double play failed.

Trosky's drive dropped into the right center field seats in the sixth for his ninth homer, giving the Indians a two run lead, but the Sox took care of this handicap without loss of time. In the home sixth Marcum singled to right with one out and Bejma flied to center. The first pitch suited Kuhel's fancy so he swung and bashed it against the scoreboard in right for a triple, Marcum scoring. Kuhel scored the tying run on Kreevich's single to right.

Feller Starts Winning Rally.

The ill-fated seventh opened harmlessly enough. Appling tossed out Webb. Feller singled through short and Hemsley singled to left. A solid drive by Heath caromed off Kuhel's glove for a single, Feller scoring and Hemsley moving to third. This was where Doc Brown was summoned for his season's 28th appearance. He had no luck with Chapman, who singled to score Hemsley. He had no luck with Trosky, who doubled, Heath scoring. Campbell was purposely passed. Keltner flied to Kreevich, Chapman scoring after the catch, but Trosky was doubled trying for third.

After the sixth Feller ran the show to suit himself. He surrendered only two hits, both in the ninth. Radcliff singled to right with one out and after two were gone Appling duplicated the hit. McNair popped to Grimes for the final putout.

Hank Greenberg and Tigers Are Sox Guests Today

Hank Greenberg and his Tiger associates will be at Comiskey park this afternoon, the game starting at 2 o'clock. The Sox are still pretty mad at Hank for punching Joe Kuhel last Saturday while the latter was on the ground, and have intimated the big fellow has best keep close watch of his feet around first base.

Thornton [Lefty] Lee will face the Tigers today and John Rigney and Ted Lyons will be fed to them in the double-header tomorrow. Today's workman for the Tigers will be Tommy Bridges.

Oscar Grimes heard the birdies peep for a few moments in the second inning. He reached for Hemsley's throw while Radcliff was stealing but the ball took an unexpected hop and plunked him on the chin. He rolled over on his back for the full count but a hunk of ice revived him.

Jack Hayes, who was removed from second base a few days ago because of knee trouble, underwent examination yesterday and Dr. Philip Kreuscher, who operated on the joint last November, found no alarming symptoms. The doctor informed Hayes that it is just a matter of time.

Cicero Youth First to Enter 100 Yard Swim

To Fred Riedl, 1424 South 56th court, Cicero, goes the honor of being the first to enter the tenth Chicagoland 100 yard free style swimming races. Riedl will compete in Class C for boys 15 and 16 years of age and he has selected Cermak pool, Lyons, Ill., as the preliminary in which he wishes to compete.

Four sectional events will be held on July 22 and 23. The races at Cermak pool and at Sherman park, 52d street and Racine avenue, are scheduled for July 22. Those at Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, and California park, 3901 North California avenue, will be held the following day. At each of these qualifying centers there will be five age divisions for boys and five for girls.

Will Get Gold Medals.

Approximately 120 boys and girls will receive gold qualifying medals and become eligible for the ten championship races which will be held at Navy pier, July 30.

Entries for this year's contests close at midnight July 17. This is the particular instruction to be remembered. No swimmer will be permitted to compete who does not file his name, age, and address before midnight that date. This also applies to team entries.

Must Bring Card Along.

Each contestant in the preliminaries will receive a postcard giving the time to report at the section he has selected. The individual's racing number also is furnished by this means. This card must be brought to the preliminary. It not only identifies the contestant, but it will admit him to the pool without charge. These cards will be mailed immediately after the entries close.

All boys and girls who are amateur swimmers are eligible for the 100 yard races sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. There is no entry fee.

575 Boys to Compete in City Parks Track Meet

Lee Defeats Pirates; Cubs Return to 5th

fifth inning with his third straight and the Pirates' tenth hit. Rizzo fouled to Hartnett and Klein walked. Fletcher and Handley were retired by G. Russell.

Cubs Go Ahead Again.

The Cubs recaptured the lead in the sixth inning. Galan opened with a single to right and went to third on Hartnett's single to left. Galan scored on Gleeson's sacrifice fly to Klein after which G. Russell singled to left. Bartell doubled to right center, scoring Hartnett and G. Russell and putting the Cubs ahead, 4 to 3.

Vaughan opened the home seventh with his fourth straight hit of the game, his second successive double, and moved to third on Rizzo's sacrifice. Arky scored the tying run on Klein's sacrifice fly to Gleeson.

Herman Saves It in Tenth.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 7.—The Cubs this afternoon looked forward to boarding a train for Cincinnati at midnight; not that the champs are especially anxious to meet the Reds in a single game tomorrow and Sunday. They craved air conditioning the Pullmans afforded after three sweltering days here.

DEACON WHITE, 91, DIES ON EVE OF CELEBRATION

Veteran Was Spalding's Catcher in 1876.

James L. [Deacon] White, who with A. G. Spalding formed baseball's first great battery, was to have been honored today at Aurora's centennial baseball celebration. It would have been fitting, too, as White, at 91, was the oldest living major league ball player.

But there will be no celebration for the old player today. Yesterday he died suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grace Watkins, in Aurora. Physicians said the end was hastened by the heat wave.

White, who was born at Canton, N. Y., Dec. 2, 1847, began his baseball career with the Forest City club of Cleveland in 1868. He had learned the rudiments of the game three years before from a Union soldier. White was a member of the first professional league—the National Association of Professional Ball Players, formed in 1873. He played with the Boston club and became Spalding's catcher.

In 1876, when the present National league was organized, White and Spalding joined the Chicago White Stockings, which won a pennant that year. White played with several other clubs—he was Buffalo's first baseman in 1888 and one of his teammates—the only living one—was Connie Mack. White was a pitcher and first baseman for the Detroit club in 1887, which won the first world series ever played, the other team being St. Louis, managed by the late Charles A. Comiskey, father of J. Louis Comiskey, owner of the White Sox.

Was Powerful Hitter.

White ended his professional baseball career with Pittsburgh after playing 21 seasons. He was a powerful hitter and for eight seasons hit .300 or more. One year his average was .401.

His regular weekly attendance at church gained for White the nickname of Deacon. Because of the infirmities of age, White had been virtually confined to his home for several years. His last visit to a Chicago ball park was to see his old friend, Mack. There he saw Bob Grove pitch for the Athletics against the White Sox and he was amazed at the southpaw's blinding speed.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Monday in the chapel at 336 Downer place, Aurora. Burial will be at Restland cemetery, Mendota, Ill. White is survived by his widow, Alice of Winston-Salem, N. C., and his daughter, Mrs. Watkins.

SWANSON'S BODY LIES IN STATE IN NATION'S CAPITAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 7.—The body of Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson, who died early this morning at Rapidan camp in the Blue Ridge mountains of his native Virginia, was brought to Washington tonight to lie in state at Navy hospital until 1 p. m. Monday, when a state funeral will be held in the senate chamber.

The death of the 77 year old secretary, who had been ill since 1936, when he was stricken with pleurisy before a White House dinner, was announced by President Roosevelt.

Praises Swanson's Service.

"It is with profound sorrow that I have learned of the death today at Rapidan camp, Virginia, of the greatly loved secretary of the navy, Claude A. Swanson," the President said.

"I join the entire country in mourning him as one whose many years of faithful service to the nation have endeared him to all. His wise counsel and his philosophic understanding of human problems will live after him in the hearts and minds of those of us who have had the privilege of being his associates."

The President directed Secretary of State Cordell Hull to issue a proclamation officially advising the country of Secretary Swanson's death and ordering flags on all public buildings and naval vessels to be flown at half staff.

Edison May Be Successor.

It was expected the cabinet post will go to Edison, although he, too, has been ailing for months and some opposition to him has arisen within the administration because he is not regarded as a sufficiently hard boiled executive.

Secretary Swanson, who has been head of the navy department in name only during his long illness, had been resting at the Rapidan camp. The camp was founded by former President Hoover for use as a summer White House and is now a part of the Shenandoah National park.

In congress he identified himself with the house and senate naval affairs committees and became chairman, successively, of both groups.

Swanson was the third Roosevelt cabinet member to die. William H. Woodin died shortly after he resigned the treasury post because of ill health. George H. Dern, secretary of war, died in office.

HORNER IS URGED TO VETO DOUBLE FEATURES BAN

Curb to Hurt Business, Says Theater Officer.

Curtailment of double feature movies, as proposed in a bill passed by the state legislature last week, was termed unreasonable and impractical last night by Jules J. Rubens, vice president of Great States theaters, a subsidiary of Balaban & Katz corporation. Rubens made the assertions in a letter to Gov. Horner asking that the bill be vetoed.

His protest reiterated one made last week by John Balaban, secretary-treasurer of the Balaban & Katz corporation. Balaban called the legislation ridiculous.

Denies Charge of Eye Strain.

"How such a bill could pass the legislature is beyond my comprehension," Rubens' letter said. "It cannot be a health measure, as competent and reputable physicians hold that there is more eye strain in reading a book than there is in seeing a motion picture.

"It would be just as unreasonable to restrict a baseball game to a prescribed time to protect people from sitting in the sun on hard benches too long, or to limit a newspaper or a book to a maximum number of pages lest the length be injurious to the eyes of the reader."

The bill proposes that showing time of films be limited to two hours and fifteen minutes. Such a provision, Rubens said, is legislation by the state against business.

Called Blow to Business.

"Restricting the length of performances in Illinois would mean that many of our best pictures would have to be cut," Rubens' letter said. "Such a performance would be impractical and would prove very unpopular."

Towns in adjacent states running full length and complete performances would attract patronage from Illinois, Rubens said, and merchants in these communities would profit to the detriment of Illinois business men.

MRS. FARWELL'S NET ESTATE IS FIXED AT $291,472

Each of four sons and a daughter will receive $55,332. They are Perry, Lawrence, Elliott, and Hermon Farwell, and Mrs. Lucy Harvey.

F. W. THURSTON WILLS CHARITY MOST OF WEALTH

The will of Frank W. Thurston, one time Chicago paint and varnish manufacturer who died March 19 in Glendale, Cal., was admitted to probate yesterday by John F. Keeley, assistant to the Probate judge. It disposes of an estate with an estimated value of $500,000.

Most of the property is left in trust to charities, but the principal individual beneficiary is a niece, Miss Edna Thurston Bronson of San Diego, Cal., who receives a life income from a $100,000 trust. The principal then goes to charity.

Several small bequests are made to employés and friends. The rest of the estate is placed in trust and the income goes to the Chicago Community fund, the United Charities, the Union League Foundation for Boys' Clubs, the Olivet institute, and the Provident Hospital and Training School association. The Northern Trust company is named executor.

RAINS AND HEAT PUSH CORN CROP BEYOND NORMAL

BY HOMER NEISZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., July 7. — A heat wave, coupled with heavy local rains, is complicating the crop outlook for farmers in western Illinois and southeastern Iowa. The hot weather is considered good for the corn but bad for oats.

Excessive rains in some sections during the last few days have brought creeks and rivers out of their banks, flooding fields of corn and other crops in the valleys. The damage has not been extensive, but has been severe in some places.

Farmers Bit Puzzled.

In general crop prospects between Peoria and Des Moines are good, although farmers are a bit puzzled over the advanced state of the corn crop. They are not used to seeing corn six to ten feet tall by the first week in July. Many predict unusually high corn yields for this fall, while others think the yield might be better if the corn had made a more normal growth.

Corn is much further advanced than normal for this time of year in every section visited so far on this crop survey trip, which has covered nearly 900 miles through parts of four corn belt states. A high percentage of the corn is beginning to tassel. Silks are appearing in some fields.

Expect Heavy Yield.

Farmers interviewed through Peoria, Fulton, Warren, and Henderson counties in Illinois said the hay crop in that territory was light because of dry weather in May and the first half of June. Oats are short and the best fields are expected to yield only 20 to 30 bushels per acre.

Heavy yields of corn are predicted in the Iowa counties visited. Many farmers think the crop should be better than last year. Some are expecting yields equal to those of 1937 when the Iowa crop made an average yield of 47 bushels per acre for the entire state and produced more than 500 million bushels.

BLAMES TRADE CURBS FOR HIGH BUILDING COSTS

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., today told the monopoly investigating committee that restrictions imposed by union labor and contractors made building in Chicago exorbitantly expensive. He cited the plumbing trade in giving specific instances of restriction.

Gen. R. E. Wood.

"Our company has a big plumbing business," he asserted. "But in our home town of Chicago we couldn't have our own materials installed even in our own building. Labor in Chicago will install only the materials handled by certain contractors."

Abandoned Housing Plan.

Because of this, Gen. Wood said, his company had abandoned a plan to build low cost houses and sell them to its employés. He related that a similar plan had been a success in Kankakee, Ill. There Sears built fifty-two homes of five rooms each and sold them to the workers at $3,400 each. The building cost per house was $3,100.

"To build the same sort of dwelling in Chicago would cost $4,000," Wood asserted, "and land values were seventeen times as high. With such costs, the houses would have been no bargains for our employés."

He said that union labor was used in Kankakee and that it was more efficient than that in Chicago—that it cost $30 for labor alone to install a bathtub in Chicago. He gave his opinion on why Chicago plumbers refused to install the plumbing fixtures merchandised by Sears, Roebuck & Co., in new buildings.

Plumber Is a Merchant.

"It must be remembered that the master plumber is a merchant as well as an employer of labor," he said. "The union plumber gets no advantage by pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for the master plumber, but that's what he does. What the deal is between the master plumber, the material dealer, and the manufacturer, I don't know."

He added that, in general, union labor was fair in the smaller towns, and was willing to install the company's products.

Before Gen. Wood testified Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of the administration's anti-trust campaign, harangued the committee members on "intolerable and amazing" monopoly practices in private housing.

"The department of justice," he said, "now has under way an investigation of violations of the anti-trust laws in the housing field. Restraints of trade are so prevalent and their aggregate effect so important that the situation is no longer tolerable. About 25 per cent of the cases instituted by the anti-trust division have dealt with the building industry."

Purpose of Testimony.

Arnold's testimony was regarded as part of the New Deal effort to support its contention that private builders have failed and that the burden of providing houses to those of small income had fallen on the government.

It is the hope of the administration that the current hearings will influence the house to act favorably on a bill to increase the the lending authority of the Federal Housing authority from 800 million dollars to one billion 600 million. The senate has already passed the measure.

Resume Fight on Buying of Foreign Silver

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The administration began today its second effort within a fortnight to prevent congressional action abolishing its foreign silver buying program.

While the treasury held the price paid for imported silver stationary at 36.75 cents an ounce, a senate banking subcommittee agreed to wait until it can hear the administration's views before considering a bill intended to void the program.

Committee members said Secretary Hull wished to appear and explain how the program fits into the administration's policy in Latin America. In addition, it was reported that Senator Barkley [D., Ky.] advised the subcommittee that termination of the silver buying program might have unfortunate consequences upon negotiations with Mexico on confiscated American oil properties there.

On June 26 the senate approved a Republican amendment to the monetary bill then pending, which would have forbidden further purchases of foreign silver. The amendment, however, was thrown out later in conference, and the Republicans decided to approach their objective by direct legislation.

However, on June 27, the treasury began cutting its foreign silver price, which then was 43 cents. Officials explained that the cuts were made to prevent dumping of foreign silver here during the period between senate approval of the amendment and final enactment of the legislation.

However, it was said that now that the bill has been approved with no restriction on foreign silver buying the treasury has no intention of pushing the price back up to its former level.

RAIL HEAD ASKS FEDERAL LOANS FOR EQUIPMENT

Omaha, Neb., July 7.—(AP)—William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, in an interview today suggested that President Roosevelt's new spending-lending program would be more helpful to railroads if altered to provide the government lend money to railroads for new equipment rather than build and lease rolling stock. The government would retain title to the rolling stock as collateral for the loans, he added.

Jeffers commented that the Union Pacific is "not interested" in the proposal as first outlined by President Roosevelt. He spoke then of difficulties that would be encountered if a mass production system were utilized to build equipment.

"Fundamentally, it is one thing to talk about government building and another thing to do it," he said. "For instance, there are no run of the mine box cars. While there is some standard building, the railroad business is mainly specialized."

BUSINESS BOOKS

"Our Town's Business," by Omar and Ryllis Goslin. [Funk & Wagnalls company, New York. Price $3.50.]

The Goslins, who wrote "Rich Man, Poor Man," approach the intricate network of business in the big city and the less complex pattern in the small town with an intimate and simple style.

Their attention, as they express it, "is focused on Main street, on the marketplace, on factories, on farmers, on stores, on services, on customers, on groups of workers, on those experiences which all of us have in our attempts to make a living."

The study of economic problems in the Goslin school is an escape from academic theories and redundant dissertations. With the assistance of charts, the authors attempt to explain what makes the economic wheels turn and what makes them stick and jam.

Department store sales in the seventh federal reserve district, which includes Chicago, showed the largest gain in the country in the week ended July 1, compared with last year. FEDERAL SOCIAL SECURITY PAYS OUT 844 MILLION

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The federal social security system, which soon may be broadened by congress, already has paid out $844,649,116 in the three years and four months of its operation.

During this same period a total of $1,483,813,860 has been collected in social security taxes. Most of this has gone into government bonds, which have been placed in a reserve fund for old age insurance benefits. Expenditures so far have been chiefly from appropriations made by congress from general funds.

Treasury reports show that the bulk of the expenditures—$665,358,118—went to the states as grants to match state contributions for the care of the needy aged, dependent children, and the blind. Here also has been an expenditure of $17,844,954 in payment of benefit claims arising from the death of workers insured in the old age insurance system. The remainder went to pay the administrative costs of the program—$55,891,864 for the social security board and its staff, and $105,554,180 to the states to cover the costs of their unemployment compensation agencies.

ELECT TRUSTEE FOR BANKRUPT SHOE COMPANY

St. Louis, Mo., July 7.—(AP)—Former Circuit Judge William H. Killoren of St. Louis was elected trustee in bankruptcy of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe company at a meeting of creditors of the defunct manufacturing concern today.

John W. Lake, one of the federal court co-trustees during the company's unsuccessful attempt to reorganize, disclosed he was interested in a tentative plan to form two new companies to take over Hamilton-Brown's assets.

The plan would give creditors with $1,020,000 in claims approximately 75 cents on the dollar and would hold out the hope of part recovery to owners of 196,000 shares of stock.

One of the contemplated companies would buy part of the assets of the company for $750,000 and the other company would be formed to liquidate the remaining assets, chiefly real estate, for the benefit of the stockholders.

New York Bank Clearings Show Increase This Week

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The weekly statement of the New York clearing house for the five days ending today shows bank clearings of $3,266,938,598, against $3,001,625,747 in the preceding week. Total net demand deposits decreased $15,096,000 and time deposits increased $3,950,000. Surplus and undivided profits decreased $1,796,800.

Union Electric Ruled Subject to Control Law

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The securities commission ruled today that the $250,000,000 Union Electric Company of Missouri is a holding company subject to SEC jurisdiction.

Commissioner George C. Mathews dissents.

In a precedent making opinion, the commission refused to grant the company's application for exemption from the utility holding company act. It turned down the utility's plea that it should not be subject to the act because it is a subsidiary of the North American company, a registered holding company.

Commissioner George C. Mathews dissented. Commissioner Leon Henderson did not participate.

Under the commission's order the company must continue to file the reports and other data called for by the utility holding company act.

Rule It Is Holding Company.

The majority opnion said, "the conclusion is inescapable under the terms of the statute that Union Electric company of Missouri is in a very substantial sense a holding company."

The company had argued that as a subsidiary of the North American company, it was already subject to most of the regulatory provisions of the act. On this point, the commission ruled:

"The mere fact that the applicant may now be subject to many of the sections of the act does not empower us to grant it an exemption as a holding company unless it comes within those provisions authorizing us to grant exemptions. It may be observed that several provisions of the holding company act apply to registered holding companies and not to their subsidiaries.

Gives An Example.

"For example, section 12 [A] forbids 'upstream' loans by a subsidiary to its parent. The evidence in the present case shows that many of the applicant's subsidaries are its creditors in large amounts.

"Under these circumstances the necessity of regulation of such loans would require us . . . to deny the exemption . . . as being detrimental to the public interest and the interest of consumers."

The commission said that as of Dec. 31, 1937, balances due from the company to various of its subsidiaries included: Cupples Station Light, Heat and Power company, $364,231; St. Charles Electric Light and Power company, $110,130; Mississippi River Power company, $5,607,042; Iowa Union Electric company, $727,083, and St. Louis and Alton Railway company, $178,509.

The commission's proceeding was a separate action from another order which charged the company with making political contributions in violation of the holding company act.

RAIL PAYING $800,000 LOAN OF LINE IT HAS NOT USED IN 48 YEARS

Albany, N. Y., July 7.—(AP)—The Delaware and Hudson railroad is "paying up" on an $800,000 obligation of a line it has not used in forty-eight years. The company began to pay on July 3 principal and interest on the fifty year 5 per cent bonds of the Utica, Clinton and Binghamton railroad, a branch line thirty-one miles long. The D. & H. acquired it in 1888 and leased it to the New York, Ontario and Western railroad two years later.

Both principal and interest were defaulted on maturity July 1 by the N. Y., O. & W., which is in receivership. The bonds are being taken up and paid off in full as fast as they are presented at the treasurer's office in New York City.

The bond redemption brought to light an interesting chapter in D. & H. history. Records indicated the D. & H. acquired the Utica, Clinton and Binghamton from local interests to satisfy a $20,000 bill owed to a coal merchant as well as to obtain a route into the Utica coal market.

COPPER PRICES BOOSTED BY NEW HEAVY BUYING

Domestic Up ¼ Cent; Sales Peak Set.

The price of copper for delivery in the United States was advanced ¼ cent a pound yesterday in two ⅛ cent boosts, making the quotation 10¼ cents a pound. The expected upturn came as sales of the domestic metal continued to set new records for the last year. Foreign demand, spurred by the feverish arms race in Europe, drew heavily upon supplies of the European cartel.

Fabricators of domestic copper followed the boost with a rise of ⅛ cent a pound on most copper and brass products. The second ⅛ cent increase in the domestic refined price came after the close of trading, and it was not known definitly whether fabricators would respond with another increase in finished product prices. The domestic price was highest since May 6.

Export Copper Higher.

Export copper rose to 10.35 cents a pound, 0.05 cent higher than on Thursday. Copper interests said it was still more profitable to sell in the export market than for domestic consumption.

Sales to domestic consumers Thursday were reported to have totaled 36,051 tons. This was the largest volume since July 1, 1938, and compared with 19,078 tons Wednesday. Sales since the heavy buying movement began a week ago yesterday total 74,905 tons. Cartel sales yesterday were 4,247 tons.

The principal factor in the price rise is the necessity for copper in arms production, traders say. The buying movement started a week ago when France bought 21,000 tons in a single day.

Promise of a sustained recovery in copper prices was held out by some metal interests, who cited the combination of low stocks in the hands of fabricators, general business improvement, and the record breaking consumption of foreign nations.

Futures Prices Gain.

In other New York commodity futures, prices were irregular. Wool tops, No. 2 silk, and new contract hides were among those closing with prices mixed. Coffee, cocoa, and lead futures moved higher. On the downgrade were sugar, rubber, tin, No. 1 silk, and cottonseed oil.

The board of managers of the New York Produce exchange voted yesterday to close the market for trading in cottonseed oil futures on Saturdays during July and August and the first week in September.

NEW TAX STUDY WILL BE MADE BY HOUSE GROUP

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and his fiscal advisers agreed today to have a broad study of the tax structure made during the congressional recess, with a view to having a bill ready at the next session of congress. They decided, however, the study would be made by a house ways and means tax subcommittee headed by Representative Cooper [D., Tenn.], instead of by a temporary national committee as suggested recently by the treasury.

Chairman Harrison [D., Miss.] of the senate finance committee said that since the house originates revenue legislation "we thought it best that the house committee work on it first." The subcommittee will be assisted by experts from the treasury and the joint congressional committee on taxation.

OUTPUT OF AUTO PLANTS LOWER; SALES HOLD UP

Production of automobiles in the current week was estimated yesterday by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., at 42,784 units, compared with 70,663 last week and 29,375 in the corresponding 1938 week. The decline was largely attributed to the two day shutdown in most plants for the Fourth of July holiday.

Reports from the individual companies indicate that sales have been holding up better than had been expected. The gains were attributed to a number of factors, including favorable weather, pre-vacation period buying, and improvement in the inventory situation.

Report Otha Wearin, Iowa, Will Be REA Administrator

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—Reports were current in official circles today that President Roosevelt had decided to appoint former Representative Otha D. Wearin, Iowa Democrat, to succeed John M. Carmody as rural electrification administrator. Carmody was recently appointed chief of the newly created federal works agency. Wearin was an unsuccessful New Deal candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Iowa in 1938.

Sale of Power Firm Stock to Edison Approved by SEC

Washington, D. C., July 7.—[Special.]—The Securities and Exchange commission today approved the application of the Northern Indiana Public Service company to sell the 215,280 shares of the common stock of Chicago District Electric Generating company which it owns to Commonwealth Edison company of Chicago for $2,513,734.

Seek to Name Wallace in Butter Suit

A motion filed in United States District court yesterday sought to have Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and the Commodity Credit corporation named co-defendants with the Dairy Products Marketing association and several dairy coöperatives in a suit charging illegal price control and a monopoly in the butter market.

The motion was brought before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan on behalf of A. L. Ronneberg, general manager of the DPMA. The defendants argued that the coöperative formed its pool and attempted to control butter prices in accordance with Wallace's farm program under the agricultural adjustment act, and that it acted in agreement with Wallace and the CCC.

Other Defendants in Suit.

Other defendants in the suit, which was filed by Frank P. Girard, 1033 Loyola avenue, are the Land o' Lakes Creameries, Inc.; Illinois Producers Creameries, Inc., and the Dairy and Poultry Coöperatives, Inc. The suit seeks to restrain the DPMA from doing business in Illinois.

Judge Sullivan ordered that the DPMA first file its answer to Girard's petition by Aug. 7, and set Oct. 11 for arguments on making Wallace and the CCC parties to the suit.

In yesterday's arguments Lewis F. Mason and Ralph J. Gutgsell, attorneys for Girard, argued that Wallace could not be named a defendant without his consent, because the law requires the government's consent if it is to be sued.

Wants Trial in State Court.

To the suggestion that Wallace might be made a co-defendant if the suit were transferred to Washington, Mason replied that Girard had originally brought the injunction petition in a state court, and that he would ask that the suit be remanded to the state court. Removal of proceedings to the federal court were allowed June 7, at the request of the defendants.

The suit is an outgrowth of the DPMA's butter buying program, which it seeks to halt. During 1938 and early 1939, the DPMA bought 114,000,000 pounds of butter in an attempt to support prices. Mason said the DPMA is a Delaware corporation made up of 8 coöperative creameries. Each contributed $50 to the formation of the concern, and on the total capitalization of $400 the DPMA borrowed $32,000,000 from the CCC to carry out the butter program.

Program Is Resumed.

The program was discontinued in March of this year, but was resumed recently when the CCC was authorized to lend another $6,000,000 to the coöperative. The surplus butter was stored by the DPMA and sold in lots to the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, which distributed it to relief clients.

In yesterday's petition, Ronneberg said the DPMA still owned over 17,800,000 pounds of butter it bought between June and October of 1938. He also said the coöperative still owes the CCC $7,700,000 of the original loan of approximately $32,000,000.

FEDERAL HOME PLAN IS FAULTY, SAYS PROFESSOR

The federal housing program has failed to move the building industry out of its inertia because the administration's efforts have been inconsistent and deficient, Prof. William J. Vatter of the University of Chicago, asserted yesterday. He spoke in the university's school of business lecture series on business and government.

The federal program with respect to economic recovery in the building industry has been decidedly deficient because it has placed little emphasis on the factors which hold back building, Prof. Vatter said. The Roosevelt aims of "made work" and low cost housing are incompatible. PWA excessive costs destroy the possibility of low cost homes, he explained.

"Construction expenses per room in the Lathrop project of the PWA were $1,352 too high, and in the Trumbull Park project $1,392 above what it should have cost," he said.

Price of October Eggs Highest in Five Months

October eggs advanced ½ cent a dozen to 23⅞ cents on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. This was the highest level in five months. The buying, led by cash houses, was based on a decline in production, favorable storage statistics, and warm weather.

WALGREEN SETS NEW RECORD IN SALES VOLUME

Other Chain Stores Report Gains.

Swelling the number of national sales organizations which recently have established new peaks in volume of business, the Walgreen company yesterday announced its sales for June and for the first six months of the year were the highest in the drug company's history.

Last month's sales totaled $5,551,428, an increase of 6.5 per cent over the volume of $5,213,298 shown for June, 1938. For the six months, sales aggregated $34,281,711, a gain of 6.1 per cent over the $32,316,719 total for the 1938 period.

Virtually all of the chain store reports made public during the day showed improvement over a year ago.

Big Chains Set Records.

Within the last few days, new sales peaks have been recorded by Sears, Roebuck & Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., the F. W. Woolworth company, and a number of other national organizations.

Company executives interviewed yesterday on the reasons behind the sharp upswing offered a variety of explanations. The most widely accepted belief was that consumers had more confidence and therefore were spending more money for goods moving into immediate consumption.

The improvement in business has not been confined to chain and mail order sales, but has extended to the general line of merchandise offered by the State street department stores and to the clothing business, officials disclosed. Automobile sales have expanded sharply.

Rise in Sales Is General.

Urban and rural sales have advanced in about equal ratio. The improvement has been particularly sharp in industrial centers, such as Detroit, where production and employment were slack at this time last year. Farmers continue to benefit from lavish government spending.

Gains in sales outstrip the anticipated increase in national income, which for 1939 has been placed by government officials at 65 billion 400 million dollars, compared with 64 billions in 1938 and 72 billions in 1937. Factory employment has expanded, economists pointed out, but not to the extent that sales have advanced.

Statisticians of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago estimated that June figures, when they are completed, will show an increase over the May employment level.

Employment Index Improves.

In May, the federal reserve board's index of factory employment was 90, based on the average for 1923-'25 as 100, compared with 84 a year ago and 109 two years ago.

Officials emphasized that credit has played no substantial part in the increased sales, since there has been no material liberalization of credit terms.

Two important factors cited by one national mail order and chain store executive were the improvement in the automobile industry by comparison with last year at this time, and

Stocks, Bonds

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 7.—The stock market closed irregularly lower today. Losses were mostly fractional. Sales totaled only 327,970 shares.

Only small blocks of stocks moved in a quiet opening with prices little changed from Thursday's finals. Failure of either buyers or sellers develop enthusiasm resulted in the list backing and filling in a narrow range throughout the remainder of the session. Brokers attributed the lack of activity to the disposition of many traders to take sideline positions pending clarification of developments at home and abroad.

An increase in the price of copper had little effect on copper shares inasmuch as the rise had been discounted. American Smelting and Phelps-Dodge edged higher, but Anaconda, Kennecott, and International Nickel dipped. Silver mining shares held close to previous finals. An exception was Howe Sound, which dropped 2¼ points.

Pivotal industrial shares, including United States Steel, Bethlehem, U. S. Rubber, General Electric, Chrysler, General Motors, and Standard Oil slipped fractionally. Extension of the General Motors strike weighed against the motor shares, it was asserted. Willys Overland again was active, but slipped back to 1⅞.

Montgomery Ward, Sears-Roebuck, and Marshall Field rose a fraction apiece. Losses in aviation issues were mostly fractional, although Douglass lost a point. Aviation Corporation was again the most active issue.

New York Bonds.

New York, July 7.—(AP)—Bonds were irregular today.

Chicago Stocks.

Commonwealth Edison and Walgreen, which established new 1939 high marks on Thursday, receded fractionally in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Edison lost ¼ point at 29⅞ on a turnover of 3,800 shares. Walgreen dipped ¼ point to 22¾.

United Air Lines, usually quiet in Chicago trading, joined the active list with an advance of ⅛ point. Marshall Field and Jarvis also improved fractionally.

Trading totaled 18,000 shares. Of the seventy-four issues traded, thirty-one advanced, twenty-one declined, and twenty-two closed unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

Activity in Continental Illinois shares provided nearly all the trading interest in Chicago bank stocks yesterday. The stock advanced $2 a share. In the last three days Continental has risen $7 a share. First National was higher yesterday, with other issues about unchanged.

PUBLIC HEARING OF RAIL DISPUTES IS UP TO BOARD

Unions Fight Disclosure of Testimony.

The national railroad adjustment board will continue to decide for itself whether hearings on railroad labor disputes shall be open to the public, including newspaper reporters. This was made known yesterday by Otto S. Beyer, chairman of the national mediation board, after a conference between his board and the adjustment board in the latter's headquarters in the Consumers building.

Otto S. Beyer.

Railroad labor representatives objected when reporters were admitted to the recent hearings in Chicago of complaints filed against the Santa Fe railroad by the brotherhoods. There were about 185 of these grievances, many of which involved disputes as to wages.

Refuse to Talk Before Public.

The labor representatives refused to ask or answer general questions when reporters were present, saying that they would stand on the official record as contained in the documents presenting their grievances.

"As a matter of fact," Beyer said, "the national mediation board has no right under the law to interfere in any way with the manner in which the adjustment board conducts its hearings. It is up to the adjustment board to say whether it will admit the public.

"Our conference with the adjustment board was solely on administrative matters, particularly as they concern the publication of our annual report. The adjustment board's report is made a part of the mediation board's report."

Follows Washington Parley.

The conference between the mediation board and the adjustment board followed a conference in Washington last Friday between railroad brotherhood officials and the board of directors of the Association of American Railroads. At that time union officials objected to the publicity given mediation board hearings.

The brotherhoods were reported to have told John J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, that unless the railroads cooperated with the unions in supporting the mediation board and in stifling publicity the unions would withdraw their support of congressional legislation desired by the railroads.

Rails Refuse to Accede.

The brotherhoods were told that the railroads refused to accede to any order that would bar the public from any hearing at which it was entitled to attend. The railroads added that if the public were to be barred from such hearings the railroad unions would have to stand the onus of the action.

The national railroad adjustment board was created by congress to hear and settle disputes between railroads and their employés. It consists of four divisions, each with a chairman. Each division consists of an equal number of rail management representatives and union representatives.

In the event the various divisions are unable to reach an agreement, they may ask the national mediation board to appoint a referee to handle the matter. If the referee's decision is unsatisfactory to both parties and the threat of a strike is raised the mediation board takes charge.

Brooklyn-Manhattan Union Strike Vote Is Authorized

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—A strike vote of the 12,000 employés of the Brooklyn Manhattan Transit company has been authorized by the executive board of the Transport Workers union, C. I. O. affiliate, and by the union's joint executive committee, it was announced today.

McKesson Trustee Report to Be Filed by July 14

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—The time alloted William J. Wardall, trustee for McKesson and Robbins, Inc., to file his report on the affairs of the company today was extended to July 14 by order of Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

Class 1 Rail Employes Rise to 991,900 in June

Washington, D. C., July 7.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission reported today that class one railways had 991,900 employés in mid-June, an increase of 3.58 per cent over a month earlier, and 8.39 per cent over mid-June, 1938.

Business Bits

H. Judd Payne has resigned as executive vice president of Associated Business Papers, Inc., to become vice president in charge of the magazine division of F. W. Dodge corporation. He also will become a member of the board of directors. Magazines under Payne's direction will be the Architectural Record and Real Estate Board.

A. D. Weller, president of the National Association of Sales Finance Companies, announced that the annual convention of sales finance companies sponsored by the association will be held Sept. 14 and 15 in the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York.

Robert J. Taylor, president-elect of the Chicago Rotary club, will speak on "The Jroblem of Premiums" during the fortieth annual congress of the National Retail Hardware association in Cincinnati July 1 7to 21.

N.Y. COTTON EXCHANGE SEAT SOLD AT LOWEST PRICE IN 33 YEARS

New York, July 7.—[Special.]—A membership on the New York Cotton exchange was sold today for $6,000—the lowest price since 1906 and a decline of $1,500 from the previous transaction.

This low price was considered to reflect the growing belief among members that the need for futures exchanges is gradually being eliminated through the activities of the federal government.

The large surplus of cotton and the government loan program have narrowed the range of prices, discouraged speculation, and reduced the need for hedging, it was pointed out. The export subsidy on cotton, due to begin when the new crop starts to move, will cut further into trading volume on the nation's cotton exchanges, it is believed.

A recent survey showed that the volume of trading in cotton futures on the New York and New Orleans exchanges was 20 per cent smaller in the first six months of this year than in the corresponding 1938 period.

WALGREEN SETS NEW RECORD IN SALES VOLUME

Other Companies Also Report Gains.

This official said there had been a sharp gain in sales of refrigerators and household furnishings, which at this time last year were not selling as rapidly. He painted out that even though the current comparisons may be exaggerated because of the comparatively poor state of business at this time last year, sales nevertheless are well above the 1937 level.

Wage Earners Spend More.

"The man with a job is spending his money more liberally," said another company official. "The stock broker, the professional man, and others of substantial means are not so well off comparatively as the man who manages to stay on a pay roll. This is reflected in continued slackness in the heavy goods industries. There is more money in the hands of the workers, and people are buying with more confidence."

"Increases in our sales have been well distributed over the country," said R. G. Knight, controler of the Walgreen company, which operates about 500 drug stores. "The improvement has been particularly sharp in Detroit and other industrial centers."

Marshall Field Has Gain.

"While it is not a spectacular increase, it is substantial," he said. "Within the last few weeks we have noticed an increase in the amount of the average purchase, which is a favorable indication in the general economic picture. Business along State street as a whole is above a year ago."

Bertram J. Cahn, president of B. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc., one of the country's largest clothing manufacturers, said this business has benefited from the increase in public spending.

"The clothing business did not begin to improve until late in 1938," he said. "At present the buying habits of the public seem to have returned to a more normal state. The industry's current volume shows an increase of almost 45 per cent over this time last year, compared with a corresponding decrease in June, 1938. Distribution is about at the 1937 level."

Spiegel's Volume Expands.

Business of Spiegel, Inc., Chicago mail order company, is now ahead of this time last year, according to M. J. Spiegel Jr., president. He attributed the upturn to increased consumer confidence.

HOWELL GRANTED NEW TRIAL IN GRAIN LOSS CASE

Judge Assails Tactics of Plaintiff's Lawyer.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday granted a new trial to Thomas M. Howell, Chicago grain operator against whom a jury last month entered a judgment for $6,781 damages in favor of a Kansas City grain dealer. Judge Woodward severely criticized the tactics of the plaintiff's attorney and announced he would not hear the second trial.

Thomas M. Howell.

The jury had awarded damages to Soma Petro of Kansas City on the plea of his attorney, M. M. Rich, that Petro had suffered market reverses as the result of a "corner" allegedly obtained by Howell in the corn market in 1931.

Amazed by Argument.

"I was amazed at the character of the plaintiff's closing argument and his persistence in carrying out his method," Judge Woodward said, referring to the arguments of Attorney Rich. "I came near declaring a mistrial. You persisted in a line of argument over seven objections which were sustained. I will not try this case again. You will have to get a new judge."

The case was referred to the court's executive committee for reassignment.

Contention of Plaintiff.

Petro had argued that his anticipated profit on a short sale of corn in 1931 was converted into a loss because Howell bought up large quantities in the futu s market. Howell, according to Petro, owned 8,500,000 bushels at the time.

The demand for a new trial was made by Edward R. Adams, attorney for Howell.

Fraud Hearing Continued Against Three Chicagoans

Edwin K. Walker, United States commissioner, yesterday continued to July 28 a hearing against three officials of the L. B. Harris company, a real estate firm at 111 West Monroe street. They were accused of having obtained money from the Federal Housing Administration by fraud. They are Louis B. Harris, 44 years old, 3920 Lake Shore drive; head of the company; Joseph Goldman, 33 years old, 2251 Rosemont avenue, and Maurice Lippman, 3058 West Chicago avenue, his associates.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Prices for all heavy hogs incurred another break at the Chicago stockyards yesterday but most light stock sold steady, resulting in further widening in the range of prices. The spread between light and heavy hogs was the widest since late last summer. Top light butchers reached $7.40. The average was $6.25.

IN BASEBALL BUSINESS.

Investors' Guide: I just bought some Coca-Cola stock and now I have learned that the company, besides making their soft drink, is in the baseball business. What team or teams do they have?—L. U. S.

Answer: Coca-Cola company owns and operates one baseball team. That is the Atlanta, Ga., club of the Southern league. It is run through a wholly owned subsidiary, the Atlanta Baseball corporation. One of the company's major sirup plants is in Atlanta.

REGISTRAR, TRANSFER AGENT.

Investors' Guide: Will you please explain briefly what the duties are of registrars and transfer agents?—G. C. C.

Answer: Transfer agents and registrars have the job of recording who owns stock and how many shares are owned by each stockholder. A record must be made on the books of a company whenever any of its stock is traded. The transfer agent keeps a record of these trades and issues new stock certificates to the buyer. This job is so heavy and so complicated that most companies appoint a trust company or the trust department of a bank to do the work for them.

The registrar's duty is to guard against overissuance of stock and to form a check on the work of the transfer agent. For this reason the two jobs are seldom held by the same trust company or department of a bank. Most stock exchanges require the appointment of both before they will admit a stock to listing.

Stockholders usually have little direct contact with either a transfer agent or registrar, but they give him valuable protection in case he loses his certificate. They can furnish him with a new certificate and prevent a lost certificate from being sold by someone else.

"OLD LISLE BANK."

Investors' Guide: What is the "Old Lisle Bank" and where is it located? I recently saw a reference to it, but have not been able to find such an institution listed in any directory.—M. R.

Answer: "Old Lisle Bank" is an expression, not an institution. It began a good many years ago with the custom of women tucking away money in their stockings for safekeeping. Hosiery then was manufactured with a lisle thread base and from this the expression developed.

Short skirts have become the vogue again in women's dresses, as these pictures testify. These young women all were photographed on the street in Chicago by roving cameramen, many of them on Michigan avenue, but some at the baseball game and similar gatherings. Most of these knee length dresses are 20 inches from the ground, the maximum height to be found in dresses available in Chicago's shops. Knees show under the hemline occasionally.
